Light rain to continue

A prolonged drizzle that brought the first rain to the valley since Jan. 20 continued today and the weatherman said it will go on intermittently till Friday evening.

Rainfall table

	Strm	S'sn	Yr. Ago
P-B Gauge	.23	9.53	5.20
Cal Poly	.21	10.73	5.09

Padua Hills	.27	11.98	6.72
San Dimas	.27	10.84	4.99
Upland	.30	8.69	5.87

Water officials welcomed the steady precipitation Wednesday but remained pessimistic . They said the state's drought condition is so serious that it would take heavy rain for the next month to replenish dwindling water supplies.

The valley's rainfall ranged from from .18 of an inch in Walnut and Diamond Bar to .30 in Upland. Pomona measured .23.

The National Weather Service said a new high pressure ridge building up north of the state could shut off the storm by Friday afternoon. After that fair weather is predicted for the Southland.

Disgusted, fed up with cheap sex, violence

Pastor urging 'Pull the Plug on TV Week'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What, pull the plug, darken the TV set an entire week? Heresy. But a man of the cloth urges such heresy, starting Sunday, as a national protest over cheapened sex and violence in TV programs.

He's the Rev. Donald E. Wildmon, 39, pastor of the First United Methodist church in Southaven, Miss., next door to Memphis, Tenn. He calls his campaign "Pull the Plug on TV Week," to end March 5.

It began at home, he says, during the Christmas holidays when he was watching TV with his family, saw a scene involving sex, found it offensive, switched channels, saw a torture scene and switched off.

"I just got disgusted," said the minister, father of four children, aged 13 and younger. "I said, 'I've got to do something, I don't know what, but I'm going to do something.'"

And on Dec. 31, he said, he urged his flock at church to engage in a week-long television turnoff. He also sent a news release about it to Memphis reporters. In time, he said, it made the wire services.

He said in the last three weeks, mainly because of follow-up stories about his campaign, he's gotten expressions of support from viewers of all faiths across the nation and more than 1,000 letters.

He said in addition to his proposed no-watch week, he's asking viewers to call local TV stations Monday "and express concern about television's violence, its distorted image of sex and to say we're fed up."

How much support he'll get is anyone's guess. But the Parent-Teachers Association, here this week for the last of its eight hearings on TV violence, says it knows little about it and took no position on his campaign.

The Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission, which recently ended four regional hearings on TV content, is familiar with his campaign, but takes no position on it, saying it's for individual viewers to decide.

Thomas J. Swafford, senior vice president for public affairs at the National Association of Broadcasters, says he hasn't heard sounds of industry alarm over the Rev. Mr. Wildmon's call for a no-watch week, but some broadcasters "may be a little curious to see what'll happen.

"If the average home watches television for 6½ hours a day, that's going to leave quite a void in their lives," he said, jokingly predicting the birth rate could drastically rise if the boycott works.

Speaking seriously, Swafford, until last year chief censor at CBS, said he's never heard of such a call for a one-week TV boycott before, and "I've never heard of anybody turning off the set for a week.

"They're going to miss an awful lot of nonviolent programs if they do. As a matter of fact, the only trouble with that (a boycott) is that they're just going to boycott all TV, it really doesn't say anything.

"If they were going to boycott programs like 'Kojak' or 'Starsky and Hutch,' and all of a sudden broadcasters saw those ratings falling, then maybe they'd be telling us something."

The Rev. Mr. Wildmon, who sees no-watch week as a symbolic warning to the networks what can happen if they don't mend their programming ways, agreed that what is offensive to one viewer may be high drama to another.

I'll leave that to the American people to decide," he said. "If the majority agrees with me, then I'll have accomplished what I set out do do. If they don't, I won't. It's as simple as that."

Gunman robs S & L firm, gets $1,607

A lone gunman robbed the Home Savings and Loan Association, 100 Pomona Mall West, of $1,607 in cash and a guard's gun Wednesday about 2 p.m.

The robber, in his 20s, wearing a black felt hat, forest green slacks and platform shoes, was armed with a 2-inch barrel revolver, said police.

He entered the building, walked to the new accounts section and grabbed the guard by the arm from behind He placed a gun against the guard's nose and said, "move, move, move."

The robber went to a teller's station and ordered the clerk to put the money in a bag. He then told the clerk to "hit the floor," took the revolver from the guard and commanded him to lie on the floor, and started to flee out the door, said officers.

As he went around a counter, he dropped the money but stopped to pick it up. He then ran out the door.

Police described the robber as black, 5 feet 5, medium build and having a week's growth of beard.

Tanker has crack in hull, leaking oil into Pacific

HONOLULU (AP) — A below-waterline crack in the hull of a Liberian tanker carrying 28 million galons of crude oil has leaked an undetermined amount of the oil into the Pacific about 330 miles west of here, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

The 840-foot Hawaiian Patriot radioed a circling Coast Guard C130 aircraft Wednesday night that it was not in any immediate danger.

Plane plows into house after explosion aboard; eight killed

BRIDGE DISASTER The tanker Marine Floridian struck the Benjamin Harrison Bridge near Hopewell, Va., this morning, throwing some cars into the James River.

Pennsylvania state officials among dead

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A twin-engine plane exploded in flight and crashed into a house near here today, killing Pennsylvania's transportation secretary and seven other persons, police said.

There was no immediate word on whether anyone was killed in the house, which was set afire.

A. H. Childs, director of the transportation department's bureau of aviation, confirmed that William Sherlock, 36, the secretary, and his chief of staff, William Smith, were among the dead.

Department officials also said state Senate Republican Leader Richard Frame was on board, but they could not confirm that he was among the dead.

William Campbell, information officer for the department, said two other agency officials may have been in the plane when it crashed outside Harrisburg in suburban Swatara Township.

Witnesses said the plane hit a small tree, skidded 300 feet, flattened the house and came to rest 150 feet across another street in the residential area.

Ljubica Vranicar, who lives near the crash site, said, "I was upstairs sewing. I heard this noise. This crash. I came outside and everything was on fire."

The officials were going to St. Marys, Elk County, to present a $52,000 check to the Area Transportation Authority of North Central Pennsylvania.

Cars fall into river as tanker hits bridge

HOPEWELL, Va. (AP) — A tanker slammed into a bridge laden with commuter traffic here early today, ripping out a 150-foot section of the bridge and sending four cars plummeting into the James River.

Police said it was not known how many persons were in the cars that toppled after the SS Marine Floridian hit the 4,463-foot-long Benjamin Harrison Bridge.

At least two drivers fled their cars to safety as the tanker careened toward the span shortly before 7 a.m. with its warning horns sounding.

"We think everyone got out, but we still haven't located all the drivers," said State Trooper W. W. Townsend at midmorning as divers searched the river, about 25-feet deep at the point of the collision.

The Coast Guard said the 612-foot-long sulphur carrier experienced steering trouble as it approached the bridge, which had raised its drawbridge to let the tanker through.

Authorities added that the Marine Floridian might have lost power before it hit the structure, and witnesses said the crew attempted to stop the ship's forward movement by dropping anchor shortly before the crash.

The tanker was empty and en route to Newport News, apparently headed downriver after delivering cargo at Hopewell, authorities said.

Witnesses said the Marine Floridian, trailed by the Coast Guard cutter Red Cedar, moved erratically as it bore down on the 10-year-old bridge.

A State Highway Department spokesman said repairs might not be made for as long as six months.

Urges neighborhood watch participation

One of the nation's top law enforcement officers participates in a neighborhood watch to protect his household and that of his neighbors.

So stated Police Chief Edward Davis of Los Angeles at a gathering of more than 300 Republicans Wednesday night at Cal Poly Pomona in celebration of Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays. The dinner event was sponsored by the 35th Congressional District Republican Central Committee.

Chief Davis stated that there is no way the police can make you safe. Crime is up all over the country but in Los Angeles it is down, he said, because people are helping one another. He described the neighborhood watch program as a good citizen effort.

As to the increase in crime generally, Chief Davis said the public is getting no help from judges, or from Gov. Brown's program of dumping prisoners back into society or his stand on capital punishment.

The United States is in danger of becoming a third rate power unless it restores good old fashioned morality, renews the work ethic, and eliminates the fear of crime, according to Chief Davis. He stated that the United States and its allies represent only 10 per cent of the world's peoples who believe in freedom and are willing to fight for it.

Chief Davis said that he saw no reason at this time why he won't be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. "If I lose," he added, "I hope it is to someone like Pete Schabarum." The Los Angeles County supervisor was one of the Republican guests at the dinner.

Get $25,700 in cash, jewelry, instruments

Armed youths invade adult classroom

CULVER CITY (AP) — Three youths armed with rifles and a bayonet-like knife robbed 27 orchestra students at an adult school class of more than $25,700 in cash, jewelry and instruments while two off-duty police officers were teaching another class only 100 yards away.

Police Sgt. Frank Augusta said the robbers walked into the Culver City Adult School classroom at about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and ordered the students, ranging in age form their early 20s to mid-50s, to lie face down on the floor while the robbers piled the loot onto a bedsheet.

Among the items taken, police said, were 15 musical instruments, including an $8,000 violin, a $1,000 bassoon and a $1,750 clarinet.

Witnesses said the robbers ranged in age from about 16 to 22. They were reportedly armed with a rifle, shotgun and 12-inch bayonet-like knife. The robbery lasted about 10 minutes, the victims said.

One student, Douglas Lim, was reportedly kicked in the face and had his glasses shattered by one of the robbers as he looked up at the gunman as he turned over his wallet.

Sgt. Augusta said he and Sgt. Robert Wassertheur, who were teaching a nearby class for traffic violators, were unaware of the robbery until later.

DOG OF THE FUTURE?

Ernest Albright, a retired oil company dispatcher, raises these rare Chinese Shar-Pei dogs in Pleasant Hill and thinks the rare pooch may be the dog of the future. However, there are less than 100 now in the United States.

Tentative shut-off agreement inked

Northern water cut off at pass

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Officials say a tentative agreement has been reached to reduce the pumping of state water over the Tehachapi Mountains to save 75,000 acre-feet for San Joaquin Valley farmers.

The agreement was reached Wednesday at a meeting of state and local water officials. The meeting was prompted by a call from Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy for an immediate shutoff of Tehachapi pumps of the California Water Project.

But Bob James, a deputy director of the Department of Water Resources, said negotiations are continuing. He said a final agreement was expected tomorrow.

McCarthy, D-San Francisco, told reporters that the Southern California Metropolitan Water District was still receiving water that the state wanted to keep in the north and central regions.

McCarthy said about 107,000 acre feet of Metropolitan's entitlement are involved, and it would be gone by May 1 — because once pumped over the mountain range, there's no way to get it back.

A general counsel for MWD, Robert Will, said the district had planned to continue pumping until May 1, but by cutting off March 1, about 1,000 acre feet a day could be saved for the north.

Some pumping must be continued because some areas, chiefly the East Kern-Antelope, Palmdale, Ridgecrest and to some extent San Bernardino areas, depend solely on state project water.

McCarthy also said statewide mandatory water rationing should be ordered in two weeks if local districts don't do a better job of conserving.

But while Brown urged support from all factions for a plan to expand the state water system, McCarthy urged cutting off Southern California water at the Tehachapis.

To enlarge state systems

By JOHN MORGANTHALER
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he's beginning a personal campaign to unify California's regions behind a plan to enlarge the state water system.

Brown told a water meeting Wednesday that Californians must unite so that Congress will appropriate the federal aid needed for the state project, and will agree to require the federal Central Valley Project to operate in conformity with state water standards.

The meeting was with legislators, water experts and farmers from throughout the state. Brown said he'll have more meetings.

Brown told newsmen later: "The people in the Delta want assured water quality, and those in the valley and south want more water for agriculture. I hope we can find a middle course."

He said the plan would provide enough water through year 2000.

The plan involves federal-state expenditure of $2 billion to $4 billion for a series of offstream storage dams in Northern California, new facilities in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, and ground water storage facilities in both northern and southern California.

Among the federal projects involved: the Cottonwood Creeks, the Glenn and Colusa reservoirs, and the Mid-Valley Canal.

State facilities in the Delta would include some form of the "peripheral canal" to transport Sacramento River water through the Delta to the pumps which export it south.

Rules for industrial growth win support

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New federal rules designed to allow industrial expansion while controlling urban smog are winning support from environmentalists and local governments.

Polluted urban areas could get new industry, but not the pollution that might go with it, under the rule recently put into effect and still being studied by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The so-called "trade-off" rule, which has drawn support from both industry and conservationists, with disagreement mainly limited to how stringent it should be.

"We're not upset that the EPA is developing this policy," said Carl Pope of the conservationist Sierra Club. "It's an attempt to deal with the real problem of under what circumstances do you allow expansion."

Basically, the rule allows industry into polluted areas if they can guarantee strict control over new emissions and, the key requirement, can obtain "more than equivalent" emission reductions from existing sources.

In other words, new industry must either eliminate or help clean up current pollution sources to assure that air quality is not worsened by new plants.

"The EPA did a reasonable job in developing rules that both provide for industrial development and reductions of emissions," said Gene Cone, public information officer for the California Air Resources Board.

"I don't know that it will be entirely beneficial for industry, but it will allow expansion within certain limits. It's a workable rule," she said.

The main worry of conservationists, as expressed at a public hearing before the EPA Wednesday, is how to make sure decreases guaranteed by the "more than equivalent" phrasing are achieved.

In the first of a series of such hearings, EPA hearing officer F. M. Covington told about 300 persons the regulations "would allow industrial growth as long as it will contribute to making air cleaner rather than dirtier."

"The new facility ought to offset emissions on a significantly better than one-to-one basis," Pope said in urging adoption of a formula that would detail precisely how much pollution should be cut.

Ilene Weinreb, mayor of suburban Hayward, speaking for the California League of Cities, said the regulations should help industry alleviate economic doldrums and unemployment.

She called for "some understanding and accommodation of industry's needs."

Mission lake to quench 'thirst'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Mission Viejo Co. refuses to stop filling its 125-acre recreational lake in Orange County.

Company president Philip Reilly said in an interview Wednesday that it would be 'impossible" to stop filling the lake, despite California's water shortage, because of legal complications.

State officials say the company has cut back the flow into the lake.

Lake Mission Viejo has been the target of sharp criticism from drought-stricken Northern California, which has complained it is wasting water.

The Water Resources Control Board heard nearly six hours of testimony Wednesday on whether it should force the company to cut off water to the lake, but it put off a decision until March 2.

Mission Viejo says it has promised residents of the Mission Viejo residential community to have the lake filled by July 1 and will face legal problems if it doesn't.

The company contends that filling the lake amounts to nothing more than transferring water from one storage to another.

The lake has a capacity of 3,800 acre feet. It held about 1,300 acre feet of water on Feb. 10, said board spokesman Dean Thompson.

Part of the water came from Northern California via the State Weater Project.

But the Los Angeles Metropolitan Water District says it has agreed to stop taking deliveries on state water for the rest of this year.

Robert Will, Metropolitan's general consel, said he could not say that filling the lake is an unreasonable use of water, even though the district would be 185,000 acre feet short of need without the state water.

He said the deficit would have to be made up through voluntary conservation and ground water.

Jack Robb, engineering consultant for Mission Viejo, said if necessary, the lake could be pumped out for other uses.

Press urges earthquake cooperation

PASADENA (AP)—A geophysicist reportedly in line as President Carter's science advisor says that international cooperation would speed up the search for reliable earthquake prediction methods.

"If the world were our laboratory, we could accumulate this data much more rapidly," Dr. Frank Press said Wednesday during a lecture at the California Institute of Technology.

"We must internationalize our program," he said. "There are not enough earthquakes in one country to provide the necessary amount of data."

Press is currently chairman of the Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and had headed the Caltech earthquake lab from 1957 to 1965.

Press suggested that after the devastating killer quakes that occurred in China this year, that country might be willing to participate in cooperative eatthquake prediction experiments. He said quake-prone countries such as the Soviet Union, Turkey, Japan, and several South American nations should be part of a cooperative program.

Yoshimura faces 25 years 'imprisonment'

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Wendy Yoshimura, a companion of Patricia Hearst when both were fugitives, faces a possible 25-year prison sentence for stashing a terrorists' arsenal in a garage she had rented.

Miss Yoshimura, 33, who has been free on $25,000 bail, is scheduled to be sentenced today on her Jan. 20 conviction on charges of possessing illegal weapons, explosives and materials to make a bomb.

Miss Yoshimura was also convicted of possessing materials with intent to make a destructive device, possession of an illegal weapon and possession of an explosive.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Martin Pulich refused to revoke bail when she was convicted, saying he felt certain she would not flee and "break the trust" of the Japanese-American community which financed her bond.

The arsenal was found during a raid on the garage more than two years before Miss Yoshimura and Miss Hearst met while both were on the run.

She took the witness stand in her own defense but refused to answer questions about her activities after she dropped out of sight on March 31, 1972, just hours after Berkeley police uncovered the weapons cache.

She and Miss Hearst were arrested together in San Francisco on Sept. 18, 1975. Miss Hearst was convicted last year in San Francisco of armed bank robbery. She was sentenced to seven years in prison but is free on $1.25 million bail.

Late bid judged just 'too' late

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seymour Waterman, who said he missed the auction of the "Great White Steamship" because he had a flat tire, has failed in his effort to reopen the bidding.

Waterman was turned down Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Harry Pregerson, who ruled the S.S. Catalina was properly auctioned for $70,000 on Feb. 16.

Waterman, the president of Wilmington Marine Supply Co., had promised to bid $110,000.

'Big Daddy' is to aid Republicans

SACRAMENTO (AP) — One of California's best-known Democrats, state Treasurer Jesse Unruh, is to address a national grassroots conference aimed at solving the woes of — the Republicans.

But an aide to the former "Big Daddy" of the state Assembly, Grover McKean, said Wednesday that Unruh "is certainly not going to give pointers on how to beat Democrats."

More conventionally, President Ford and perhaps Ronald Reagan will attend the conference April 15-17 in Los Angeles. It's said to be the first of its type.

Unruh once lost to Reagan in a run for governor.

According to Assembly GOP leader Paul Priolo of Malibu, Unruh will provide a "perspective, as a Democrat, of what he perceives are problems with the Republican party."

Priolo, asked why Unruh should help Republicans, responded: "He strongly believes in the two-party system."

Valley crime

$2,500 haul for robbers

An Arcadia man told Claremont police late Wednesday night that he was robbed of $2,500 after being kidnaped from the parking lot of Sambo's at 710 S. Indian Hill Blvd.

The victim, 26, an apprentice electrician, said he was accosted by two men when he went to the parked car of a friend to get a package of cigarettes. One, armed with a pistol, ordered him into the car and all three drove a couple of blocks where they stopped, searched him and found the cash.

Then they drove off in the car, leaving the victim afoot near San Jose Avenue and College avenues. He called police and they found the car a few blocks away.

Officers said the victim told them he had borrowed the money in order to buy a car.

The armed robber was described as black, about 24, 25, 5 feet 8 weighing 190 pounds. He wore a checkered, long-sleeve shirt and dark trousers.

Driver robbed by 2 women

A Camarillo resident told Pomona police Wednesday night that two women robbed him after he gave them a ride from a service station.

The victim, 45, an engineer, said he was approached by the pair outside a service station on W. Holt Avenue just before 8 p.m. He said they asked for a ride and he reluctantly agreed. But, the victim said, he drove the pair around Pomona from one location to another and finally told them he was going to return them to the place where he had picked them up.

At that point, one pulled an 8-inch knife and forced the car to the curb at Ganesha Boulevard and Holt Avenue. The pair took his wallet, containing $20 and all his credit cards, and fled. He said he attempted to follow them, but they were picked up by a driver who may have been following.

The victim said the woman with the knife was black, about 20, 5 feet 5 and of medium build. He said she had a 3-inch afro and wore a brown, waist-length coat, dark pants and carried a shoulder bag.

The other, also black, was about 18, 5 feet tall and slim. She wore her hair in corn-rows.

Two men rob gas station

Two men, one wearing a turban and armed with a pistol, robbed a service station attendant at 1344 W. Mission Blvd. in Pomona Wednesday night.

The victim, a 32-year-old man, told police that the pair walked into the station, asked for change and then one put the pistol to his neck and demanded money. After being given a small amount, the pair fled.

The armed man was described as black, about 22, 5 feet 11 weighing 145 pounds. Besides the turban, he wore dark clothing.

Heavy backing in Congress for tax cuts, spending hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heavy majorities in both houses of Congress are now on record in favor of tax cuts and increased federal spending to boost the economy. The next question is how to do it.

First the Senate, on a 72-20 roll call, and next the House, 239 to 169, voted to amend the budget for the current fiscal year to allow tax reductions and spending hikes. But those votes did not commit the lawmakers to any specific plan to prime the economy.

However, the House, before amending the budget on Wednesday to allow a stimulus plan of up to $16.4 billion, indicated it prefers a one-shot rebate plan, such as the $50 per person advocated by President Carter, instead of a permanent tax cut.

By a vote of 258 to 148, the House rejected a Republican plan to reduce individual tax rates permanently by 15 per cent. The GOP, led by Calif. Rep. John Rousselot, argued that the nation has persistently high unemployment because "excessive tax rates .... deter employment and investment."

Rousselot added, "The spread between after-tax take-home pay of the average worker and the level of untaxed unemployment compensation is so small — and in some cases nonexistent — that it encourages many people to take their time about finding new jobs ... "

Rousselot, of San Marino, represents California's 25th Senatorial District which includes Claremont, San Dimas, La Verne, Glendora, Covina, West Covina, Irwindale, Arcadia, San Marino and Temple City.

Democrats called the GOP tax plan a classic example of the trickle-down theory of economics in which money spent by the wealthy is expected to eventually benefit low-income workers.

Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas calculated that the GOP tax cut would be worth 1 per cent of income ($101) to a four-member family earning $10,000 a year but 4 per cent ($3,959) to a family of four with $100,000 income.

Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee, called the Carter rebate plan "hogwash" and predicted Democrats will be hard-pressed to justify it to the people in the next election.

The House budget amendment of $16.4 billion compares to $15.5 billion that Carter recommended and $17.2 billion approved by the Senate.

There are two key differences between the House and Senate versions:

—The House plan envisions tax rebates or cuts for taxpayers and special bonuses to nontaxpayers totaling $12.7 billion, compared to $13.8 billion in the Senate. The House version accounts for changes in the Carter tax plan already approved by the Ways and Means Committee.

—The House added $215 million more than the Senate in special aid to help offset tax revenues lost by states, cities and counties because of the lagging economy and bad weather. The House plan totals $1 billion, a figure that reportedly is supported by Carter.

In addition to the tax cuts and special aid to state and local governments, here is how the plan envisioned by a majority of the House would work over the next seven months:

—$700 million for public-service jobs, such as in hospitals and jails. The aim is to expand from the current limit of 310,000 jobs to 600,000 over the next seven months and to 725,000 in 1978. Carter and the Senate recommended the same amount.

—$60 million for the job-opportunities program, which involves 12-month jobs on local economic-development projects funded partly by the federal government. Neither Carter nor the Senate recommended this.

—$500 million more to start construction on such publicworks projects as schools and hospitals, the same as approved by the Senate. Carter asked for only $200 million more.

—$600 million for special employment training and jobs for young and old Americans, who are hardest hit by unemployment. The Senate figure is the same; Carter asked for only $300,000.

—$800 million for construction of antipollution and recreation facilities and railroad and highway construction. The Senate approved the same amount; Carter made no such request.

Blames Nixon for tragedy

Hunt tells of CIA funds to nations

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt said today that when he was a CIA station chief, he gave money to the governments of Uruguay, Mexico and Japan.

He said the payments were similar to those reportedly made to the regime of King Hussein of Jordan.

Hunt also blamed then-President Richard M. Nixon for what he termed "the horrendous tragedy" of Watergate.

The remarks were made in this Boston suburb during Hunt's first news conference since leaving prison Wednesday after serving a sentence for the Watergate break-in.

He said that making payments to foreign governments was an "honored tradition within the CIA."

"There is nothing illegal about them," he continued. "I have seen pejorative terms used such as bribes. These payments are subsidies."

Hunt said Nixon could have averted "the horrendous tragedy" of Watergate by telling the American people soon after it happened that the men involved in the burglary attempt of Democratic national headquarters were working for him in what he thought was a good cause.

"He was the top one, the man who could have done it," Hunt said of Nixon. "I hold him responsible."

Hunt, 58, recruited the breakin team. He was sentenced to 30 months to eight years in prison after pleading guilty to conspiracy, burglary and illegal wiretapping in the June 1972 break-in at the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington, D.C. Hunt served his time in 10 jails and prisons across the country, and gained parole after paying a $10,000 fine.

'I don't think he was able to perceive what was happening in realistic terms," Hunt said of Nixon. He added that Nixon was "a tragic figure" during the Watergate controversy and was a much weaker leader than he had expected.

Hunt said he did not deal with Nixon and his top White House advisers, but assumed from the amounts of money involved in the case that the Watergate break-in "was a White House-approved activity."

Hunt spoke at a jammed news conference in the offices of his booking agent.

Hunt was released before dawn Wednesday from a minimum-security prison at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida and whisked away in cloak-and-dagger secrecy, eluding reporters.

Three hurt in Pomona car crashes

Three persons were injured in traffic accidents on rain-slick Pomona streets Wednesday.

Shortly before 4 p.m., Francisco Rivas, 38, of Pomona, was injured when the car in which he was a passenger was involved in a collision at Olive Street and Marquette Avenue. Rivas was reported in fair condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police reported that Rivas was riding in a car driven by Nicholas R. Yepez, 19, of Pomona, when it was hit broadside by a car driven by Baltazar M. Garcia, 28, also of Pomona. They said Garcia told them that his car's brakes were wet, and failed to stop the vehicle in time. Neither driver was hurt.

Just after 2 p.m. Jordan W. Tilton was injured when the car in which he was riding was involved in a two-car collision at White Avenue and Center Street. Tilton was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Tilton, of Costa Mesa, was riding with James B. Murphy, 32, of Ontario, when the accident occurred. Neither Murphy nor the other driver, Dennis R. McCoy, 24, of Upland, was injured.

And late Wednesday night, Etta Jane Hale, 48, of Fontana, suffered a possibly-broken nose and facial cuts when her car reportedly hit the rear of a car driven by Julio Cesar Mathis, 22, of Pomona. The accident was at Second Street west of Buena Vista Avenue.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite intense lobbying by President Carter and Vice Pesident Walter F. Mondale, Congress seems unlikely to make sharp reductions in the number of committees with access to intelligence secrets.

The best prospects for some consolidation of committees with access to secret information appear to be in the House of Representatives.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, chairman of the International Relations Committee expressed quick agreement Wednesday with Carter's suggestion that too many people know too much about U.S. intelligence operations.

O'Neill and Zablocki said they would support creation of a House intelligence committee that would become the principal recipient of intelligence briefings.

The Senate created an intelligence committee last year. But the chairman of that panel said he sees no way of keeping information about CIA operations from members of the Appropriations, Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees.

Carter told congressional leaders on Tuesday that he is concerned that seven congressional panels have access to CIA secrets.

He repeated that concern in a nationally broadcast news conference on Wednesday. In addition, Mondale discussed the problem with O'Neill over lunch on Wednesday.

At his news conference, the second since he became President, Carter was asked about published reports that the CIA paid millions of dollars over a 20-year period to King Hussein of Jordan.

Carter declined to comment on the specific allegation but he said CIA covert operations are being reviewed and "I have not found anything illegal or improper."

The President went on to say he thought there was need for "some degree of secrecy" in the handling of intelligence information and said he is working closely with congressional leaders to reduce the number of people with access to such material.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, told reporters he doesn't believe it would be proper to limit access to intelligence secrets to just one Senate and one House committee. Inouye's statemens came shortly after his panel had endorsed the nomination of Adm. Stansfield Turner to head the CIA.

Candidates invited to public forum

Candidates for two seats on the Chaffey Community College board of trustees have been invited to participate in a public forum Friday.

Sponsored by the Student Advisory Council of the Associated Students, the forum will be conducted from 10 a.m. to noon in the free speech area on campus. The council urges persons from the district community to attend.

Nine candidates, including incumbents Georgia Mellon and Merle K. Cox, are running for the college board positions in the March 8 election.

Four of the challengers are from the Corona-Norco area. They are Norco resident Sharon Jeffers and Corona residents Charles E. Rector, Dale D. Borgen and William A. Russell. Other candidates are Kenneth Ketner, Alta Loma; John L. Botkin, Cucamonga, and William H. Thompson, Fontana.

Brooklyn man gets kidney from Moscow

A trans-Atlantic transplant

NEW YORK (AP) — In an episode that doctors dubbed "From Russia With Love," a 32-year-old Brooklyn construction worker has received a new kidney only 48 hours after its original owner, a 16-year-old youth, died in an automobile accident in Moscow.

"This is indeed a testament to the brotherhood of man," said Dr. William Stubenbod, the surgeon who performed the kidney transplant on Jose Serrano at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

Dr. Albert Rubin, who earlier had made the informal arrangement with a Soviet physician that led to the trans-Atlantic transplant, said it came about because Russia's "brain death" law makes organs more readily available.

Dr. Rubin said he learned during a trip to Moscow that organ procurement was "more advanced" there, and last September arranged with Dr. Valery Schumakov of Moscow's Institute of Organ and Tissue Transplant to try the trans-Atlantic operation.

He said an estimated 50,000 persons in this country are receiving dialysis machine treatment while waiting for kidneys to become available for transplants.

The two doctors' first effort three weeks ago failed because the kidney from Moscow arrived here infected.

Then last Saturday, when the young man was killed in Moscow, his body was brought to the institute and his kidneys removed. One was transplanted into a Russian patient, and the other put in a refrigerated preserving solution for shipment to New York.

The kidney was put aboard an Aeroflot flight from Moscow to Kennedy Airport, and Dr. Shumakov telephoned Dr. Rubin to let him know it was on its way.

When the kidney arrived on Sunday, it was taken to the New York Blood Center's facility for preserving organs, and tissue samples were taken to be matched with someone on the waiting list for transplants.

Later Sunday, Serrano got a telephone call advising him to come to the hospital Monday, when the transplant operation was performed.

The doctors said Wednesday that Serrano was doing fine.

Serrano, asked how he felt about having a kidney flown from Moscow, replied: "It feels terrific!"

NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of respondents to an NBC News poll gave President Carter high marks for his performance in office and liked the informality of his dress.

Most of them also said they believed the natural gas shortage was trumped up to boost prices.

The results of the poll, a probability sampling by telephone of 1,600 voting-age Americans taken Feb. 21 and 22, were broadcast by the network Wednesday night and today.

The natural gas shortage was perceived as a price-raising hoax by 58 per cent of those polled.

Stars and Stripes

The first change in the flag of 13 stars and stripes adopted by the Second Continental Congress in 1777 came in 1795 with the addition of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union. Congess passed and President Washington signed an act specifying a flag of 15 alternate red and white stripes and 15 white stars on a blue field. In 1818 Congress established the present basic design.

Carter boosting airline decontrol

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to reduce federal control over airlines is getting a boost from President Carter as well as a new study that says less regulation would save consumers millions of dollars.

At his news conference on Wednesday, Carter said he will send Congress a message identifying the airline industry as a good place to start in a drive to cut government regulation of industry.

The new study, conducted by the General Accounting Office, concluded that less government regulation of the industry would have cut ticket prices by 22 to 52 per cent and saved travelers between $1.4 billion and $1.8 billion in the six years ending in 1974.

In addition, the Civil Aeronautics Board is recommending that Congress pass legislation designed to allow airlines more freedom to set their routes and prices and to give new companies an opportunity to compete for the travelers' dollar.

Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Howard W. Cannon of Nevada, both Democrats, have introduced legislation along the lines recommended by the CAB. Hearings on the bill are scheduled to start on March 21.

In the GAO report released by Kennedy, the agency recommended that airlines rely more on competition than on government regulation to determine service and prices.

It reported that in 1974, for example, a passenger could have flown coach from New York to Los Angeles at an unregulated fare of $96.26. The actual price, regulated by the government, was $139.53.

The GAO cautioned that lower fares would mean less space for some passengers and fewer flights on less profitable routes than the CAB now requires airlines to fly. But it expressed doubt that deregulation would cost many small communites air service, as they have claimed.

The report also said there was reason to believe that "there will be a considerable change in the industry and some economic disorder if regulation were significantly changed ... Efficient airlines would put considerable competitive pressure on less efficient airlines that are now protected by regulation."

The Carter administration is expected to back the Kennedy-Cannon bill, but is offering some suggestions of its own.

"I will undoubtedly differ from Sens. Cannon and Kennedy on details of it," Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said. But he added he doesn't believe the administration should try to introduce its own legislation if it expects to achieve quick regulatory reform.

The secretary said the administration opposes total deregulation in any transportation field because "regulation was designed to prevent powerful economic forces from controlling transportation, using it to obtain competitive advantages, or from dominating a transportation mode in order to force smaller competitors out of business.

Ex-marshal indicted in slaying

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Twelve days after U.S. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell ordered an investigation into the shotgun murder of a Mexican-American construction worker on a deserted country road, a former Texas marshal has been indicted for violating the victim's civil rights.

Frank Hayes, 53, who was marshal in Castroville, is serving a 2-to-10 year sentence for aggravated assault in the case.

A U.S. grand jury in San Antonio returned a two-count civil rights indictment Wednesday against Hayes, his wife, Dorothy, and his sister-in-law, Alice Baldwin.

The indictment said Hayes, by shooting Richard Morales to death with a shotgun on Sept. 14, 1975, violated Morales' constitutional right not to be deprived of liberty without due process. The women were named as accessories after the fact because they transported Morales' body 400 miles and buried it near Carthage in east Texas.

The case was brought to Bell's attention by Mexican-Americans and Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill who protested the assault verdict and sentence.

Bell then issued a statement on Feb. 11 saying, "Because of the exceptional circumstances of the case, I have instructed the civil rights division (of the Justice Department) to present the matter to a federal grand jury although state prosecution resulted in conviction.

"The allegations of abuse of authority by a law enforcement officer are so serious that they would merit presentation to a federal grand jury even had a death not resulted..."

Hayes admitted killing Morales, 27, after arresting him on an outstanding burglary warrant, but Hayes said the shooting was accidental.

A deputy who was with Hayes when Morales was arrested testified that they drove Morales to an isolated country road. The deputy said Hayes ordered him to leave. He said he later heard a shot.

Hayes was charged with murder but last summer was convicted in state court of aggravated assault. He is eligible for parole in less than two years.

Jurors said after the assault conviction that they thought they were convicting him of murder by aggravated assault.

Mrs. Hayes later pleaded guilty to tampering with evidence, a misdemeanor, and received a probated sentence for transporting Morales' body.

Hayes and the two women are expected to be arraigned on the federal civil rights charges within 10 days. Hayes could receive a maximum of life in prison if convicted. His wife and sister-in-law will face a maximum of 10 years imprisonment.

Solution to energy crisis

Some smart alec problem solvers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James Rhodes is learning there are plenty of smartalecks out there.

"Have visitors and guests only in winter. Their body heat will cut your fuel bill," wrote one respondent to Rhodes' advertising campaign on energy sources. "Explain to friends and in-laws that you must live alone from April to November."

The governor is scouring North America for natural gas and solutions to Ohio's energy crisis.

The state spent $12,000 recently on newspaper advertisements soliciting gas supplies in the Southwest. Rhodes and his top energy advisers also have flown to Canada, Texas and Oklahoma in search of natural gas for Ohio.

Peter Susey, deputy director of the Ohio Energy Resource and Development Agency, has seen most of the replies to the advertising campaign. He said many show little sympathy for Ohioans and their gas crisis.

"Some people have just torn the ad out of their papers and scrawled four-letter words on it and mailed it in," Susey said.

Other tips for the governor:

—"Avoid using petroleum based charcoal lighter on picnics. Use precision ground magnifying glass fueled by ever-renewable solar energy to start your fire."

—Haul oil up frozen rivers on 500-gallon "snow sledge fuel tanks," suggested a retired Navy man in Tampa. "These snow sledges can be easily towed by helicopter to and from tanker, of course a safety device will be necessary to (prevent) sudden cut off of tow line between craft and sledge."

—A Phoenix, Ariz. man noted that ornamental gas flames continue to burn around gas-heated swimming pools in the Southwest. "Why don't you get your legislators in Washington to pass some form of emergency legislation and stop this wasteful form of over-consumption in this pro-growth, devil-may-care 'new frontier?'" the writer asked.

Class for pregnant women

Pregnant women make now take advanatage of a new class being offered by the Claremont Community Services Department.

"Moving Through Pregnancy" is a creative movement class designed for women in all stages of pregnancy and concentrates on Lamaze and deep breathing exercises, gentle stretches and relaxation techniques along with a variety of music used to encourage natural body movement.

A fee of $1.50 is charged per class, with a 25 per cent surcharge for non-residents.

Swim lessons

Swim lessons for women and children will be offered starting Tuesday by the Pomona Valley YMCA.

Women's lessons will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. Participants must be 18 or older. Cost is $2 for YMCA members and $13.50 for non-members.

Lessons for tiny tots, ages 3 to 5, will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 to 10:30 a.m. Cost is $15.

Parent-child lessons, in which a parent must accompany the three-month- to 2½-year-old into the pool, will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10:30 to 11 a.m. Cost is $15.

For information, persons may call 623-6433.

Headstart open house

Open house will be held in each of the Headstart classrooms in the Pomona schools between Feb. 28 and March 4. Sessions will be held during the morning hours from 9 a.m. to noon.

Question corner winner

Kathy Rumsey of 4437 Orchard St., Montclair, is a winner in the "Johnny Wonder" question corner which appears in the Progress Bulletin. Her question was "Why did Indians Live in Tepees?" She will receive a radio.

Who's Who

Michelle Fialho, daughter of Mrs. Frances Fialho, 1418 W. Fawn St., Ontario, has been approved for Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. Selection is based on scholarship, leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship, service to the school, and potential for future achievement. Miss Fialho is a graduate of Pomona High School.

Guest speaker

John F. O'Connell of Diamond Bar, assistant dean of students at the Western State University College of Law in Orange County, will be speaker at the fourth annual Law and Order Banquet of the American Legion's 25th District. The program, starting at 7 p.m. Saturday, will be held at the American Legion Post building in Redlands.

Dean's list

Three area students made the dean's list of honor students for the fall term at Manchester College in North Manchester, Ind. They are Richard Herbst, senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Herbst, 2731 E St., La Verne; Jon Neher, freshman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neher, 2373 Bonita Ave., La Verne; and Deborah Silver, junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Silver, 518 Shellman St., San Dimas.

Passion Play

Dorothy Clayton will present a slide show of the famed Passion Play, performed once every 10 years in the Bavarian Alps, during a program March 2 at 2 p.m. at the Upland library.

Chino Adult School classes

The Chino Community Adult School is offering two classes for the "discriminating student" — Highland bagpipes and fine arts.

The bagpipe cosrse will be open to anyone, regardless of previous musical experience.

The fine arts course will deal in oil painting.

The adult school also is offering an expectant parents class. The three-hour course will be scheduled if at least 20 people sign up; and will cover prenatal, delivery and infant care for mother and father.

A leatherworking class currently is being offered by the adult school on Tuesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. in room 15 at Chino High School.

A fee of $3 for the semester course is required, and materials will cost $15.

Enrollments are being accepted by telephone. For further information or enrollments, call 628-1201, ext. 345.

Seek campground hosts

The San Bernardino National Forest is seeking persons interested in becoming involved in forest service activities, primarily campground hosts.

The campground host program requires persons with self-contained travel trailers. The host is given a free campsite within the campground to park his trailer for the season. A Forest Service "Campground Host" sign is posted at the entrance to his campsite to help identify him to the public. Hosts receive training for their various duties and assignments. They are expected to be available from May through September.

The campground host program is designed to enable the recreation visitor to achieve the most satisfying experience possible. The host helps by providing information and answering questions. He may also provide emergency campground clean-up and maintenance when needed.

For further information about this program, persons may contact Dave Flohr, district recreation officer, at the Arrowhead Ranger Station, P.O. Box 7, Rimforest, CA 92378; or phone (714) 337-2444.

Queen signup session

All States Picnic and Parade Inc. will conduct a sign up session for local girls wishing to represent their home states in the annual Ontario event.

The queen's reception will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Colony Park Community Center, 1240 W. 4th St.

All States Picnic and Parade Inc. is a youth organization for single girls from 12½ years old to 21. Young girls may attend the sign up session in order to participate in the queen selection in hopes of being chosen for the royal court. Besides the Fourth of July parade there will be numerous other activities throughout the year.

Offer Beethoven film

The Claremont Public Library will show "Beethoven — Ordeal and Triumph" as its afternoon film program Tuesday, March 1.

The movie depicts the story of Beethoven's life, including his struggle against the deafness which overtook him when his creativity was at its height.

The program will begin at 2 p.m.

Lloyd opposes no-vote pay raises

By PHYLLIS CANNON
Asst. City Editor

No-vote pay raises and increases in fringe benefits which took effect Saturday for members of Congress brought an aggravated yet stubbornly determined comment from Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., West Covina.

Lloyd was one of the very few members of the House of Representatives who voiced opposition to the automatic pay increases, recommended by former President Gerald Ford and a special commission created in 1970.

For members of the House — like Lloyd — it means a pay increase from $44,600 to $57,500 annually.

"Who doesn't need a raise?" asked Lloyd. "And maybe I'm worth it, but I cannot defend the way in which it was done.

"It was wrong that Congress was not required to stand up and be counted. I'm against the do-nothing, get-something situation which existed.

"But this is not the end. The same issue will come up again next year, and I'm going to go to work now to see that any action taken is taken out in the sunlight, with everyone required to cast a vote in public."

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL LANCASTER, R-62nd Dist., Covina, has introduced legislation to increase the amount of fraud bond required of mobilehome dealers.

Current law requires all vehicle dealers, including car dealers and mobilehome dealers, to have a $5,000 fraud bond.

"That amount was designed for automobile dealers and because of the money involved in the purchase of mobilehomes, $5,000 is inadequate," Lancaster said.

His bill would raise the amount of the bond to $20,000 for dealers selling less than 25 mobilehomes the previous year, and to $40,000 for dealers who sold 25 or more.

The bond would be used when a dealer could not follow through on a financial commitment to a customer. Lancaster's bill is sponsored by the Golden State Mobilehome Owners' League.

COMMON CAUSE reports that interest groups contributed a record $22.6 million to candidates for Congress in 1976, nearly double their 1974 contributions of approximately $12.5 million.

The most dramatic increases were in contributions by corporate and business trade association political committees.

In 1976, they contributed more than $7.1 million to congressional candidates, almost 300 per cent more than the $2.5 million they contributed in 1974.

Labor unions continued to hold an edge over business groups providing $8.2 million to congressional candidates in 1976, some $2 million more than they gave in 1974.

"A substantial number of us in Congress believe very strongly that now that we have been out of the Vietnam War for almost four years, we should give the 88 million working people of this country a federal tax reduction," said REP. JOHN H. ROUSSELOT, R-26th Dist., San Marino.

"That would do more than anything to stimulate and encourage the American economy."

WILLIAM H. KOCH, a candidate for Pomona City Council from the city's Second District, has announced Roy O. Day is honorary chairman of his campaign committee.

Koch's campaign headquarters is located at 1270 W. Mission Blvd. For information, persons may call 622-5395.

DOUGLAS E. RAWSON, a Chino businessman, has been appointed campaign manager for Chino school board candidate Paul Peterson.

Peterson is running for a two-year seat in the March 8 election.

For information, persons may call 627-5221.

The CHINO FEDERATION OF TEACHERS (CFT) has announced its endorsement of Paul Peterson, Glenn Schumacher, and Patrick Hooven in the March 8 school board election.

Teachers' union spokesmen said CFT is backing Peterson for the two-year seat open and Schumacher and Hooven for two four-year seats available.

All three of the candidates are educators. Peterson is an agriculture professor at Cal Poly Pomona, and Schumacher and Hooven are high school teachers in Corona and Monrovia, respectively.

2 Alta Loma seniors in Gemco contest

Robert Thorne and Dave Watson, seniors at Alta Loma High School, have been chosen to represent the school in the annual Gemco Scholarship competition.

Based on economics, the contest deals with those students who are knowledgeable in economics and political science. Winning students participated in a discussion on the topic "Is The Energy Crisis Contrived?"

Thorne and Watson will enter further competition on March 23. Previously the competition has been held at the Pomona City Hall. It is assumed that it will be there again, though final word has not been received.

These two students will be competing for three major college scholarships — $1,500, $1,000 and $500. However, every student receives at least a United States Savings Bond.

The award winners and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. D.L. Thorne of Cucamonga and Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Watson of Alta Loma, will be guests of Gemco at the Awards Presentation Dinner, which will be held on May 26. Senior scholarship counselors of major award winners will be invited to attend the dinner.

Alcoholics

Alcoholic mothers have a substantially higher chance of giving birth to a child with birth defects, says the March of Dimes.

TODD P. LISLE, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen H. Lisle, 750 W. Bonita Ave., Claremont, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego. A 1975 graduate of Claremont High School, Seaman Rct. Lisle joined the Navy in October, 1976.

Mother of 3 a candidate

Kathleen Brugger, Ontario mother of three, has announced her candidacy for the board of trustees of the Ontario-Montclair School District in the March 8 elections.

Mrs. Brugger is a graduate of Montclair High School and Chaffey College and holds a bachelor of science degree from Cal Poly. She was a social worker with the mentally retarded in South Dakota for two years and a social worker for the San Bernardino County public social services department for two years.

Mrs. Brugger has been president of the Hawthorne School PTA, historian of Vina Danks School PTA, a member of the Ontario-Montclair PTA Council and group leader of the American Association of University Women.

"My main purpose in running is to bring a fresh perspective to the board," said Mrs. Brugger. "If elected I will work toward placing the needs of children first — allocating more money for each child's book fund, reinstating budget cuts for nurses and nurse's aides — and making board members accessible to the public."

5 named family leaders

Five Pomona students were named 1977 General Mills Family Leaders of Tomorrow. Winning the honor by scoring highest in their schools in a written knowledge and attitude examination administered to seniors throughout the country last Dec. 7 are Elizabeth Martinich, of American Christian Academy; Don J. Hinshilwood, of Ganesha High School; Juanita C. Wilmore of Garey High School; Alicia M. Alcarez of Pomona Catholic High School, and Sally D. Jandral, of Pomona High School.

Each will receive a certificate from General Mills, sponsor of the annual Search for Leadership in Family Living, and will be considered for state and national honors.

The Senate: not exactly overworked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate, often labeled the world's greatest deliberative body, starts late in the day, quits after less than seven hours and prefers not to work weekends — or Mondays or Friday either, for that matter.

A taxpayer-funded Commission on the Operation of the Senate spent 15 months and $500,000 delving into the work habits of the Senate and recommending changes. It published its findings in a 49-page booklet with a ponderous name unlikely to make anyone's best seller list.

But the "Legislative Activity Sourcebook: United States Senate," may emerge as prime reading for trivia lovers.

Some glimpses:

—The Senate was in session 1,180 hours and 45 minutes in 1975, an average of 6 hours and 38 minutes for each day it met.

—Most sessions were on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and the fewest were on Friday.

—Only a dozen times all year were senators called on to meet before 9 a.m. On 54 occasions, the Senate convened at noon, or later.

—On 15 occasions, the Senate day ended before 2 p.m. But more often sessions lasted until between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m., and 26 times, the Senate didn't finish for the day until after 8 p.m.

The report also studied the operation of Senate committees, where legislation is hatched. It found that not all committees are equal.

For example:

—The Appropriations Committee, which considers budgets for all government departments and agencies, met 318 times, the most of any panel.

—The Joint Committee on the Library, scarcely a workhorse, chose a Friday in November for its only session of the year. Report writers omitted what business was transacted.

—Ditto the Joint Committee on Printing, which got together on a Monday in February, and the Joint Committee on Congressional Bicentennial Arrangements, which found time for its only meeting on a Thursday in September.

10 to attend conference for gifted students

Ten first and second grade students from El Camino School in Ontario will take part in the conference of the California Association for the Gifted in San Francisco Friday.

The students, along with their teachers Joan Hanor and Kay Guth, will make the trip by air. Their presentation at the conference will include a demonstration on higher thinking skills, creative dances, a rap session and a display of educational materials.

According to Miss Guth, this is the first time that students will be directly involved in making a presentation at the conference which is expected to draw several thousand teachers and school administrators from all over California.

The El Camino students, teachers and 12 chaperones will meet at Ontario International Airport at 6 a.m. for a 7:15 flight to San Francisco. After their presentation at the conference, they plan to have lunch and go on a sightseeing tour of San Francisco. They plan to make the return trip that same evening.

Miss Guth said that out of the 10 students who will be attending the conference, only one has flown on a plane before.

She also said that each student will go through the regular procedure of having bags checked, holding his own ticket, and placing the identification tags on luggage.

With 15 students in the MGM program for primary grades and only 10 openings for the trip, Miss Guth said they used the gauge of who could most benefit from the trip as a determining factor for attending. Students attending the conference are Michele Medbery, Danielle Burden, Jeff Caulk, David Miller, Brian Wasserman, Stephen Lopez, Steve Taylor, Doug Patterson, Melanie Staggs and Yuhwan Kim.

Woman accidentally wounds husband

A Covina woman accidentally wounded her husband in the arm with a .30-30-caliber deer rifle Tuesday afternoon.

The victim, Dale M. Nessman, 34, was treated at Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina and transferred to the Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center. His condition was termed stable.

Deputies said Nessman and his wife, Lillian, who live at 17040 Coolfield St., were preparing to go to the mountains and Mrs. Nessman was loading the rifle when it discharged, knocking her husband down.

Chicago co. buys Escondido paper

ESCONDIDO, Calif. (AP)— The Escondido Times-Advocate, an afternoon daily with Sunday editions, will be purchased by The Tribune Co. of Chicago, with finalization of the sale expected next month.

Announcement of the purchase agreement was made Tuesday from both Escondido and Chicago. The price and terms were not revealed.

Carlton R. Appleby, publisher of the Times-Advocate and its president since 1965, said he will remain as publisher of the newspaper, which has a circulation of 28,612.

Appleby added the editorial policies and news content will not be changed by affiliation with The Tribune Co., publisher of The Chicago Tribune, The New York Daily News, The Valley News at Van Nuys, Calif.

Appleby's mother, Jerene Appleby Harnish, chairs the board of the Times-Advocate and Appleby's wife, Eileen, is the third board member.

"We chose to deal with The Tribune Co. because of the editorial independence allowed its papers, its forward-looking management, its reputation as a good employer and its concern for product quality and commitment to sound journalism," Appleby said.

Other Tribune Co. properties include television stations in Chicago, New York City, Denver and Duluth; radio stations; two Canadian paper mills and subsidiaries involved in shipping and power generation.

52 mpg on highway

Honda has best gas mileage mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Honda Civic CVCC has proved most miserly on gasoline of the automobiles being offered for sale in the United States, according to the Environmental Protection Agency.

The diminutive Honda posted 52 miles per gallon in highway performance and 40 mpg in the city in the EPA's latest list of gas guzzlers, released recently.

The Volkwagen Rabbit Diesel also rolled 52 highway miles on a gallon of fuel, but placed second to the Honda because of a 37 mpg city total.

Over-all fuel economy in 1977 model cars, the EPA said, is 6 per cent better than last year's models.

Across the industry, EPA said, autos and small trucks tested averaged 18.6 mpg. That is a 34 per cent improvement on 1974.

The EPA tested more than 500 vehicles last fall and early this year to determine emission compliance and fuel economy. An additional 200 prototype vehicles were tested by manufacturers with the results confirmed by EPA.

Placing third through fifth in the mileage sweepstakes were the Datsun B210, 37 mpg city and 50 mpg highway; Honda Accord CVCC, 38 mpg city and 48 highway, and Toyota Corolla, 36 mpg city and 49 highway.

Rounding out the top ten were the Volkswagen Dasher Diesel, 35 mpg city and 47 highway; Mazda 808, 35 mpg city and 42 highway; Mazda GLC, 35 mpg city and 42 highway; Chevrolet Chevette, 31 mpg city and 43 highway, and Dodge Colt, 29 mpg city and 45 highway.

Volkswagen has indicated that the diesel models will not be available until mid-1977.

This year, in addition to listing each automobile's gas mileage, the guide also indicates the average annual fuel cost to operate the vehicle for 15,000 miles when gasoline costs 65 cents a gallon. Those automobiles operating on diesel fuel compute the average annual fuel cost on the basis of 55 cents per gallon.

The EPA actually issued two separate lists, one for 49 states and one for California, which has stricter emissions control standards.

The figures for all 1977 model cars, trucks and vans are being published in the updated second edition of the "77 Gas Mileage Guide," which will be available free of charge from all new car dealers or by writing Fuel Economy, Puebio, Colo., 81009 after March 15.

In the tests the cars were operated by professional drivers on a testing instrument. Use of instrument rather than road testing is more economical for large scale tests and makes it possible for all tests to be conducted the same way each time, officials said.

EPA officials noted they cannot predict the mileage each driver will get. However, they said any driver can reasonably expect to get the same relative fuel economy performance from different models as reported in the EPA estimates.

New opiate of American masses

Russian chides U.S. over horror films

MOSCOW (AP) — "The horrible grin of a gorilla is helping Americans to forget unemployment lines, inflation and the high cost of living," a Soviet movie critic writes in the Literary Gazette.

The critic was reviewing the new version of "King Kong," a spectacle that he said "makes men burst into tears from horror and women scream hysterically."

According to the Soviet view, sensational films like "Kong," "Earthquake," "The Towering Inferno" and "Jaws" are the new opiate of the American masses, providing a release for the fears and frustrations of life in a capitalist society.

The Soviet press regularly pans these films when they appear in the West, although there is talk of importing "Jaws" for Soviet audiences next year.

"It's a classic adventure film," says one Russian close to the film community. "We see it in the mold of Joseph Conrad or Robert Louis Stevenson. There's enough social motive in the film and enough excitement. You just have to chop out the bloody parts."

Another review of "King Kong" in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, pointed out that the original version of the film was made during the depression of the 1930s.

"It is no coincidence that now that the Western world has again entered a crisis period, a modernized version of 'King Kong' has been released," Pravda commented.

The movie "leads its audiences away from hard reality to the world of illusion and keen sensations," the party organ said. But it added that American audiences have become more sophisticated since the first "King Kong" was made, and producers now are compelled to add a veneer of "socio-political, pseudo-problems."

"The day of the frankly empty films of Hollywood has passed away," the reviewer continued. So there are corrupt politicians and gangsters in "The Godfather," violations of building codes in "The Towering Inferno" and greedy local officials in "Jaws."

The pseudo-problems in "King Kong" are "the thirst for oil, spy satellites and bribery by corporations and state officials — all true signs of the times in today's America," Pravda wrote.

Russians flock to see American movies whenever they are screened. But the Soviet government is careful about what it imports from the West. Films of pure sensation, horror and fantasy are out, with rare exceptions.

Classics starring James Cagney, Clark Gable, Gary Cooper and the like are popular at theaters that specialize in foreign films, and the audiences are thoroughly knowledgeable about earlier eras in Hollywood. But the classic "Frankenstein" and "Dracula" have not been shown, and the new wave of exorcism films is also taboo.

Sometimes such films as "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" and "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" which are criticially acclaimed at home make it onto Soviet screens.

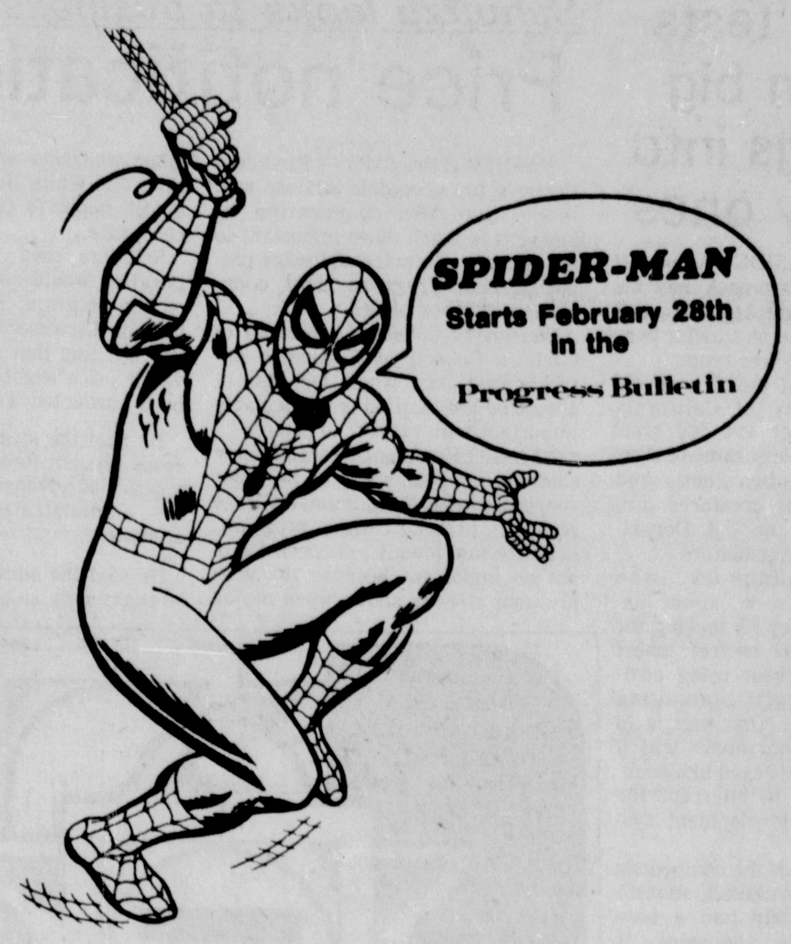
SOLAR HOUSE — Larry Brown, 24, a former University of Michigan student, stands in front of the solar house he designed and built just north of Ithaca, Mich. There are seven solar collectors that change the sun's energy to solar heat for the three-bedroom house.



Want to call President? here's how

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pick up your phone a week from Saturday and give the President a call.

You might not get through the selection system they're setting up to handle his first talk show. But if you do, you can ask or tell him almost anything.

The system designed for "Ask President Carter," the two-hour broadcast talk-a-thon between the President and the public, will let only 20 callers reach the White House at any one time. A White House aide says the calls will be prescreened — but not for content.

There will be a seven-second delay between the words as they are spoken and when you'll hear them on the air. The CBS radio network, which will carry the show, will use that seven seconds to catch and cut off anyone who becomes abusive or obscene.

Carter will take the calls from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. EST in the Oval Office. His aides say he chose the time to give working people at home on a Saturday afternoon an opportunity to reach him. He'll probably sit in an easy chair, listen through a speaker phone and talk through a microphone around his neck.

A television camera will record the proceedings for delayed rebroadcast if the networks choose to carry portions of the show. Walter Cronkite of CBS News will be moderator. No final decision has been made on whether any reporters will be present.

"But I don't think they will," says Barry Jagoda, a 33-year-old former employe of CBS and NBC. Jagoda now handles the President's media and public affairs. Jagoda, who is at the center of preparations for the show, says that matter has not been fully discussed.

Nor will he reveal the toll-free number that will connect you with the President.

"You'll dial a 900-number. That's the first time a 900-number has ever been used. It's a toll-free 900-number, as opposed to an 800-number. That's so the 800-system doesn't get overloaded .... We'll announce the number next week," he said.

If you decide to call, here's what Jagoda says will happen:

"Somebody will answer the phone and say, 'The White House, ask President Carter.' If you're lucky. The chances are, though, the phone will ring busy .... There probably will be hundreds of thousands of people who don't get their questions answered."

Each call the President takes will have to have survived a process of elimination handled by telephone company computers.

Jagoda says each call will compete first with hundreds of others at local telephone switching stations. Two calls will be selected at each local station by a computer programmed to choose them for geographical balance. The two chosen calls will then be routed from the local station to one of 10 regional switching centers.

"Each of those 10 will let six calls through — again balanced geographically. So you've got 60 calls coming into Washington at a time. Now we've only got 20 lines in Washington, so we'll get 20 phone calls at the White House at a time."

CBS operators will answer those 20 lines.

Jagoda says they'll say: "May we have your name and phone number? We want to verify the authenticity of this call. Thank you very much.' They'll write the name and phone number down and give it to somebody else, who calls back directory assistance in that distant town," Jagoda says.

When directory assistance verifies there is such a person with that number in that town, an operator will call that person back — "In the order in which the calls are received," Jagoda said. The operator will say, "'Mr Doe, this is the White House. Please hold on.' And he's in line to get through to the Oval Office."

The operator will put John Doe's name and address on a small computer screen. It will appear on an identical screen, the size of a small television set, in the Oval Office in front of Cronkite and the President. They will respond to the calls on the screen in sequence.

Jagoda says it will go this way: "'Hello, this is Jimmy Carter, Mr. Doe. What's your question, please?' Or, 'Mr. Doe, this is Walter Cronkite, do you have a question for President Carter?' If in Cronkite's judgment he (Carter) isn't fully responsive, Cronkite will follow up, if he wants to. He is a reporter. I would hope he would."

"No, not at all. There are folks in this country who think they have points to make to the President. And they're fully entitled to make those points. What you and I think is insane might be fully sane to the next person."

What if they're abusive or obscene?

"Well, that's something that CBS News will have to judge ... in the seven-second delay."

Jagoda said any abusive or obscene statements would be overridden in those seven seconds with a recorded announcement: "This is 'Ask President Carter.' Our phone number is 900-whatever. Please call."

What happens to the obscene or abusive caller?

"Well, CBS News would probably transfer him over to the Secret Service or to the police .... I would say that any caller that is obscene or abusive because they would be in violation of the law, might have a police problem .... We'd have their name and phone number.

"But this isn't designed to discourage anyone from calling and griping. In fact, this is designed to encourage griping. It's like writing a letter to a newspaper editor.

His tests turn big bugs into tiny ones

RIVERSIDE (AP) — If Bruce Hammock has his way, some big bugs will grow up to be smaller bugs that eat fewer crops.

Helping the 27-year-old University of California researcher are 500 giant cockroaches, some of them three inches long, and other test creatures provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Hammock, who specializes in insect endocrinology, is looking for a way to control insect pests without using environmentally damaging pesticides. One way is to find a hormone which could be sprayed like an insecticide to interrupt the insect's development system.

"Some of the compounds make the insect mature very quickly into a very tiny adult," he said. "It won't reproduce and of course it doesn't eat very much."

He added, "Some of these compounds may offer potential for controlling agricultural insects," adding compounds similar to the ones he's testing are already on the market. He's been working on this project about eight years, and his studies contributed to the development of the chemicals now available.

He uses two groups of chemicals, one called "juvenile hormone mimics," and the other "anti-juvenile hormones."

Hammock said the results of what he's currently doing probably won't help farmers for at least 10 years. He says the chemical industry usually estimates it takes that long from test tube to field.

"Sure, cockroaches are almost universally despised," Dr. Hammock says "But these are raised in sterile lab conditions. They're not tracking filth from one place to another. I'm putting cockroaches to good use."

And if they somehow did escape, he says, they would almost certainly die. Because they have been "spoiled" in near-perfect lab conditions, they just would not be strong enough to survive.

"They would do absolutely no damage to crops if they escaped," he said.

What about harmful effects? Could the chemicals accidentally affect humans too, and turn regular size people into midgets?

"You can never prove a compound is safe," he answers. "I can't prove Coca Cola is safe. All that can be said is that after lengthy testing at tremendous dosages, the compounds have so far proven safe for mammals."

Destitute denied bare necessities, suit claims

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California and 55 of its 58 counties have been accused in a Superior Court suit of failing to provide the bare necessities of life to 50,000 destitute residents.

The suit filed Tuesday in Superior Court charges that all the counties except Los Angeles, San Francisco and Stanislaus have failed to establish adequate grant levels for indigent recipients of General Assistance (GA) aid.

The complaint, by the Western Center on Law and Poverty and the California Rural Assistance said monthly allotments are as low as $2 in Sierra County, and range as high as $167 a month in Los Angeles County.

"There are people in California living in abandoned cars and tool sheds and picking their food out of garbage cans," said Carol Scott, one of the attorneys filing the lawsuit in Superior Court.

Schultze looks to business

Price notification key to plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's top economic adviser said today that the cooperation of business is much more important to the success of a price and wage prenotification program than cooperation of labor unions.

Charles L. Schultze, chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers said "the whole business of advanced notification is particularly important with respect to prices."

AFL-CIO President George Meany said earlier this week he will not cooperate with the administration's planned prenotification program. Schultze said Meany's cooperation is not so important because the government already knows when major labor contracts are up for negotiation. The White House said Tuesday it still hopes to convince Meany to cooperate.

Schultze said that the administration would consult with Meany on the program. He said there has been no discussions with labor unions yet, but said that one successful advance price negotiation already has been conducted with U.S. Steel.

He said the steel company scaled down a recent steel price increase as a result of advance discussions with the administration on price increases.

He said the administration should be ready with an announcement of a comprehensive anti-inflation program, including the wage and price notification process, within a month or two.

He said the program will also included "an early warning system" on shortages and bottlenecks in the economy.

The prenotification plan will be entirely voluntary, Schultze told reporters at a breakfast meeting, adding he doesn't even like the term prenotification.

"The word prenotification is awfully darned formal. What we're talking about is a set of procedures where there will be advanced discussions," he said.

High bread demand set

The study, conducted by Progressive Grocer, an industry trade publication, based its rankings on 30,000 interviews with adults, covering 900 product categories. Statistics show that 96.7 per cent of the respondents use bread. Other items in high demand include table salt, flour, mayonnaise and mayonnaise-type dressing, catsup, margarine and granulated sugar.

Former S.S. agent indicted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a former Secret Service agent who once guarded United States Presidents on charges he stole 18,500 rounds of ammunition belonging to the service.

Frederick Nagel, 53, of Fountain Valley, a Secret Service officer for 18 years before his dismissal last June, was charged with 10 counts of theft of government property.

The indictment, issued Tuesday after a nine-month investigation, said .38-caliber high velocity shells, hollow-point and wadcutter bullets and No. 4 buckshot and 12-gauge slug shells were taken from a Seal Beach firing range used by the Secret Service.

20-cent tax increase slated for polls in May

S.B. board to leave it up to voter

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Voters in several unincorporated areas of the West End of San Bernardino County will be asked May 31 to approve a 20-cent property tax increase for fire protection.

An estimated 1,400 residents in San Antonio Heights north of Upland, College Heights north of Montclair and the Mountain View area near Ontario will be affected by the San Bernardino County Service Area 38 tax override election.

CSA 38 partially finances California Division of Forestry (CDF) fire-fighting operations in the West End communities.

San Bernardino County supervisors this week scheduled the special election in the CSA 38 Improvement Zone G. The area includes numerous unincorporated county sections in the desert and valleys.

The areas rely on CDF protection because they are outside cities and fire districts.

Voters will be asked to approve an increase in the CSA 38 tax rate ceiling from the current 18 to 38 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. Plans are to boost the rate over the next few years, with the 38-cent maximum not reached until 1980-81.

CDF officials have warned that without the increase, the agency's property tax revenues next fiscal year will fall $486,000 short of meeting manpower, equipment and other needs. If that happens, some of the CDF stations may be closed during the winter months.

Some controversy has been generated over the fact Kaiser Steel plant of Fontana was excluded from the potential tax increase. Kaiser is not part of CSA 38's Improvement Zone G. That zone was created two years ago for the purpose of excluding Kaiser from a similar tax override proposal which was defeated by voters.

Several supervisors, including Robert Townsend of Chino and Joe Kamansky of Upland, have favored exemption of Kaiser. They have noted the plant already faces enough problems including a sales decline which resulted in layoffs of 2,000 workers.

If Kaiser was included in the override proposal — and it was approved by voters — the plant would pay $165,000 in additional property taxes each year.

And, the tax increase proposal would only be 13 cents instead of 20 cents if Kaiser was included because of the plant's large share of CSA 38 tax revenues.

Supervisors Dennis Hansberger and Robert Hammock had earlier raised objections over Kaiser's exemption, but changed their minds this week.

Pay cuts included in MSAC contract

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Mt. San Antonio College Board of Trustees passed a tough proposal for a new teacher's contract Wednesday night that calls, among other things, for some pay cuts and longer hours.

The board proposal, and one submitted by the faculty association last December, now become starting points in negotiations for a new master contract.

The negotiations are scheduled to start at 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Not a dissenting voice was raised at the public hearing which preceded the adoption of the board proposal. Board chairman Richard Todd said he had been told to allow 1½ hours for the hearing which lasted less than 10 minutes.

Pat Perez, president of the faculty, later said the teachers decided to voice no opinions at the public hearing because "it would have served no purpose at this time."

The board did receive three letters favoring its proposal from members of its advisory board. The only person to speak at the hearing was John Guthrie of Pomona, who said that while the contract proposal "seemed quite reasonable" some of the provisions appeared somewhat harsh.

He said he particularly questioned a proposal that would allow the administration to split the teachers' working hours at will between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m., and one restricting medical leave.

The proposal also calls for raising working hours from 30 to 35 hours a week, a pay cut for part-time teachers in the evenings, and stricter requirements for raises.

The teachers' proposal, on the other hand, seeks a pay adjustment based on the cost of living plus three per cent, more extensive medical coverage and more time off.

Indication of a rift between the board and the faculty came in another form Wednesday.

The board instructed College President Eldon E. Pearce to notify all 27 department heads that they may be reassigned next year to other responsibilities.

The action came after a task force composed of administrators and teachers investigated the feasibility of changing the education system of the college from departments to divisions.

The proposal would abolish department chairs as presently used, and would divide the curriculum into eight divisions with 38 sub-chairmen.

ONE BIG MESS

A Claremont city crew washes down paint spilled from a truck in the 1200 block of N. Indian Boulevard. A 5-gallon can and four 1-gallon cans of paint fell from the back of a truck. The driver apparently was unaware of the spill. A Claremont maintenance truck drove by shortly after the incident, and the crew washed the spilled paint into a nearby sewer without damaging the street.

For Expo 81 liaison

Mayors' committee urged

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Valley mayors have indicated support of a proposal by Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire to form a mayors' liaison committee on Expo 81.

In a letter to the mayors of Chino, Claremont, La Verne, Montclair, Ontario, Upland, Walnut and Pomona, Lepire expressed concerns about the difficulty in obtaining information on the proposed international exposition scheduled for the Ontario Motor Speedway.

"We, in Pomona, are constantly receiving bits and pieces of information about Expo 81, but are unable to get clarification or confirmation on what we hear. I presume you are experiencing the same problem," Lepire said in his letter.

The formation of a mayors' liaison committee is vital to the exchange of information between the cities on the world fair that could have long range effects on the valley, he noted.

Lepire explained the committee's purpose as "to act as a center for verification and distribution of information to our respective councils and citizens. This would indicate to the Expo 81 promoters that our valley is united and that we will work toward what's best for it."

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair concurred with Lepire's thinking. The committee would be a "vehicle to express our concerns and do whatever we felt necessary to protect the interests of the communities," he said.

He stressed the importance of the committee not being a part of the Expo 81 Commissions established by Expo President Richard Pittenger.

George Gibson, mayor of Upland, and Claremont Mayor Bertye Smith, both voiced doubt if the committee was really necessary at this point because of the problems Expo 81 Corp. has encountered in obtaining financing. But they expressed willingness to go along with the idea and support the other cities at this time.

The city councils of Claremont and Upland are the only two cities in the valley which have taken formal action opposing the proposed fair.

Mayor Bob McLeod of Chino said the City Council there is "kind of up in the air on the overall project" and has not as yet taken a position on the issue. He said it was doubtful, however, that Chino would join with the Expo 81 promoters in their commissions.

He supported the mayors' liaison committee idea, however, saying it might be a means of solving a mutual problem of lack of dissemination of information.

Mike Morales, La Verne mayor, said "I think we should work together in order to find out what direction we're heading down." Cooperation between valley cities should be emphasized wherever possible, he added.

Paul Treadway, mayor of Expo 81's host city of Ontario, said the committee would be a means of informing the other cities "what's going on and the progress of Expo 81."

Treadway reported that he has agreed to co-chair the committee with Lepire.

Passenger traffic at OIA rises 17.4%

Passenger traffic at Ontario International Airport surged in January, rising 17.4 per cent above the same period a year ago.

Last month the airport handled 120,019 air travelers compared with 102,195 in the first month of 1976.

Air cargo activity also increased, though at a more modest rate. A total of 472,712 pounds of air cargo was handled at OIA in January 1977, a 5.1 per cent increase over the 448,450 pounds handled last year.

Despite the increase in passengers and air cargo, flight operations were off during the month. The total landings and take-offs logged at the airport in January was 13,463, down 7.4 per cent from the 14,540 recorded a year ago.

The nine airlines that serve OIA accounted for 2,551 operations (off 5.9 per cent); military flying was down 28 per cent to 1,121 operations; general aviation activity dropped 5.6 per cent from 8,916 to 8,419 operations; and alternate operations (aircraft diverted to OIA when other airports are closed) went down from 11 to 2. Air taxi activity showed the only growth, rising 1.9 per cent from 1,344 to 1,370 operations.

Bonita school enrollment dips

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Build hundreds of new homes in an area and one would expect to find hundreds of new students crowding into the schools. In the case of the Bonita Unified School District, however, that may not be the case.

Bewildered school officials Wednesday night presented enrollment reports to the school board that showed — despite massive building activity in La Verne and San Dimas — that school enrollment has actually declined over the last two years. The district has about 7,600 students.

"We have 157 less school children in our district than we had two years ago," revealed Assistant Supt. Howard Wigell. "It's hard to believe that with all of the new houses being built in our district that we are not seeing a corresponding increase in enrollment."

Bonita school administrators have been anticipating a growing enrollment for months now, but growth has failed to materialize.

The current budget for operating Bonita's 12 schools was predicated on enrollment estimates that showed the district gaining in students, not losing.

Less students means less money and current enrollment in Bonita schools has meant the loss of more than $140,000 in state revenues that had been budgeted.

That money, and another $140,000 school administrators recently discovered the district was not entitled to, means schools will have to do with less money than anticipated this year.

Bonita school Supt. James Johnson also believes the lost funds will make it impossible for the district to even come close to salary demands being made by school teachers and classified employes.

"We simply do not have the money to pay the salaries the two groups are demanding," he said.

Johnson also believes the lack of growth in school enrollment shows smaller households are moving to La Verne and San Dimas and larger families are moving away from the area.

"We used to figure on about two new school children fo every new household," he said. "We are now seeing only two students out of every three households."

Johnson believes enrollment in the district will eventually grow slightly, but the anticipated growth will not be nearly as high as administrators had originally expected.

"We have the facilities to educate more students than we now have," he said. "So an increase in enrollment could certainly save us some money."

'Our House' training volunteers

"Our House," operated by the Claremont Youth Resources Group, Inc., at 480 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, has scheduled its semi-annual volunteer training course between Feb. 28 and March 10.

Those interested in more information may phone Joanne at 626-8511, extension 3038 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., or Rich at 624-1484 evenings.

"Our House," a private, volunteer service organization, is a referral, crisis-intervention and counseling group which began serving the Claremont area in 1969.

Training will be divided into sessions totaling 21 hours, and will use psychiatrists, mental health workers, and other professional persons in the community as well as "Our House" staff members.

Supervisors seek grand jury reform

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors want a state law that will bring grand jury practices more in line with the times.

The board voted this week to ask the state legislature for reforms after Chairman Ed Edleman charged the present system was "archaic" and not in keeping with the 14th Amendment of the Constitution that guarantees all persons "due process of law."

Edelman said the Grand Jury of California is the only body in the judicial system which does not have to allow counsel for those who appear before it.

"This is very unfair," he declared. "Persons who are summoned before the grand jury are not lawyers who can protect themselves from self-incrimination. They frequently give information to the grand jury which can be used against them for indictments."

Furthermore, Edelman contended, the grand jury is so overburdened right now that it can't do an adequate job in both civil and criminal cases.

The grand jury, as constituted, is selected from a panel of prominent residents. Its job is to consider information in criminal cases for possible indictment, to investigate practices in city and county government, and to watch over the conduct of public officials.

Reforms sought by the supervisors include:

—Use of two grand juries, one for civil and another for criminal cases.

—Two-year staggered terms for the civil grand jury which would continue to be nominated by Superior Court judges and selected by lot.

—Permit witnesses before the criminal grand jury to have an attorney with them to advise them during grand jury interrogations.

Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum questioned the need for a new state law, contending that legislation already permits the county to have two grand juries if it so desired.

He said a second "standing" grand jury would cost $100,000 to $200,000 a year.

But Edelman said he wanted a state law that would "mandate the establishment of a second jury."

Claremont City Council cool to Expo proposal

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council has given a cold reception to a supporter of Expo 81, even to the extent of refusing to appoint a person to a public information commission.

Jack Kelly of Santa Fe Federal Savings and Loan Association, Ontario, this week asked the City Council to appoint some one to serve on a public information commission being formed to gather and disseminate facts about the proposed world's fair at the Ontario Motor Speedway.

The council previously had voted by a 4-1 margin to oppose the fair.

Noting that he had discovered a communications gap last fall between Expo 81 and neighboring cities, Kelly said that "every city should have input through a commission." Since between 27 million and 50 million would be expected to attend a fair, Kelly said that he has written to 187 cities and nine California counties and asked that each send a representative to serve on a public information commission.

"Mr. Kelly, did you have trouble breathiing last Friday?" Councilmember Claire McDonald asked. "How about the sewage problem in this area?"

Kelly did not try to answer either question, but said that commission members may be pro or con. He said that a workshop meeting has been scheduled at OMS Feb. 26.

When Mayor Bertye Smith suggested that an appointment "be made tonight or take it under advisement," Councilman Richard Newton said that the city having a member on the commission "would imply some form of endorsement. We're doing what we can to defeat it (Expo 81.) To be actively involved would mean support."

Shift in corporate ethics?

A survey published in the prestigious Harvard Business Review suggests that corporation executives are more cynical about the level of ethics in their industries than any Nader raider.

For instance, when posed a hypothetical situation in which under-the-table payments could help win a big, profitable contract, 42 per cent of the executives said they would refuse to pay a bribe no matter what the consequences. But only nine per cent said that the average executive in the same situation would refuse to pay.

The question was part of a survey conducted by Steven N. Brenner and Earl A. Molander of Portland State University, in which the views of 1,227 representative business officials were compared with responses in a 1961 study.

Although 27 per cent of the executives said that ethical standards in business are higher today than in 1961, and 41 per cent said they were the same, 32 per cent said they were lower. More significant, by a ratio of better than two to one, those executives who see a trend either way believe it is in the direction of lower standards.

Despite what executives may think of themselves, however, Brenner and Molander found that major shifts have taken place in the business community which indicate that business officers today are putting their customers ahead of their stockholders and are incorporating social and humanitarian considerations in their daily planning.

Declare the authors: "Those critics who continue to characterize the American business executive as a power-hungry, profit-bound individualist, indifferent to the needs of society, should be put on notice that they are now dealing with a straw man of their own making."

What's Soviet equal of 'nuts'

It's been said before that the Soviets can outcapitalist the capitalists any time. In the matter of negotiating television coverage of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, however, their greed may prove to be too much even for free-spending Americans.

Confronted with a Russian demand for an astronomical $100 million for exclusive TV rights to the games — $50 million for the rights and $50 million in equipment and facilities — the three major American networks bowed out, at least temporarily. One network later claimed to have won the plum, although this was not confirmed by the Russians.

In the meantime, a little known corporation called SATRA (Soviet-American Trade), which sells Russian-made automobiles and farm equipment to Europe and North America, had announced it would handle the broadcast.

It might be all for the best if the Americans are priced out of this particular deal. The Soviets are not only planning to make the 1980 Olympics the greatest international propaganda extravaganza they have ever mounted, they apparently hope to get American technical know-how to underwrite the modernization of their television system in the bargain.

Nyet to that, or whatever the Russian equivalent of "Nuts" is.

On second thought, the comrades have a lot of oil and we have an abundance of Howard Cosell. Maybe we can work out some kind of arrangement after all . . .

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

It isn't what you tell other people that makes the difference . . . it is what you tell yourself . . . for you have within you a monitoring device that hears every word you speak . . . but more than that, every thought you think.

What do you tell yourself every day? . . . that you are a failure . . . even when you are impressing it on others that you are not . . . Are you looking for ways to get out of something . . . but you are inwardly hoping someone will think you're still trying? . . . You cannot escape you and what you think of yourself . . . and that is far more important than what others are thinking . . . so when you can be honest with the real person of you . . . then never fear that you will be honest with everyone else.

Thoughts

And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man has nowhere to lay his head." — Matthew 8:20.

"Home is the place where, when you have to go there, they have to take you in." — Robert Frost, American poet.

Pampered Californians

Dear Editor:

Your headline of Feb. 2 entitled "West Shivers to Aid East" is an insult to every person east of the Rockies. Either you've never experienced cold weather and its hardships, or you simply wanted to appeal to a bunch of pampered Californians who can't bear the thought of an unheated pool during the winter months.

When are people out here going to grow up? When are you going to do some courageous and responsible reporting? Shivering, huh? Well if this is shivering, then what do you say to a person with a frozen-over toilet? What do you say to the kid who doesn't have a hot meal or even a hot chocolate as he sits in the house wearing a coat, hat and mittens? Sound crazy? Well it's not. I've been there.

Claremont Symphony

Dear Editor:

Claremont is most fortunate to have a truly community orchestra of the caliber of our Claremont Symphony which has grown from small beginnings 24 years ago to an organization of more than 90 players, all of whom play for the pleasure of playing good music. The most recent concert in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, on Feb. 6 was given to a full house with people actually turned away.

Members of the orchestra are greatly indebted to the hard work, vision and fine musical ability of our conductor, George Denes, who not only challenges us with great music but brings great artists to be our soloists. At our February concert, Pierre d'Archambeau, who has concertized extensively in Europe and on the East Coast, made his first West Coast appearance with the Claremont Symphony Orchestra. He received a standing ovation after playing the Beethoven Concerto and played an additional number unaccompanied on his Stradivarius violin which formerly belonged to Fritz Kreisler. It was a long-to-be remembered experience for both audience and orchestra. I should add that Mr. and Mrs. d'Archambeau were delighted with their week in Claremont.

Gulf denies withholding gas

WASHINGTON — Jerry McAfee is an affable, avuncular fellow, with a benign face, who looks more like a minister than an oil tycoon. As chairman of the mighty Gulf Oil Corporation, he took offense at our recent charge that Gulf had withheld natural gas from its lower-paying customers.

We wrote in the February 14 column that Gulf in 1971 began cutting back the flow to Texas Eastern, a giant pipeline serving 16 states. Yet the oil company, we suggested naughtily, "seemed to have plenty of gas to sell other customers at higher prices."

The ABC television network invited McAfee to confront me on the "Good Morning America show." "By golly," said the friendly oilman, "we have been producing every cubic foot of gas that we've been able to. Our people have been working overtime day and night."

I noted that Gulf had contracted to pump 625 million cubic feet of gas into the pipeline every day but that the actual deliveries had been closer to 400 million cubic feet.

"The temporary shortfall that has been involved has been the result of circumstances beyond our control," he explained.

I read to him the verdict of an administrative law judge, suggesting that Gulf withheld "gas from the interstate market until the price has been driven up in violation of federal antitrust laws."

"We thoroughly, emphatically, completely dispute it," said McAfee.

"Isn't it true . . ." I asked, "that at the same time you've been withholding this gas from Texas Eastern — gas that you would have been required under the contract to sell at a very cheap rate — you had been selling gas at far more expensive rates to other customers?"

"The gas that we've been selling intrastate Texas," McAfee said, "has been gas that's completely outside the Texas Eastern supply area."

I pointed out that Gulf had an "unconditional contract" with Texas Eastern, not limited to any specific supply area. "In other words," I suggested, "you have plenty of gas as long as the price is right."

"No, that's wrong," protested McAfee. He repeated that the "contract calls for us to deliver gas to the Texas Eastern Company from a particular area. We are doing that."

The brief debate goes to the heart of the natural gas controversy — that is, the nagging public suspicion that the oil companies have been holding back gas for higher prices.

Now the House Investigations Subcommittee, headed by Rep. John Moss, D.-Calif., has added its voice to the controversy. In a detailed report today on the Gulf Oil case, the subcommittee has totally confirmed our findings.

The report charges that "Gulf has failed to meet its contractual . . . obligation to deliver full contract volumes to Texas Eastern," yet at the same time, "Gulf has made other natural gas sales at higher prices during the time it has been underdelivering to Texas Eastern."

Adds the document sternly: "Gulf and Texas Eastern may have engaged in a conspiracy in violation of federal law to withhold gas from the interstate market until the price is right."

The reason the company failed to deliver all the gas it had promised, according to the report, was "a failure to develop the many leases it already had."

The subcommittee points out that the company "expended only an average of $15 million annually in Texas and Southern Louisiana on gas exploration." The congressmen considered this to be petty change compared to the $140 million that Gulf rakes in from interstate gas sales each year.

Concludes the report: "Gulf has violated the Natural Gas Act by failing to meet its commitment to deliver 625 million cubic feet per day to Texas Eastern."

BUSINESS BIAS — In the past, U.S. embassies have functioned virtually as branch offices for private business interests. The State Dept., of course, is supposed to protect American interests abroad, but it is not required to adapt U.S. foreign policy to please the corporations.

The State Dept. has often taken its policies, for example, right out of the executive suites of the oil companies. When Big Oil couldn't get what it wanted in foreign countries, the embassies tried to get it for them.

Now all this is going to change; the tail will no longer wag the dog, United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young told us. U.S. foreign policy will be determined in the White House, not the corporate board rooms, he said. American corporations operating overseas will be expected to help carry out U.S. policy, rather than the other way around.

For example, U.S. banks that have made heavy loans to the white regimes of southern Africa will be asked to pressure those countries into changing their racial policies, Young told us.

Poor must earn their way

If the U.S. Supreme Court were required to spell out our nation's civil rights policy in 10 words or less, it could not be said better than this: "Your rights end where my nose begins."

That is the essence of the most recent Supreme Court decree on suburban housing.

White suburbs may not conspire to keep blacks out. That decision was proclaimed last April. That if any white suburb conspires to keep blacks out, then a federal judge can order that suburb to permit low-income public housing. That protects black rights to move out and up and into any neighborhood they can afford.

But the January Supreme Court decision states that white communities where the issue is not black and white cannot be forced to permit low-income public housing.

If there is no evidence of racial bias, then local codes are constitutional, low-income multiple housing may be kept out.

If these rulings seem to be in conflict, remember the criterion: Whatever your color or my color, your rights end where my nose begins.

One of several problems contributing to the bankruptcy of the cities is the continuing black-white strife. Fortunately, and properly, it has moved from the streets to the courts, but the drain on city resources continues.

In Chicago there are race-related suits involving the city's police and fire departments that will not be adjudicated for years.

Other lawsuits which clog the courts relate to discrimination in hiring and housing.

The County Bar Assn., of all organizations, should be colorblind — but it is not.

The Cook County Bar Assn. is mostly black, so it wants mostly black judges appointed whether they are qualified or not.

The CBA resists the "merit system" of selecting judges to the circuit, appellate and state supreme court benches and demands that blacks must be appointed "regardless of who is best qualified."

Now the rule of thumb which says: "Your rights end where my nose begins" should tell them that they are, in fact, proposing discrimination; that any enforceable discrimination is a dangerous legal weapon which cuts both ways.

What the law now says is that poor people, whatever their color, who want to live in more elegant suburbs must earn their way.

The specific case which spawned this most recent Supreme Court decree related to the Chicago suburb of Arlington Heights. Arlington Heights is not all white. But Arlington Heights does not want in its midst a 190-unit low-income townhouse project — and the Supreme Court says it does not have to allow such a project.

The property owners of Arlington Heights also have rights. Your rights end where my nose begins — and vice versa!

Just in jest

There is more than one way of beating today's high cost of living. Did you know, for instance that it is possible in this country to become a convert of mail order religion and, for as little as $3, be ordained as a minister? — But what has that to do with beating the high cost of living, you ask? — Well, for one thing, after getting your $3 ministerial diploma, you could start a church in your home and thereby enjoy certain types of tax immunity.

What's more, as a member of the cloth, you would also be entitled to various ministerial discounts on many of your purchases. And every now and then you might pick up a wedding fee and maybe even a funeral or two. — Not a bad return for a $3 investment! But then, as has so often been pointed out, America is definitely the Land of Opportunity.

Virginia Payette

Money can buy you love

Would you believe that our sainted congressmen run for office year after year without ever: (1) accepting corporate contributions, (2) asking where the money comes from, or (3) dirtying their hands by actually touching the stuff?

Would you believe that?

Would you believe that a corporation would finance a legislator's campaign without making darn sure he knows whom he is beholden to?

Would you believe that our congressmen would accept $22.5 million from special interest groups — and then go out and make pious speeches about "voting their consciences" without once mentioning their pocketbooks?

Well, that's what they're asking us to do as they scramble to "who, me?" the millions they collected from special interest groups in last year's election campaign. As it turns out, that's twice as much as the candidates collected in 1974. It is, in fact, more than any crop of congressional hopefuls has EVER collected.

And it wasn't all legal.

A lot of it came from corporations, and corporate contributions (for obvious reasons) are against the law in federal elections. But candidates are usually so hungry for campaign cash, you understand, they hardly ever bother to check where it comes from or whether it's no-no money.

Ask American Airlines. It says it has paid out (from secret and illegal cash funds) more than $300,000 since 1971 to most of the big names in government.

But not to hear the big names tell it. They never "knowingly accept illegal contributions." Mercy, no. Cross-their-hearts and hope-to-die.

Richard Nixon "unknowingly" got an illegal $55,000 from American Airlines in 1972. Ex-President Jerry Ford, running for the House, received $100.

So did "Tip" O'Neill, who has since moved up to loftier heights. He is now speaker of the house and (he says) champing at the bit to get a stronger code of ethics for House members.

You bet. Any minute now. Just as soon as he can get to it.

To hear "Tip" tell it, he "never heard of" James Bass, the American lobbyist who made the contributions. And he has "never knowingly accepted corporate contributions, and, of course, I've never personally accepted a contribution." (He has flunkies to do that kind of grubby work.)

All in all, 71 legislators fattened their campaign kitties with American's illegal contributions. The list includes Brock Adams, a former congressman who is now transportation secretary; Reps. Peter Rodino, D.-N.J., Morris Udall, D.-Ariz., and Al Ullman, D.-Ore, among others; and Sens. John Tower, R.-Tex., Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., Charles Percy, R.-Ill., etc., etc., etc., etc.

But none of them — except one — knew it.

The exception, apparently, was Sen. Howard Baker, R.-Tenn., who is now the minority leader but who plans to be president one of these days. He says when he found out a donation of $100 was illegal, he sent the money back.

He also says he reported the illegality to the Senate Ethics Committee. But if any members of that righteous body took any action, they kept mighty quiet about it.

Moving right along to the legal stuff . . .

That $22.5 million came from such public-spirited groups as the American Medical Association ($1.8 million), dairy and industry representatives (1.4 million), political "education" committees of the AFL-CIO labor unions ($1 million) and others.

Their lobbies think big. Grateful committee chairmen can usually be counted on to ramrod a special piece of legislation past all opposition.

They give big, too. Mostly in $100,000-plus sums, carefully divvied up into legal $5000 chunks. Sen. Harrison Williams, Jr., D.-N.J., hit the jackpot last year with $244,000.

Not that it always pays off. Sen. Vance Hartke, D.-Ind., won $245,000 from special interest groups — but lost the election.

You win some and you lose some.

The big losers, of course, are the poor voters, who don't have the savvy — or the cash — to buy a congressman's vote. Which may be why they're way down on any lawmaker's list of things to worry about.

Homo's mother tells ordeal

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for bringing the subject of homosexuals out of the closet. As the mother of one I have read every letter carefully, hoping to get a better understanding.

I have gone through torture — feeling guilty, blaming myself, blaming my husband, blaming our lifestyle, but I now know, thanks to you, that placing blame solves no problems and no one can say for sure what causes homosexuality.

I always knew my son was "different," but in what way I couldn't say. He didn't have to tell me. But he did tell YOU. When he was 17 he wrote to Ann Landers. Bless you for advising him to get professional help. The counseling didn't make him straight. I blamed the doctor and was bitter. But he did put my son at peace with himself and for that I will always be greatful.

When the boy went to college he decided to accept his homosexuality without shame and guilt. He told us it wasn't difficult because he met so many others with the same problem. They were attractive, intelligent, refined and high achievers.

This situation isn't easy for us to live with, but we are thankful our son can talk to us openly. And we are thankful, too, that the Lord had given us the strength to face it.

Please print my letter for other parents who share the problem. It may ease their burden. — Lifetime Fan In Columbus

Dear Fan: You've lifted some heavy hearts today. My thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you were unjustly held up to ridicule because you used the word chiropodist instead of podiatrist.

The word chiropodist comes from two Greek words — chiro meaning hand, and pod meaning foot. In the beginning, a chiropodist treated minor ailments of both hands and feet. In more recent times, the treatment was of feet only. The word podiatrist was coined to describe more accurately the doctor who treated feet. The word chiropodist, however, was not banished from the English language in head-hanging disgrace.

Check Webster's Collegiate Dictionary (Seventh Edition) and you will find that podiatrist is given a one-word definition. That one word is chiropodist. If you wish to appeal to a higher court, refer to the Oxford English Dictionary, the final arbiter in matters concerning the English language. Podiatrist is defined as chiropodist.

This letter is being written to make you feel better. You do a good job and I resent your being ridiculed by someone who has limited knowledge and a wealth of ignorance. — Ashland, Wis.

Dear Ash: I DO feel better. Bless you! And now, to that clod who ridiculed me — aren't you ashamed?

Horse lameness due to injury

DEAR DR. MILLER: My father says that when there's no obvious injury, most horses go lame first in the right hip. He's never had a horse of his own, but is he right? — K.N.

DEAR K.N.: Well, it's true most causes of a lameness are found in the leg. However, his hip location is a bit high up and in the wrong "corner." In the case of "no obvious injury" the odds are remarkably high that the injury would be in the left front leg, below the knee joint.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've hand-raised with eye dropper and baby bottle a litter of kittens, so I know what to expect with them. But now my neighbor's telling me she may need help when her dog has puppies. Her dog lost her last litter because she didn't have any milk. I don't know much about them. Are they harder to raise than kittens? — W.D.

DEAR W.D.: Hand-raising infant felines is a tough job. Canine bottle babies can be a chore too, though comparatively less. Often a bitch who hasn't any milk may still be willing to carry on with the rest of the chores. Keeping the pups clean, cuddled, and cosy is an important part of raising them. If feeding is the only chore, this maternal care lightens the load considerably.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Can a three-legged dog ever amount to anything? Our daughter's just refused to have her dog put to sleep with a crushed leg, going ahead instead and having it amputated. Did she do the wrong thing? — W.F.

DEAR W.F.: Since it was her dog, it seems entirely appropriate that your daughter make the decision. In my book, her decision was the right one except in special circumstances. If the dog was a racing greyhound, a member of a dog team, or engaged in some other specialized activity, then "amounting to something" on three legs might be difficult. Ordinarily, though, I wouldn't consider having three legs versus four as adequate reason for euthanasia. As far as being ambulatory is concerned, a three-legged dog does remarkably well and, in most cases, can easily keep up. As far as the ability of a three-legged dog to learn, to play, to enjoy life and to give love and to receive it — there would be nothing missing. Nothing at all.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone may deliberately withhold some important facts from you today. Knowing this, you should make certain information you are given is true.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be doubly sure the cash is in your account before you write that check. You can't be a dreamer financially today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Shy away from dominating, dictatorial types today. You're in no mood to be bullied, badgered or demeaned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your ideas are bold and imaginative today, but it is unlikely you'll soar to the heights to match them. You dream grandiosely but act timidly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If a business contact offers you a favor today, look for an ulterior motive. Gratuities or discounts could have strings!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you've known to be uncooperative may run true to form and try to pull the rug out from under you again.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A reluctant attitude makes your task doubly difficult today. It also could be a pain in the neck for your co-workers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be resentful of anyone who tries to nose into your private affairs today. You could be really miffed if they try to manage your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) To maintain harmony on the home front today, you may have to make some major concessions. It's better to give in than to tough it out.

World needs good listeners

It was one of those days when I wanted my own apartment . . . unlisted.

My son was telling me in complete detail about a movie he had just seen, punctuated by 3,000 "You know's?" My teeth were falling asleep.

There were three phone calls — strike that — three monologues that could have been answered by a recording. I fought the urge to say "It's been nice listening to you."

In the cab from home to the airport, I got another assault on my ear, this time by a cab driver who was rambling on about his son whom he supported in college, and was in his last year, who put a P.S. on his letter saying, "I got married. Her name is Diane." He asked me, "What do you think of that?" and proceeded to answer the question himself.

There were 30 whole beautiful minutes before my plane took off . . . time for me to be alone with my own thoughts, to open a book and let my mind wander. A voice next to me belonging to an elderly woman said, "I'll bet it's cold in Chicago."

Stone-faced I answered, "It's likely."

"I haven't been to Chicago in nearly three years," she persisted. "My son lives there."

"That's nice," I said, my eyes intent on the printed page of the book.

"My husband's body is on this plane. We've been married for 53 years. I don't drive, you know and when he died a nun drove me from the hospital. We aren't even Catholic. The funeral director let me come to the airport with him."

I don't think I have ever detested myself more than I did at that moment. Another human being was screaming to be heard and in desperation had turned to a cold stranger who was more interested in a novel than the real-life drama at her elbow.

All she needed was a listener . . . no advice, wisdom, experience, money, assistance, expertise or even compassion . . . but just a minute or two to listen.

It seemed rather incongruous that in a society of super-sophisticated communication, we often suffer from a shortage of listeners.

She talked numbly and steadily until we boarded the plane, then found her seat in another section. As I hung up my coat, I heard her plaintive voice say to her seat companion, "I'll bet it's cold in Chicago."

Dr. Lamb

Worried about hump in back

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some time ago you had a column about "Dowagers Hump." You said it can be helped by certain exercises and that milk should be a good part of the diet.

Could you please tell me what kind of exercises will help? I am thin and have had a hysterectomy and feel great, but my posture seems to be getting bad and I notice the start of this hump.

DEAR READER — The hump is associated with a forward rolling of the shoulders — the round-shouldered posture. As the vertebrae in the thorax undergo changes, the vertebral column bends forward.

The key is to try to prevent that spine from bending forward and to prevent the shoulders from rolling forward. You can get some help by increasing the strength of the muscles between the shoulder blades. Use the swimming backstroke type exercises. Just stand up straight and swing both arms forward together — carry the hands high above the head as you swing the hands backward as far as they will go and down to your sides, completing the cycle. Bring the hands up again and repeat the continuous rotation.

You can also use stretch springs or similar devices with handles at each end of the springs. Grasp a handle in each hand while holding the springs in front of you then straighten your arms and pull your hands backward, stretching the springs.

You can also stretch the muscles over the front of the chest. This is important because as the shoulders tend to roll forward these muscles shorten and help to cause the deformity. To stretch these just stand in a doorway and place one hand on each side of the door jamb about the level of your shoulders. Now, lean forward through the door while your hands stay in place. You will feel the pull on the muscles at the front of your chest. You can move your hands up the door jamb a little way and do it again.

In general you want to do exercises that hold your spine up and strengthen the muscles between your shoulders, as well as those that stretch muscles over the front of the chest to prevent pulling the shoulders forward.

Individuals with more advanced changes from loss of calcium in the spine — osteoporosis — should have the help of a physical therapist. A good therapist can teach you exercises that will help you accomplish the best results. Also it is important to not overstrain weak vertebrae. It is important to learn how to lift without straining the spine and to not lift heavy weights if you can avoid it.

There is a lot more to osteoporosis, prevention and management than these few exercises I have discussed here. I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening, to give you more information. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The diet is important and you need adequate calcium. Milk is the main source for it but if a person cannot take enough milk then calcium supplements are usually a good idea. There is quite a bit that can now be done for osteoporosis. Many clinics claim good results from using combinations of calcium, vitamin D and fluoride to strengthen softening bones.

Osteoporosis is the underlying factor in many cases of broken hips and other fractures in people past middle age.

"I think there'll be (economic) growth, but not big growth. But I don't think that's all bad . . . (Before the 1974-75 recession) we were just outliving our means, and we've got to figure out how we can get back down and live within our means."

—Henry Ford II, on the future of the United States economy.

"George Allen's a nice man, but he is without character. He doesn't have to answer to his conscience. Right and wrong are for other people. He's only concerned with winning."

—Joe Sullivan, director of operations for the St. Louis football Cardinals who had previously worked with Allen's Washington Redskins.

"We consider this the unfinished business of Congress. For the last eight years we've had a hostile president in the White House prepared to veto everything that came down the pike." We will finish hands from the "Bridge Bum" with one that Alan Sontag played. His four-heart call was a decided overbid and when he looked at dummy he saw that he had plenty of work.

West opened the ace, not the king of diamonds. East played the jack so West could continue with a low diamond and keep the location of the king concealed from declarer.

Alan ruffed and Reviewed the bidding. It was obvious that spades were 4-3 with West holding four. If West held five spades he would have opened a spade. If East held four spades he would have responded one spade.

Thus, Alan was going to have lots of trouble if West held the king. He led a spade to dummy's ace, returned the jack of clubs and let it ride to West's ace. Business was looking up.

West led a third diamond. Alan ruffed and led a low spade. East won and returned a trump, but Alan was in control. He led another spade, ruffed in dummy, saw the king fall as he had hoped, drew trumps and claimed the contract.

TEST TUBE BABY

Q. "How much would it cost a man with an infertile wife to hire a strange woman to bear him a baby by artificial insemination?"

A. That still occurs too infrequently to run an average on the expenses. Can only report that in such a case in San Francisco recently the costs wound up at about $10,000. But that included legal and medical fees. What the girl got out of it was kept secret. To get the assignment, she responded to a newspaper ad that read: "Childless husband with infertile wife wants test tube baby. English or Northwestern European background. Indicate fee and age. All answers confidential."

Q. "Where'd we get the word 'phony'?"

A. Telephone conversations around the turn of the century were a matter of much mockery by most of the citizenry. Anything but face-to-face talk was thought to be fake. So some unknown cynic with a knack for lingo dreamed up the word "phony" to describe anything false.

White House staff losing 'perks' in Carter's economy campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top White House officials who are too busy to leave their desks for lunch can no longer summon butlers to bring trays of hot food to their offices.

Some White House workers may soon have to share newspapers and magazines with their colleagues.

And if they want to watch the boss' news conference, they may have to watch in the press office. The color television sets once located in offices throughout the White House have been taken away.

President Carter, voicing determination to cut the costs of government, is finding there is no easier target for economies than the mansion where he lives and works.

So White House workers are watching their perquisites, those treasured little privileges that come with the job, melt away.

The man in charge of making the White House more efficient is Hugh Carter Jr., a 34-year-old former businessman and the President's second cousin. He is finding a good place to economize is in perquisites, lovingly referred to by government employes as "perks."

Since becoming special presidential assistant for administration, the soft-spoken Hugh Carter has been checking costs of the White House operation, ranging from Air Force One to office stationery.

"Our objective is to make the White House complex a well-managed operation, with waste and excess as absent as we can make them," Hugh Carter said in an interview in his White House office. "We want to make it a symbol for other government agencies."

A native of Plains, Ga., Hugh Carter holds a master's degree in business administration from the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School and served as vice president of an Atlanta check printing firm. He says he hopes to apply to the White House some of the business and management techniques he used in his old job.

"We just don't want the staff cradled by too many luxuries and frills," he said of his cutback of perquisites. "We want to keep them a little more used to ordinary life."

The White House staff didn't have a chance to get used to "perks" like chauffeured limousines, which were taken away immediately.

Hugh Carter says he has distributed only 40 of the more than 300 television sets in the White House office complex and will give out a few more before selling the rest as surplus. He also plans to cut back on the 200 AM-FM radios in the White House.

In his study of costs, Carter discovered $50,000 was spent for newspaper subscriptions last year. That will be cut, he says. "In some cases, we might ask people to share newspapers," he said.

The President last weekend said Hugh Carter had "saved much more than his salary" by cutting newspaper subscriptions alone.

He also stopped the delivery of meals by butlers to White House offices and opened the White House dining rooms to more employes.

Another part of the cost-cutting program involves top aides. The President said he hopes to cut his staff by one-third and has urged Cabinet officers to trim their high-level staffs by the same amount.

Hugh Carter now is looking at the costs of office supplies, the White House telephone system and the operation of the permanent staff of the mansion, which he said could be more efficient.

Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland, and the presidential yacht will be used by the President, Hugh Carter said. But staff workers probably won't have "a free run" at Camp David.

Carter said he has heard little serious dissatisfaction from employes about the reduction in the number of "perks."

"There have been a few wisecracks here and there, but nothing major. People expected this," he said.

The TV cutbacks caused more furor than any other cuts, he added.

Hugh Carter said he consulted "quite a lot" with his cousin the President about better management of the White House.

"I go see him when I feel a need to, which is usually several times a week," Carter said. "If he has something he wants me to look into, he sends a memo."

Stressing his educational and business background, Carter said: "When I first talked to Jimmy about this job, we had an understanding that I would be like any other staff member. If anything, I'll probably have to prove myself a little more."

Detector should be placed at each bedroom area (A) to hearing alarm, say alarm by smoke all passing through closed doors. Should also be placed in basement (B) at bottom of stairwell level (C). Helps alert you for quick departure. Always mount on ceiling or ceiling in center of rooms at least (1.) or at top of stairways. Do not mount in kitchen, garage, or where concentrated heat might cause false alarm.

Consumer complaints answered by panel

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Your washing machine is on the blink. You've complained to the store and written to the manufacturer. Nothing helped. What's next?

For a growing number of consumers, the answer is an industry-sponsored complaint panel. The panels offer an alternative to small claims courts and arbitration programs run by the Better Business Bureau.

The National Association of Mutual Insurance Agents and the federal Office of Consumer Affairs recently announced the establishment of an experimental program of voluntary mediation of consumer complaints about property and casualty insurance.

The one-year project is known as Insurance Consumer Action Panel — ICAP. The panel will handle complaints referred to it through an arrangement with the insurance commissioners of Michigan, Mississippi, Montana and Utah.

Similar complaint-handling procedures already exist in the appliance, furniture and auto industries. All the programs contain the acronym "CAP." Here's a rundown on the exact names and how to contact the groups:

APPLIANCES: MACAP — Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel, Virginia Habeeb, chairman, 20 Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., 60606; toll-free telephone number, 800-621-0477.

FURNITURE: FICAP — Furniture Industry Consumer Advisory Panel, Nancy High, executive director, Box 951, High Point, N.C., 27261; telephone, 919-885-5065.

AUTOS: There are local AutoCAPs — Automotive Consumer Action Panels — in various areas of the country. To find out if there is one near you, contact Alan Marlette, National Automobile Dealers Association, 8400 West Park Drive, McLean, Va., 22101; telephone, 703-821-7070.

Here's how the panels work: Suppose you have a complaint about a product. First try the retailer who sold it to you. If that doesn't work, go to the manufacturer. If you problem is still unresolved, try the appropriate CAP. When the panel gets a complaint, a staff member goes to the manufacturer to ask for a further check into the problem. If the consumer is unsatisfied with the result, the case is presented to the panel which hears evidence from both sides and recommends a settlement. The recommendations are not binding, but spokesmen for the panels say the suggestions are generally accepted.

The ground rules differ slightly from industry to industry: the appliance group generally does not deal with items still covered by warranties; the furniture panel, in contrast, only handles complaints about products that are less than a year old.

The appliance panel, founded in 1970, is the oldest of the so-called CAP programs. Spokesman Frank Miles said MACAP has an annual budget "in the low end of six figures" and handles just under 4,000 cases a year. About one-third of the cases deal with the performance of an appliance, one-third involve service and the remaining third include miscellaneous problems, Miles said.

Not all of the cases presented to MACAP wind up in arbitration by the panel; many are settled by a telephone call to the manufacturer. In 1975, Miles said, a little more than one-fourth of the cases eventually wound up with panel hearings. He said an independent audit showed 90 per cent of the cases were settled to the satisfaction of all involved.

The members of the panel are volunteers, not connected with the industry. Current panel members include an attorney, a professor of engineering and several people in the consumer movement.

The furniture industry panel is younger and smaller, with an annual budget of about $12,000, plus salaries. Miss High said it was founded in 1974 by the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association and now handles about 800 cases a year.

What sort of problems are most common? "One year it's one thing, one year it's another," Miss High said. In 1975, the main problem seemed to be the durability of fabric on upholstered furniture. Last year, the complaints dealt with so-called "case goods" such as cabinets, dressers and other items primarily of wood.

During 1974, the latest year for which published figures are available, FICAP received 709 complaints. The great majority — 518 cases — were solved without a review by the panel.

Television sets

There are 364 million television sets in the world, compared with 360 million telephones and 300 million automobiles and trucks, according to current statistics.

The experimental insurance panel will try to focus on the types of complaints which occur most frequently, but it will not deal with premium rates or underwriting standards. Don't write to ICAP if you think your insurance costs too much.

Mule racing proposed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Parimutuel horse racing is legal in California, but last year the voters rejected the same privilege for greyhounds.

Now come mules.

Assemblyman Larry Chimbole, D-Palmdale, said the mule racing would take place only under the auspices of the 18th District Agricultural Association. The bill said the races would be a pilot project not to exceed five years.

County sued for funds by agency

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California's new Air Quality Management District has voted to join a suit against Los Angeles County to obtain operating funds after county supervisors withheld its share.

At a special meeting Monday, the AQMD board voted to join the suit by the state attorney general.

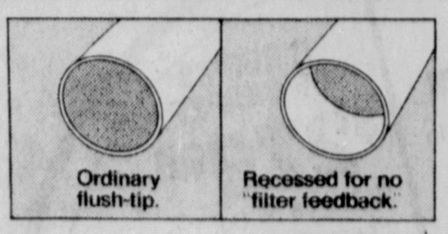
Any low-tar cigarette will give you a low-tar number. But there's something else that you should consider. We call it "filter feedback."



As you smoke, tar builds up on the tip of your cigarette filter. That's "filter feedback." Ordinary flush-tipped filters put that tar build-up flat against your lips.

And that's where low-tar Parliament has the advantage. Parliament's filter is recessed to keep tar buildup from touching your lips. So there's no "filter feedback." All you get is that smooth Parliament taste.

Dodgers must earn big pay

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"It all boils down, gentlemen. We're going to tell our players what it's going to take to win the pennant in '77.

"And the first thing I'm going to tell them is that I know there's been a lot written about their salaries, how much money they're making."

Tom Lasorda, the new manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers succeeding the legendary Walter Alston, warmed to this subject of money. After all, Steve Garvey had just signed a six-year contract that some say will be worth $1.75 million.

Other baseball players are signing for other big money and the Dodgers go to spring training on Monday. So, at his final news conference in Los Angeles before embarking on his new assignment, Lasorda declared:

"I have never made a statement regarding what a player was asking for, never made any funny jokes about players's salaries... I think that they do everything they can to get what they think they deserve and the ball club is very, very happy that they gave it to them.

"All I'm going to ask them to do, come No. 1 day of spring training Tuesday, all I ask is that they earn it. If they earn what they're getting paid, that's all I'm concerned with."

So naturally Lasorda was asked what Garvey, the first baseman and the man who has had 200 hits for each of his past three seasons, must do to earn his bread and butter. The rookie manager had said he would like Garvey to go after more home runs.

"He knows what to do," Lasorda answered. "The thing I mentioned to him was that 200 hits is a great accomplishment, but I think there are a lot of times (to go for a home run). In fact, let me give you an illustration. Bottom of the eighth and two out and trailing with a man on base and the Penguin walks up and everybody in the dugout and everybody in the stands knows he'll be trying for the home run."

That reference was to third baseman Ron Cey, but Lasorda let it be known he'd also like Garvey to be going after the home run in a similar situation.

Lasorda said his eight starters are set, but the batting order isn't and "We'll be experimenting through spring training."

He also said he felt the 1977 Dodgers will be better than in 1976.

"I can guarantee you I can give you 25 players who play baseball like my wife shops: all day," the new skipper quipped. Then, seriously, he said, "This is the first year I can see in a long time that we have an outstanding defensive outfield. We think we have as good an outfield as any team in baseball with Dusty Baker in left, Rick Monday in center and Reggie Smith in right."

He said Baker, who was a disappointment last year in center, will be given every chance to make good this season; "I have every confidence in him."

All-Star Game in trouble

There will be a 12th annual game this summer on Friday night, July 8, at Citrus College but it may be the final one unless the public responds by purchasing tickets.

In fact, the sponsoring Glendora Rotary Club says it needs a sellout of 10,000 to be able to continue the annual game featuring the top graduating prep football players in the valley stretching from the Arcadia-Temple City area to Chino.

Costs - especially insurance - have gone up leaps and bounds and that is the major reason why the future of the contest is clouded.

"Normally our liability insurance costs about $1,500 but this year it will be $6,000," reports George McGill of the Rotary Club. "Our insurance costs this year are more than what we paid to put on the entire game in early years."

According to the proposed budget for this year, the club hopes to take in $41,300 based on a capacity crowd plus program advertising.

With the games expenses - including insurance and equipment costs - expected to be around $15,800, the club needs an income of $26,400 to meet the NCAA requirements of providing 40 per cent of the net to charities.

"If we can't almost fill the stadium this year, it will mean an end to the game," McGill said. "You might say we're lining up for a last-ditch stand."

All-out effort

THE CLUB IS MAKING AN ALL-OUT EFFORT this season to sell tickets. The crowds have been dropping in recent years due to the normal competition for the sports dollar.

"We are taking a new marketing approach for this game," Chris Lyman of the club said. "We want to get more people involved. We are going after the schools' boosters and lettermen organizations and involve other Rotarians and youth teams. We want to have as many people involved as we can."

The club has sent out letters to the principals of the 37 schools involved in the game outlining its plans to boost involevment.

Each school is asked to select a Football Princess by March 15. Games Queens will be selected from the list of Princess candidates but each school's nomination will be recognized at the game.

The schools are also requested to send 10 cheerleaders. If it happens, there will be 370 cheerleaders at the game to add some pageantry to the scene.

However, the most important item is ticket sales.

The Rotary Club is offering a special plan for the Lettermen Clubs and Booster Clubs to sell game tickets - priced at $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12 - with the idea of raising funds for themselves.

For each adult ticket sold, the selling organization will be paid $1.50 and 75 cents for children's tickets. The school which sells the most tickets will receive a bonus of $500.

Changes format

THE ROTARY CLUB CHANGED the game's format last year from an East-West concept including an area stretching from Glendale to Ontario to the present North-South idea with the San Bernardino Freeway serving as the boundary line.

"According to a survey we took at our game two years ago, we found that 80 to 90 per cent of the fans came from an area within 10 miles of the Citrus stadium," Tris Hubbard said. "So we decided to reduce the geographical zone of participating schools."

Schools in the Progress-Bulletin's circulation area involved in the game include Chino, Ganesha, Garey and Walnut on the South plus Bonita, Claremont, Damien, Pomona and San Dimas on the North.

The head coaches for this year's game will be selected shortly with the coaches picking the players.

Each squad will consist of 30 players with every school being represented by one player but no more than two.

Casa Colina Hospital for Rehabilitative Medicine in Pomona has been the primary target for funds donated by the Rotary Club.

Through the first 11 years of the game, more than $100,000 has been donated to charity.

The San Gabriel Valley All-Star Game has one big advantage.

It is located in a real hotbed of prep football in Southern California. The San Gabriel Valley, with the powerful Sierra League as the foundation, produces more good teams than any other Southland area.

The game is a worthy one. It gives the prep stars good recognition and the proceeds go to a great cause.

But the Glendora Rotary Club has also learned you can't force the Lakers can't stop Lanier

DETROIT (AP) — The scoreboard kept flashing "Two for the Money," but Eric Money's heroics took a back seat to Bob Lanier's only basket of the fourth quarter.

Lanier scored over Kareem Abdul-Jabbar on a 12-foot fallaway jumper from the baseline with nine seconds left Wednesday night. It gave the Pistons a 102-101 National Basketball Association victory over the Los Angeles Lakers before a near-sellout crowd of 10,565 at Cobo Arena.

It was Detroit's second consecutive triumph on a closing-seconds basket by 6-foot-11 center Lanier. Sunday at home the Pistons beat the Suns, 109-107, on a Lanier hook shot with 16 seconds remaining.

"That's what he gets paid for and he comes through every night," said Detroit Coach Herb Brown.

Lanier, who had no idea what Brown had said, commented: "Everything around here I do is taken for granted. If I missed that basket I'd be a goat for five games."

The seven-year veteran from St. Bonaventure wound up with 29 points and 14 rebounds, while holding 7-foot-2 Jabbar to 14 points — 13 below his average.

Money, though, helped shake Detroit from some sloppy play with a brilliant second half. He scored all his 22 points after intermission, hitting on 10 of 12 shots after having missed four field goal attempts in the first half. He sank nine straight baskets in one stretch and had 16 of his points in the final period.

The Lakers are first in the Pacific Division but have lost six of their last nine. Detroit, which had lost six straight to Los Angeles, has won seven of its last 10 games overall and is 25-5 at home.

The Lakers had a chance to win in the last nine seconds. After they called two times out, though, they were unable to score. Don Chaney missed a 20-footer with four seconds left and Cazzie Russell a 15-footer at the Buzzer. Similarly, the Suns could have won Sunday, but their final shot was off target.

"The last shot was not the one we wanted," LA Coach Jerry West said. "We wanted to go to Kareem, but never got the ball to him. But we still got two shots."

Cal Poly signs Kevin Morgan

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Cal Poly pulled out a big football recruiting coup Wednesday afternoon with the announcement of the signing of Walnut High's Kevin Morgan to a national letter of intent.

Morgan was selected by the Progress-Bulletin as the valley's Offensive Player of the Year for the 1976 season for rushing for 1,706 yards on 263 carries - a 6.5 average - and scoring 136 points on 22 touchdowns.

As it turned out, Poly's reputation in engineering was a key factor in landing Morgan, who carries a 3.9 academic average at Walnut.

"Our good engineering program was a key factor in Kevin's decision," Poly's new coach Jim Jones said. "He is a good example of the quality of young man we are getting here."

Jones also announced the signings of former Pomona High star quarterback Steve Taylor from Mt. San Antonio College plus center Tim Bienek (6-1, 215) of Fountain Valley.

Morgan had considered attending the Air Force Academy or Utah State before deciding to stay near his Diamond Bar home.

"I was very impressed with Coach Jones," Morgan said after his decision to play at Poly. "I had heard a lot of good things about him when he coached at South Hills. I was impressed by the engineering program and liked the idea of staying in the area."

Jones added, "We are extremely happy to have a great football player like Kevin decide to join us. He is a real recruiting plus for us."

Among Morgan's many honors last season was being selected to the All-CIF 2A first team and being voted the Offensive Player of the Year in the Hacienda League.

Taylor was the first team quarterback on the P-B's All-Pomona Valley team in 1973 at Pomona High when he passed for 1,685 yards in completing 58 per cent of his passes to help lead the Red Devils to a San Antonio League co-championship.

Injuries frustrated Taylor's two-year career at MSAC. Last year, he played behind starter Brian Bethke - who will attend Kansas - and completed 23 of 41 passes for 393 yards and two touchdowns.

"We know Steve has had an up-and-down career at MSAC because of injuries but we also know he is very strong and smart and should be a good addition to our program," Jones said.

California lands Ganesha grid star

Floyd Eddings, Ganesha's dual-threat running back this past season, has signed a national letter of intent to UC Berkeley.

Eddings, a 5-11, 175-pounder, gained 860 yards for the Giants last year as a runner, but was recruited by Berkeley as a wide receiver prospect.

"Floyd is a great athlete and he should fit in real well with Cal's offense," Ganesha football coach Garry Norvell commented. "He gained nearly 400 yards with pass receptions for us this past season, so he can catch the football.

Eddings, who hails originally from Alabama, was recruited heavily by the Crimson Tide and also San Diego State before deciding on Cal last week.

"Floyd talked to the Cal coaches and liked their offensive philosophy, Cal is more a throwing team than Alabama or San Diego and I think that had a lot to do with Floyd's decision," Norvell pointed out.

"Floyd is also a real good student and liked the academic program at Cal. All in all, it seemed like a good place for him to be next fall."

Eddings was an all-San Antonio League and all-Valley selection as a running back this past season.

Angels give hitters work

HOLTVILLE, Calif. (AP) — It's been said that in baseball the batters come around more slowly than the pitchers, so California Manager Norm Sherry has a possible solution: bring in the batters earlier than usual.

Nine of the Angels' most prominent hitters are in Holtville along with the pitchers and catchers, and Sherry said he was pleased with the results of his experiment.

The idea is to get the hitters more batting practice before spring training camp fills up with lots of youngsters looking for positions, and Sherry feels the experiment is paying off.

Free agents stars Don Baylor and home runs for the Angels in a Wednesday workout at the American League team's prespring training camp.

"By doing this I feel they will hit the ball sooner," said Sherry. "I was talking to Baylor. He said he got 13 swings a day at Baltimore. A lot of times with the Dodgers, I didn't get in 10 a day myself and I wanted more.

Bochte lost his first base job to Tony Solaita last seson and is now in a dogfight for the center field job. His two homers Wednesday matched his home run total for the entire 1976 season.

"Baylor was hitting the ball hard against live pitching," said Sherry.

By The Associated Press

Stanford coach Dick DiBiaso is hoping the UCLA Bruins are smug, but UCLA coach Gene Bartow says his club isn't.

The answer will come tonight as fifth-ranked UCLA, tied with Oregon for the Pac 8 basketball lead at 8-3, hosts the Cardinals at Pauley Pavilion.

With three games to go, the schedule favors the Bruins, who play the league's worst three teams, two of them at friendly Pauley Pavilion, to end the season. Oregon, meantime, will be on the road, including a pair of tough games at Washington and Washington State.

"I'm sure UCLA is feeling rather smug" because of the schedule, said DiBiaso this week.

"Stanford is a team we respect," countered Bartow, whose club whipped Stanford 100-86 earlier in the season.

In other Pac 8 games tonight, California is at USC, Washington State hosts Oregon, and Oregon State is at Washington.

In other games involving west coast teams, fourth-rated Nevada-Las Vegas hosts Denver and Hawaii is at Long Beach. In a pair of PCAA games, Pacific hosts Fullerton and San Diego State is at San Jose State.

Although Bartow realizes the schedule favors his club, he says, "Our backs are against the wall and we realize it."

"What I'm hoping, and I feel very strongly we can do it, is that we get another winning streak going. We had a nine-game streak that began in

Donaldson earns Elks prep honor

Mickey Donaldson, Ontario High's star forward, has been named the Progress Bulletin's Athlete of the Week.

Donaldson, a 6-foot-3 senior, scored 44 points and grabbed 24 rebounds in two games as the Jaguars beat Gladstone and Alta Loma to earn a berth in the CIF 2A basketball playoffs.

He had 20 points and 14 rebounds against Gladstone and 24 points and 10 rebounds against Alta Loma. Donaldson tipped in the winning basket at the final buzzer as Ontario ended Alta Loma's 31-game league winning streak, 53-52 in overtime.

Donaldson has averaged 15.5 points per game on the year. He will be presented a plaque by Pomona Elks Lodge 789 at a dinner at the lodge March 9.

Also nominated for his performance last week was Calvary Baptist's Robert Turner, who has won the Athlete of the Week award previously this year.

In three Christian League games, the 6-foot-2 sophomore averaged 44 points, 29 rebounds and three blocked shots per contest.

Players revive Barons

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Like a cat with the proverbial nine lives, the apparently dead Cleveland Barons were revived Wednesday with the aid of a $1.3 million transfusion of operating capital.

The 11th hour deal, which suddenly surfaced Wednesday in New York after hours of meetings by the NHL Board of Governors, Barons principal owner Mel Swig and Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players Association, included enough cash to insure the Barons of at least finishing the current season.

The apparent key to the surprising meeting of the minds was a loan of $600,000 to the Barons by the players association. The league also came up with $350,000, as did Swig.

"As of last night, I didn't think there was a chance," said Swig after the announcement late in the afternoon. "If this had not happened today, there would have been some form of total player sale."

William Jennings, president of the New York Rangers, said the players association money was the key that made the agreement possible.

The deal came as a surprise to the Barons' players, who still had not been paid their Feb. 15 payroll as of Wednesday night. Late last week they gave Swig an ultimatum to guarantee their pay the rest of the season or sell the team before Tuesday.

When that deadline passed, the players, under Eagleson's guidance, said they would refuse to play any more for the Barons, choosing instead to "retire" until the league resolved the situation.

"I don't know what to think about this," said defenseman Rick Hampton before Wednesday night's suddenly rescheduled game with Buffalo here. "I figured we'd be gone by tomorrow. I was just hoping to get out of this mess.

"I don't mind staying, if we have good ownership," he added. "But I've been going through this kind of thing for three years now. If this is just a holdoff until next year, and we're going to go through the same thing again, I would rather have left now."

Instead of leaving, the Barons went out and played, losing to the Sabres 5-3 before only 3,185 fans.

NHL President Clarence Campbell was, like most parties involved, cautious about looking ahead as far as next year.

"There is no guarantee Cleveland will be able to establish itself in a position of being able to go on next year," Campbell said. "It does put them in a position of possibly being able to do so."

An obviously relieved Swig said: "I hope we can talk hockey now instead of finances. Now I have more time available to work at getting new blood and new money into Cleveland."

Eliot Teltscher scores upset

The 17-year-old high school senior from Palos Verdes, Calif., scored the biggest of four upsets Wenesday in second round singles play at the $225,000 Tennis Games at Mission Hills Country Club.

Teltscher scored a straight set victory over 16th-seeded Cliff Richey 7-5, 6-1 and then was wide-eyed when he was interviewed.

"This is the best I've ever done in a pro tournament," he said. "I really don't know what to say. I'm just as surprised as you are."

The lanky right-hander with the unruly dark hair was playing in only his second professional tournament and he had to survive a three-day qualifying round to make it into the championship bracket.

In today's third-round play, Teltscher, who plans to enroll at UCLA next fall, will face second-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico, who advanced by beating Kim Warwick of Australia 6-2, 6-1 on Wednesday.

The other upsets Wednesday included South African Bernie Mitton's 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over No. 7 Dick Stockton; 1976 NCAA finalst Peter Fleming's 2-6, 7-6, 6-4 decision over No. 9 Stan Smith and Charles Pasarell's upset of No. 14-seeded Vijay Amritraj of India 6-2, 6-0.

Chile's Jaime Filol, seeded 12th, defeated Sweden's Ove Bengtson 6-4, 6-4, and No. 11 Bob Lutz of Los Angeles was a 7-6, 6-3 victor over Geoff Masters of Australia.

Fuentes finds a baseball job

By The Associated Press

Fuentes, not one of the star players who were free-market prizes in last November's draft, agreed to a one-year contract Wednesday with the Detroit Tigers. Fuentes, 33, a veteran of 11 major league seasons, will receive $90,000 — a far cry from the $2 million and $3 million packages signed by other free agents, like Reggie Jackson and Joe Rudi.

The second baseman batted .263 for the San Diego Padres last season, one point below his lifetime batting average after 1,335 games with San Francisco and San Diego.

But, at least, after six months of searching, he's landed a job.

Several other players signed contracts Wednesday, opting against a chance at free agency following the 1977 season.

The Kansas City Royals signed five, including Hal McRae and Fred Patek, important cogs in the American League club's rise to the West Division title last season.

McRae batted .332, mostly as a designated hitter, and was nosed out of the AL hitting crown by teammate George Brett in their last at-bats of the season. He signed a five-year contract.

Patek, the Royals' regular shortstop since 1971, signed a three-year contract. So did outfielder Tom Poquette, who hit .302 as a rookie last year, and Pete LaCock, who batted .221 last year for the Chicago Cubs.

Pitcher Larry Gura, who was 4-0 with the Royals in 1976 after being acquired from the New York Yankees, signed a two-year contract.

Other pitchers joining the ranks of the signed were Doug Rau and Elias Sosa with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Rau, who was second in the National League with a 2.57 earned run average last season, agreed to a four-year contract. His 1976 record was 16-12.

Sosa, acquired by the Dodgers from Atlanta last year after a 6-8 season, signed a one-year agreement.

Mike Lum became the 35th player on the world champion Cincinnati Reds' roster to come to terms, signing a two-year contract. Lum, the club's busiest pinch hitter last season, batted .228 in 84 games.

Infielders Garry Templeton and Jerry DaVanon signed one-year contracts with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Moving in the other direction was infielder Chris Arnold, who was waived by San Francisco.

P-P women cagers win

The Pomona-Pitzer women's basketball team closed in on the SCIAC title Wednesday night with a 43-33 win over Redlands.

The victory ran the Sagehen record to a perfect 6-0 in conference with only two games remaining. If the Pitzer women win Friday night at Occidental, they wrap up the SCIAC title.

Freshwoman Louise Gronwich led the way for the 'Hens Wednesday vs. Redlands with 20 points.

Garey girls romp, 58-17

Garey High's girls' basketball team will risk its perfect 4-0 season record this afternoon at Fontana High after Tuesday's easy non-league 58-17 victory over Chino.

Karen Rich led the Vikings with 16 points and nine rebounds while Sibyl Tate added 13. Yolanda Telphy and Marcia Holmes led the defense.

Final sign-ups in Claremont

Final sign-ups and tryouts for the Claremont National Little League will be held Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to noon at the league's field on Mountain Avenue south of Bonita Avenue.

Players born between August 1, 1964 and July 31, 1969 are eligible to play.

Parents should accompany all youths and be prepared to present a birth certificate or proof of birth and a $15 registration fee.

Oliver signs with Broncos

DENVER (AP) — Al Oliver, a 6-foot-7, 270-pound offensive tackle from UCLA, has signed a contract with the Denver Broncos, becoming the second free agent to sign with the National Football League team, general manager Fred Gehrke announced Wednesday.

Oliver was drafted in the third round by the Los Angeles Rams in 1974, but played that season for Hawaii of the World Football League. He spent the 1975 season on the Rams' reserve list due to a leg injury, and was one of the club's final cuts in 1976.

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

"It seems like we're being thrown into the middle of our season," said Mt. San Antonio College coach John Norton, whose track and field team will host powerful Grossmont in an important South Coast Conference dual meet Friday at 3 p.m.

"From the marks last week," Norton said, "the top three teams in the conference will be Fullerton, Grossmont and MSAC.

Sprinters Edgar Orange and Harold Tassin are both recovering from hamstring injuries that have hurt the Mounties' performance in the sprints and the 440-yard relay.

"We also have a lot of athletes who have just come out at the beginning of the new semester and aren't in shape yet," said Norton.

"Probably our best performer so far has been Todd Kaberline. He's run the high hurdles four times and has times of 14.5, 14.5, 14.4 and 14.4. He's also long jumping over 22 feet and high jumping 6-6.

"Mark Anderson (a freshman from Walnut High) just came out for us and high jumped 6-8 against Santa Ana last week.

"He have several good long jumpers. Besides Kaberline, Garey's Stan Webster, Pomona's Charles Cole and Raymond Reeb have all gone over 22 feet at one time or another."

"Barry Boettcher (from Pomona High) is running very well," said Norton. "Steve Tyler has run 1:53.6 in the 800 meters and we're expecting him to have a fine year.

"Grossmont looks as strong as ever. They're strong in the quarter-mile, long jump, triple jump, pole vault, half-mile and two mile.

Both teams won their conference openers handily last week. MSAC beat Santa Ana and Grossmont beat Cerritos.

Chuck Hicks' Chaffey College team and Vince O'Boyle's Citrus squad will open Mission Conference dual meet action with home meets against Riverside and Palomar, respectively, Friday at 3 p.m.

"We have a good group of athletes but not very many of them," said Hicks.

"Marcus Jennings has been our outstanding performer so far, with long jumps of 24-1¼, 25-1¼ (a school record) and 24-even.

"And the day he set the record against Orange Coast, Marcus had a jump of 25-4¼ that he fouled on by half an inch. So we're expecting even bigger things in the future."

Chaffey boasts a strong group of freshmen, including Montclair High's Mike Roza, who has run a 9:31 two mile.

Ron Vinson (San Gorgonio High) has run 48.6 in the quarter and a 47.7 relay leg. He was third in the state high school meet last year.

Mark Flynn (San Gorgonio) ran 1:53.7 in the 880 as a high school junior. Ed Kelly is a 14.3 high hurdler and will probably run intermediates due to Chaffey's small squad size. Frank Angellotti (Chaffey High), who is only 17 years old, ran the 100 in 9.7 in high school.

A sophomore who is doing well for Chaffey is Jeff Charleston, who is throwing the javelin 200 feet. Charleston was a utility quarter-miler last year but Hicks converted him to a javelin thrower.

The Mission Conference, like the SCC, will run its dual meets in metric distances this year.

"Riverside is a small team but has talent in the sprints, the javelin and the triple jump," said Hicks, whose own squad numbers only about 25.

Citrus will be facing possibly its toughest test of the year Friday afternoon as the Owls begin defense of their conference championship by hosting Palomar.

"It figures to be a really close meet, and we're going to need some people to come through in several key events," explained O'Boyle. "It's particularly crucial in the 800, 1,500 and 5,000. If we get a good effort there, then we'll be right in there."

O'Boyle is hopeful that two of his sprinters will be able to make their 1977 debuts Friday. Sophomore Charlie Brown and freshman Ivan Moody were injured in an automobile accident two weeks ago. Brown, who also has a slight muscle pull, is slated to run in the 100 meters and 440 relay as well as the long jump, while Moody will perform in the 200 meters and the relay if he is given the okay by his doctor.

Other key Owl performers Friday will be Billy Davis in the sprints, Kelly Johnson in the high jump and Houston Courtney in the long jump.

Rich Davis tops All-H.L. team

Alta Loma's Rich Davis, who paced his team to a second straight Hacienda League basketball crown, was tabbed as that loop's Most Valuable Player Wednesday by vote of H.L. coaches. Davis was a unanimous pick as MVP.

Davis, a 6-foot-10 senior center, averaged 16.2 points per game in league play, despite missing three contests with a leg injury. He also averaged 10 rebounds per loop outing and blocked 52 shots.

Overall, Davis averaged 14.7 points per game in 24 games as the Braves rang up a 23-4 regular season mark.

Winning Coach of the Year honors was Ontario's Larry Larson. Larson saw his club forced to forfeit its first 15 games this year, but regrouped his troops and led them to a third-place (8-6) finish and a spot in the upcoming 2A hoop playoffs.

Alta Loma, second-place Walnut and Gladstone were the only squads with two men on the all-Hacienda squad. Besides Davis, the Braves placed forward Kevin Comstock on the team.

MSAC softball season to begin

The Mt. San Antonio College women's softball team will start its 1977 campaign on Wednesday, March 2 by hosting Long Beach City College.

"I think we'll eventually have a good team. Once we gain some experience, we'll be tough," claims Mountie coach Judy Ritner about her softball squad.

Four performers return from last year's team, which earned a third place finish in the Eastern League. The returnees are outfielders Janet Lee Madden and Vicki Parrish, third baseman Marjorie Mangan and pitcher Coleen Walker. Walker is MSAC's lone experienced pitcher and is being counted on heavily by coach Ritner.

"Coleen has improved a great deal since last season," Ritner explains. "However, she's our only experience in pitching.

"Pitching could prove a problem for us if we don't develop more depth."

Top newcomers for MSAC include shortstop Linda Boyd and outfielders "Raisin" Wieder and Tamara Waska.

"Our outfield should be fairly strong and our infield defense will come along," Ritner notes. "We have some rookies who are willing to work hard. When we get about halfway through the season and start pulling together, this will be a good team — especially defensively."

Sign-ups set in SD/LV

Final sign-ups for the San Dimas-La Verne Youth Baseball Leagues will be taken from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at Pelota Park in La Verne and Marchant Park in San Dimas.

Sign-ups are for Pony, Colt and Throbred Baseball for boys, ages 13-20, and Girls Softball for girls in the third through 12th grades.

Registration fees must be paid at sign-ups and all boys must have birth certificates.

CIF soccer playoffs near

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

No fewer than eight valley prep soccer squads will be trying their luck Friday, as the CIF 4A and 3A soccer playoffs begin.

Only local games on tap are contests to be hosted by San Antonio League champion Damien and SAL runnerup Claremont.

The Spartan booters, who sport an impressive 17-4-2 season ledger and were ranked sixth in the final 4A poll, will be hosting Webb School. Webb (11-5-2 on the year) was the second place team in the Montview League this season.

Claremont will carry a 14-3-3 season ledger into its game with Huntington Beach, 13-9-1 on the year and a third place squad from the Sunset League. That Claremont contest will be played at Sumner Park.

Garey will be the valley's fourth representative in the 4A competition. The Vikings, 15-4-2 on the year, will travel to Santa Ana Friday afternoon to play Santa Ana Valley (15-1-1 and champs of the Orange County League).

All three of those 4A contests will begin at 3 p.m.

Four valley teams made it into the 3A competition, but only Hacienda League titlist Gladstone will have a home game.

The Gladiators, 13-6-2 on the season, will entertain Pater Noster (6-6-2) of the Santa Fe League.

In away games, Alta Loma will be at Bosco Tech, Chaffey will be at Pacifica and Ontario Christian will be at Coachella Valley.

The OCHS game is slated for a 6:30 p.m. start, all the others for 3 p.m. kickoffs.

The Damien-Webb game should prove very interesting. Webb goes into the game as a decided underdog, but the Gauls of veteran coach John Heyes have played some tough non-league competition this year and could give the Spartans a real tussle.

CIF SOCCER PLAYOFFS
Friday's Opening Round
Pairings for Local Teams
4A Division
Webb at Damien, 3 p.m.
Huntington Beach vs. Claremont at Claremont Sumner Park, 3 p.m.
Garey at Santa Ana Valley, 3 p.m.
3A Division
Chaffey at Pacifica, 3 p.m.
Alta Loma at Bosco Tech, 3 p.m.
Pater Noster at Gladstone, 3 p.m.
Ontario Christian at Coachella Valley, 6:30 p.m.

Webb will be led by junior John Richards, who scored 26 goals this year in 18 games.

Damien has been led by the play of midfielder Mike Hunter and some sturdy defensive play by Brian Potter and Pete Fox. Brian Sullivan has been the Spartans' leading scorer.

Claremont, an "Old-Timer" at CIF soccer playoffs, will be making its sixth straight appearance in post-season competition Friday.

However, the Wolfpack can't take its opponent, Huntington Beach, too lightly. Despite H.B.'s so-so season mark, the beach team competes in the strong Sunset League and will be a good test for Claremont.

The 'Pack has been a rough customer to score on all year, due in large measure to goalie Steve Tipping's efforts. Claremont allowed only nine goals in 14 SAL outings.

Garey drew a rough assignment in S.A. Valley, an Orange County soccer power the past couple seasons. However, the young Vikings (only one starting senior) have been improving all year long and could well pull off an upset vs. Valley.

Chaffey, the second place finisher in the Ivy League this year, appears to be the top valley threat in the 3A competition.

The Tigers posted an impressive 19-4-1 season mark under coach Seiran Stepanian, and played well in last year's playoff action.

However, Pacifica of Garden Grove won the Garden Grove League title this season and posted a 14-3-1 season mark, including wins over some strong opposition, so the Tigers will have no easy time of it Friday.

Alta Loma, the runnerup squad in the Hacienda League (10-4-5) will also have a rugged road assignment in Bosco Tech. Tech, of Rosemead, won the Santa Fe League title and posted a 13-3-1 season log.

Ontario Christian, 8-8-1 on the year and second place finisher in the Olympic League, will travel to Thermal Friday night to play Coachella Valley High. Coachella Valley holds a 9-2-2 season record and the championship of the Desert Valley League.

Owls nip Riverside

The Citrus College basketball team assured itself of a spot in the upcoming Mission Conference post-season playoffs Wednesday night with a come-from-behind 65-63 win at Riverside City College.

The win also ties the Owls for third place in the conference with RCC. Saddleback and Palomar are tied for first with one game remaining, in the regular season, to be played on Saturday.

In other junior college cage action, Mt. San Antonio fell 60-55 to host Orange Coast and Chaffey was dumped 101-80 by host San Diego City College.

The Owls' big man, Eric Childs, did RCC in Wednesday, with help from teammate Bill Rutz. Childs, a freshman from Monrovia, poured in 25 points to lead both teams. Rutz added 18 to the Owl total.

Citrus trailed RCC 41-33 at the half but held the potent Tiger attack to only 22 points in the final 20 minutes. Ricky Green was the top RCC scorer with 15 points.

Citrus is now 8-5 in Mission action and 17-12 overall. The Mission playoffs are slated for next week on the home court of the conference champion, and will be a single-elimination affair involving Citrus, RCC, Saddleback and Palomar.

The playoff winner will advance to the state JC playoffs at Fresno.

MSAC led Orange Coast by three at the half but the crippled Mounties could not keep pace in the final half. Earner Mays led MSAC with 13 points, while mate Dick Rockwood added 10. John Deck topped the Mounties with 13 rebounds.

Nine seeking mayor's post in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Nine candidates have crowded into the April 19 Democratic and Republican mayoral primary elections, bringing with them political passions and campaign mummery seldom seen in the sober days of the late Richard Daley.

The effervescent mood may go flat fast, however. The same efficient, professional vote-getters who worked the wards for Daley are now behind Acting Mayor Michael Bilandic, the candidate of the regular Democratic organization.

Bilandic, 53, the former alderman of Daley's ward, is unlikely to generate many sparks as he plods toward his probable victories in the primary and June 7 general election.

Bilandic, with substantial backing from the business and financial communities, has adopted a strategy of trying to seem as much as possible like Daley, who died Dec. 20 of a heart attack.

Despite a promise when he took office not to run in the primary, Bilandic soon jumped in, reportedly at the urging of the late mayor's son, state Sen. Richard Daley, and the 11th Ward forces who have held the patronage at City Hall for decades.

Bilandic's decision has not stopped the challenge of eight political extroverts.

Edward Hanrahan, 55, the tough-talking former Cook County state's attorney who wrangled endlessly with reporters in the days when he was Daley's protege, now proclaims himself the "fun" candidate.

Hanrahan, fell from grace after the 1969 raid in which Black Panther leader Fred Hampton was killed by investigators from his office. He then was ousted from the Illinois attorney's office by voters and failed in bids for the U.S. House and as mayor.

State Sen. Harold Washington, 55, once a reliable vote for the regular organization in the General Assembly, is also running.

In six weeks he has qualified for mayor, dropped out, announced for president of the state Senate, held out for that post with four "black caucus" votes for a record 185 ballots until striking a deal with the regulars, and then, two days later, jumped back into the mayor's race.

Also in the race is former Cook County Asst. State's Atty. Ellis Reid, whose candidacy is seen as a gauge of how much ground regular Democrats have lost on the South Side since Rep. Ralph Metcalfe, D-Ill., upset City Hall's candidate in last year's 1st district congressional primary.

Former U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, now an alderman, has been campaigning to assemble a coalition of blacks and Polish voters. Although his future looks bleak, the former follower of the Daley organization concedes nothing.

Among Republicans, the candidate of the party slatemaking committee is Alderman Dennis Block, 29, of the North Side 48th Ward. The GOP had hoped to get former Gov. Richard Ogilvie to make the race, but he declined after a poll showed him losing to Bilandic.

The party then turned to Block at the insistence of Gov. James Thompson, who reportedly feared political humiliation if the nomination fell by default to perennial candidate Lar (America First) Daly, who campaigns in an Uncle Sam hat and advocates shooting dope pushers on sight. Daly has not, so far, made the ballot this year.

Rayner, an undertaker and former alderman, was once one of the most outspokenly liberal Democrats at City Hall. His suitcoats sagged with antiwar and "Ban ABM" buttons.

One day he was persuaded that the way to fight the "machine" was to join the Republicans.

Ranallo expressed the sentiment of many of the city's Republicans. "I don't think there is a Republican party here anymore," he told reporters glumly. "The party doesn't mean anything to me."

FUNNY BUSINESS By Roger Bollen

March banner month for cars

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's automakers plan to build more than 900,000 cars in March, the highest monthly output in 3½ years.

The industry journal Ward's Automotive Reports estimated planned output by the four major auto producers at 916,000 cars, an 11 per cent increase from a year ago and the first time production will have topped 900,000 since the Mideast oil embargo.

If Detroit meets its March schedules, car output for the first quarter of 1977 will total 2.31 million units. That would be off some 150,000 cars from earlier targets — mostly the result of recent plant shutdowns triggered by weather-related energy and parts shortages.

Even so, it would be up 6 per cent from the 2.18 million cars built in the first three months of 1976 and represent the highest first-quarter output since 1973.

Production this month was estimated at 681,000 cars, down slightly from the 684,000 built last February. The decline is the result of plant shutdowns due to winter weather and sluggish sales of many small-car models.

Pioneer reporter dies at 76

Howe, who died here Thursday of cancer of the larynx, combined his broadcast efforts with a lifelong championing of civil liberties. From 1932 to 1940, he was director of the American Civil Liberties Union, and after the war, he led an affiliated organization that fought censorship.

He was chief book editor of Simon & Schuster from 1935 to 1942, leaving to join CBS. At CBS, Howe helped make analysis and commentary an acceptable part of news reporting.

In 1947, Howe was dropped from the CBS evening news program at the request of a sponsor, an action which drew criticism of the network and helped lead to greater independence for television news operations.

Howe wrote several books, including "World Diary: 19-29-34;" "England Expects Every American to Do His Duty," and a trilogy titled "A World History of Our Times."

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentine exports during 1975 hit $3 billion, or nearly 12 million tons of exports.

Argentina trades with 130 countries throughout the world, but only 10 countries accounted for two-thirds of the total export revenues. Italy, the Soviet Union, the United States, Spain, Holland, Japan, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba and Chile bought $2-billion-worth of Argentine products.

Joyce Brothers

Just like her father

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I've tried to raise my daughter alone but I think I've failed. She's turned out all wrong. Her father was a bum and she's just like him. That's a terrible thing for a mother to say, but it's the truth. He chased women which is one of the reasons I divorced him. Now my daughter, at 16, is sexually promiscuous too. I'd turn her out of the house, but I'm afraid she'd go on drugs. I'm still responsible for her so I'm trying to be a good mother in spite of everything. — C.Y.

DEAR C.Y.: I think it's important to remember that children identify with both parents and if they hear one parent run down by the other, this does not lessen their feelings of being a part of that parent. Your daughter may unconsciously want to be like her father, thinking that if she is, she can gain his love and respect. If she thinks of him as a sexually promiscuous "bum," the chances are she'll think of herself in the same way. There's little doubt she feels this way if you see her as a failure too.

Promiscuous teenagers are usually in deep emotional trouble, often resulting from a feeling that they're unloved. They want reassurance that they are loveable and use children their own age as substitutes for the expressions of parental approval and love they long for. They may run from person to person desperately trying to get a sense of themselves and their own identity. They want and need acceptance and the very fact of their promiscuity demonstrates that nothing is working for them. They derive very little, if any, pleasure from their sexual activities.

I suggest both you and your daughter seek professional guidance. It could save your relationship and her future.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: Why does my 17-year-old keep making jokes at my expense? In the past two years the brunt of his wit seems to be aimed directly at me, his mother. It hurts me. We had an unusually close relationship. We used to be buddies but now he seems bored to death with me, and can hardly wait to get out of the house. I never thought I'd say this, but I'll be thrilled when he goes away to college and at this point, I hope it's far away. I don't want him in the same town. I wonder if we'll ever be friends again. — C.T.

DEAR C.T.: The fact that you've had such a close relationship may be one of the reasons your son is now sharpening his wit on you.

Seventeen is a difficult age for a young man, for he realizes that if he's ever to gain his emotional independence and break the ties with his mother, now's the time to do it. Adolescent boys are filled with conflicting feelings. Many problems come with the psysiological and psychological changes of puberty with its strong upsurge in sexual feelings and the need to adjust to a changing body.

Much has been written about the dangers of overattachment to mothers, but often, mothers are reluctant to give their sons the freedom necessary to sever these ties. You're wise to realize that it's probably better for both of you if your son moves away from home when he goes to college. Youngsters who don't succeed in breaking the ties, those whose parents make it too difficult, will never be able to form successful mature relationships with members of the opposite sex.

Humor is one way of expressing aggression. Your son may feel angry with himself and may be taking out his anger on you. Once he's free of conflicting emotions he probably will be warm and friendly again.

Couple married Saturday

Jeannette B. Wechselberger of Upland and Harry D. Hofmann of Claremont were married Saturday by the Rev. Robert C. Flagg of the First Presbyterian Church of Upland. The ceremony was performed in the arbor at the top of Picnic Hill at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

Present were the couple's five children and five grandchildren. They are: Dr. and Mrs. Donald Wade of Mill Valley and children, Timothy, Erica and Bradley; Mr. and Mrs. Jay Wechselberger of Hayfork, Calif., and children, Joe and Jerry; Judith Lee Hofmann, Phillip Hofmann and John Wechselberger.

For 15 years Mr. Hofmann was publicity director of the Los Angeles County Fair and is now retained as a consultant. Mrs. Hofmann is an editor and writer for WE Guide magazine, a local monthly publication. During the ceremony the couple exchanged wedding rings that had been in the Hofmann family for over 100 years.

The couple will reside in Claremont.

Jeans with silk shirts? Yes. That's the latest "in" look, but you can still match the silk shirt with a velvet skirt in winter or use it as a jacket on a late summer night if you're not ready for the more casual look.

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Sampson have established a home in Pomona following their marriage at Pomona First Church of the Nazarene.

The former Miss Michelle D. Ferree is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones of Pomona. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ramon E. Sampson of Parkersburg, W. Va.

Honor attendant was Susan Smith of Pomona and best man was Peter Sampson of Parkersburg.

Bridesmaids were Miss Pam Galligan of Pomona, Carol Meewis of Upland, Tonna Jones of La Verne. Ushers were Dean Sampson and David Sampson of Parkersburg and Larry Urena of Pomona.

GOSH
Chalk Talk from
Griswold's Old Schoolhouse

The newest addition to our GOSH family is Jean's Hair Studio, offering a full line of hair services for men and women. Owner Jean Gay has created a lovely salon as her first ownership venture; full of ceramic tiling, stained glass and plants for great atmosphere! Stop by and let the girls pamper your nails or hair — the cuts and styles I've seen walking out of the shop are great! Open Tues. thru Sat. 9-5.

Do you need a fun field trip or group activity? Why not arrange a "Group Grizzle tour" — our very own tour guide will give you a personally escorted tour through the Griswold's bakery or GOSH — everyone gets a kick out of seeing pastry dough rolled out like bolts of cloth or visiting our art center for a demonstration! Call 626-2411, ext. 361 for details.

By the way, come by our Art Gallery soon and see the beautiful things on display — lovely oils, watercolors and charcoals, pottery and stone carvings. Our special show this month features the paintings of Clyde Curran and Doris Cook and in March we'll display Pat Parks and June Walton. The Gallery is a fun, tranquil setting for looking or buying — feel free to do either! While you're wandering through the art center, look for one of our "regulars" — baby Josh Smith, who sometimes tags along to work with his potter-father Ken — the pots may cost you a few dollars, but Josh's smiles are free!

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHY DOES A DOUGHNUT HAVE A HOLE?"

A. THE HOLE IN THE DOUGHNUT ALLOWS THE DOUGH TO COOK MORE THOROUGHLY, MAKING THE DOUGHNUT MORE DIGESTIBLE

TRACY ENGTAD MOUND, MN

At one time the doughnut had no hole. The first fried cakes were brought to colonial America by the early Dutch settlers.

The idea of putting the hole in the doughnut was invented in the 19th century by a sea captain named Hanson Gregory. He enjoyed eating doughnuts, as then made, but they sometimes gave him indigestion.

He found that by cutting a hole in the middle, this allowed the dough to cook more thoroughly and the doughnuts were more digestible.

To make doughnuts, the doughnut maker puts sweetened dough into a doughnut machine that punches out slender rings of dough. The dough rings are then cooked in a vat of boiling oil until they are puffy and crisp.

And once you eat the doughnut, the hole is gone!

'Bubbling Brown Sugar'
Musical at Pantages

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Billie Holiday, Billy Eckstine, William "Bojangles" Robinson, the Nicholas Brothers and Bert Williams come vividly alive in the new production "Bubbling Brown Sugar" at Hollywood's Pantages Theater.

There is no doubt that Vivian Reed in her rendition of Lady Day's "God Bless The Child" steals the show. All accolades go to this magnificent woman dressed in the familiar white, hair pulled back into a tight bun with a gardenia fitting snugly on the side. Her voice sparkles, ripples off your spine, chills and brings back memories of Holiday, a unique performer, a sensuous, sad soul.

Miss Reed brings the house down in the retracing of black musical steps and notes from the 1920s to the late 1940s in Harlem. She warms your heart, soul and mind.

"Bubbling Brown Sugar" is many things. To the older set, it is the nostalgia of remembering live performances of such greats as Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Fats Waller, Ethel Waters, Nat "King" Cole, Ella Fitzgerald, Cab Calloway. They remember trucking through Harlem, dancing and prancing and partying all night long!

For the younger crowd, it is an exploration, a voyage into eras of musical greatness, a basis for understanding what is happening on the contemporary musical scene. It is a foundation to boast of, to revel in, to just feel good about.

For those in between it is part remembering and part history of what came before the memory.

Lucille Futrell Harley is the spotlight performer in the first act with her gospel perfection in "His Eye Is On The Sparrow" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." If anyone was sleeping, he certainly woke up when this lady opened her mouth and flung out a sound remarkedly similar to the great Mahalia Jackson. And she was standing at the Pearly Gates, the subway stop at 135th and Lennox.

Myles G. Savage delivers Duke Ellington's "Sophisicated Lady" in the satin, smooth voice of Billy Eckstine. He is backed by Vikki Baltimore as the dancer Marie Bryant who can best be described as liquid ebony, a pure joy to watch in shimmering silver.

The company, headed by Miss Reed, Jay Flash Riley, Vernon Washington and Mable Lee, closes out with a grand finale at the grand Harlem club, Small's Paradise. Silk suits with satin lapels, tapping toes and heels and the Duke's "It Don't Mean A Thing If It Ain't Got That Swing" closes a great show.

SPDJ salutes expert

The Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz will salute jazz great Rod Ogle at its meeting at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Elks Lodge, 27 W. Huntington Drive, Arcadia.

Ogle has been playing the trombone since he was 15. His first job was with the Tony Catalina Band in Davenport, Iowa. An unknown trumpeter named Bix Beiderbecke was also a member of the band.

In 1926 Ogle joined Ross Gorman's Virginians and over the years performed in bands with such stars as Louis Armstrong, Les Elgart, Harry James and Benny Goodman.

Ogle joined Gene Krupa's band at the New York World's Fair in 1939 and later played with such bands as Ted Weems, Hal Kemp, Glen Gray and Woody Herman. He appeared with Herman in the movie, "Jam Session."

Teens praise Hitler

BERLIN (AP) — Adolf Hitler helped West Germany recover from World War II, lived to a ripe age, was strict, didn't tolerate long-haired youth and "the neighbors still wish sometimes he was back again" — at least according to some German teen-agers.

These and other unusual appraisals of the Nazi leader — sometimes ill-informed, often favorable and always frank — emerged in excerpts from West German school pupils' essays published here Friday.

The Berliner Allgemeine Juedische Wochenzeitung, a weekly serving West Berlin's Jewish community, said the excerpts were compiled by education expert Dieter Bossmann from school essays on the set topic, "What I have heard about Adolf Hitler."

The authors, aged 14 and 15, were born years after Hitler died in the ruins of Berlin in April 1945.

"Hitler was strict with his people and everybody had respect for him ... The neighbors still wish sometimes that he was back again ... He was great in the war too. His soldiers were courageous and even laughed when they went to war."

"Hitler our old Fuehrer. Hitler did not tolerate youth wearing long hair ... For Hitler's leadership, the Jews had to get into showers converted into gas chambers until they were dead or half-dead. Dead or alive, they were thrown into mass graves and caterpillars covered them up."

The newspaper reported that, straying far from historic fact, another pupil wrote: "Hitler was a great personality in the German Reich, around 1935 to 1945. He helped Germany back on its legs after the Second World War. He was just an ordinary citizen later on. He died in the years 1950 to 1956 ..."

Another said: "He was the leader of, I don't know exactly, I think the 2nd world war. He introduced that, when you meet somebody, they had to say Heil Hitler. Hitler lost the war."

New paint, plants may aid inmates

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Bright paint, skylights and plants could help prisoners endure a stay behind bars, a study by the Michigan Department of Corrections claims.

The study found inmates can suffer hallucinations because they often lose "physical clues to time and space" in a bland environment. Using off-whites as a basic wall color and bright, bold paints for moderate walls and fixed features is a suggested remedy.

Other lively colors recommended are "sunspot," "light coffee," "Old Irish" and "real blue." But the report says some shades of black, blue, red and yellow are dangerous because of "psychological and cultural connotations."

The study says proper colors can even improve staff morale, and the process of painting may improve the prisoner-law enforcement officer relationship.

SUMMONS (MARRIAGE)
Case Number EAD-45267
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES
400 Civic Center Plaza,
Pomona, California

In re the marriage of Petitioner: MARY MATILDA BURDETTE and Respondent: JOHN WESLEY BURDETTE

NOTICE! You have been sued. The court may decide against you without your being heard unless you respond within 30 days. Read the information below.

¡AVISO! Usted ha sido demandado. El tribunal puede decidir contra Ud. sin audiencia a menos que Ud. responda dentro de 30 dias. Lea la informacion que sigue.

1. To the Respondent (See footnote*):
   a. The petitioner has filed a petition concerning your marriage. You may file a written response within 30 days of the date that this summons is served on you.
   b. If you fail to file a written response within such time, your default may be entered and the court may enter a judgment containing injunctive or other orders concerning division of property, spousal support, child custody, child support, attorney's fees, costs, and such other relief as may be granted by the court, which could result in the garnishment of wages, taking of money or property, or other relief.
   c. If you wish to seek the advice of an attorney in this matter, you should do so promptly so that your written response, if any, may be filed on time.

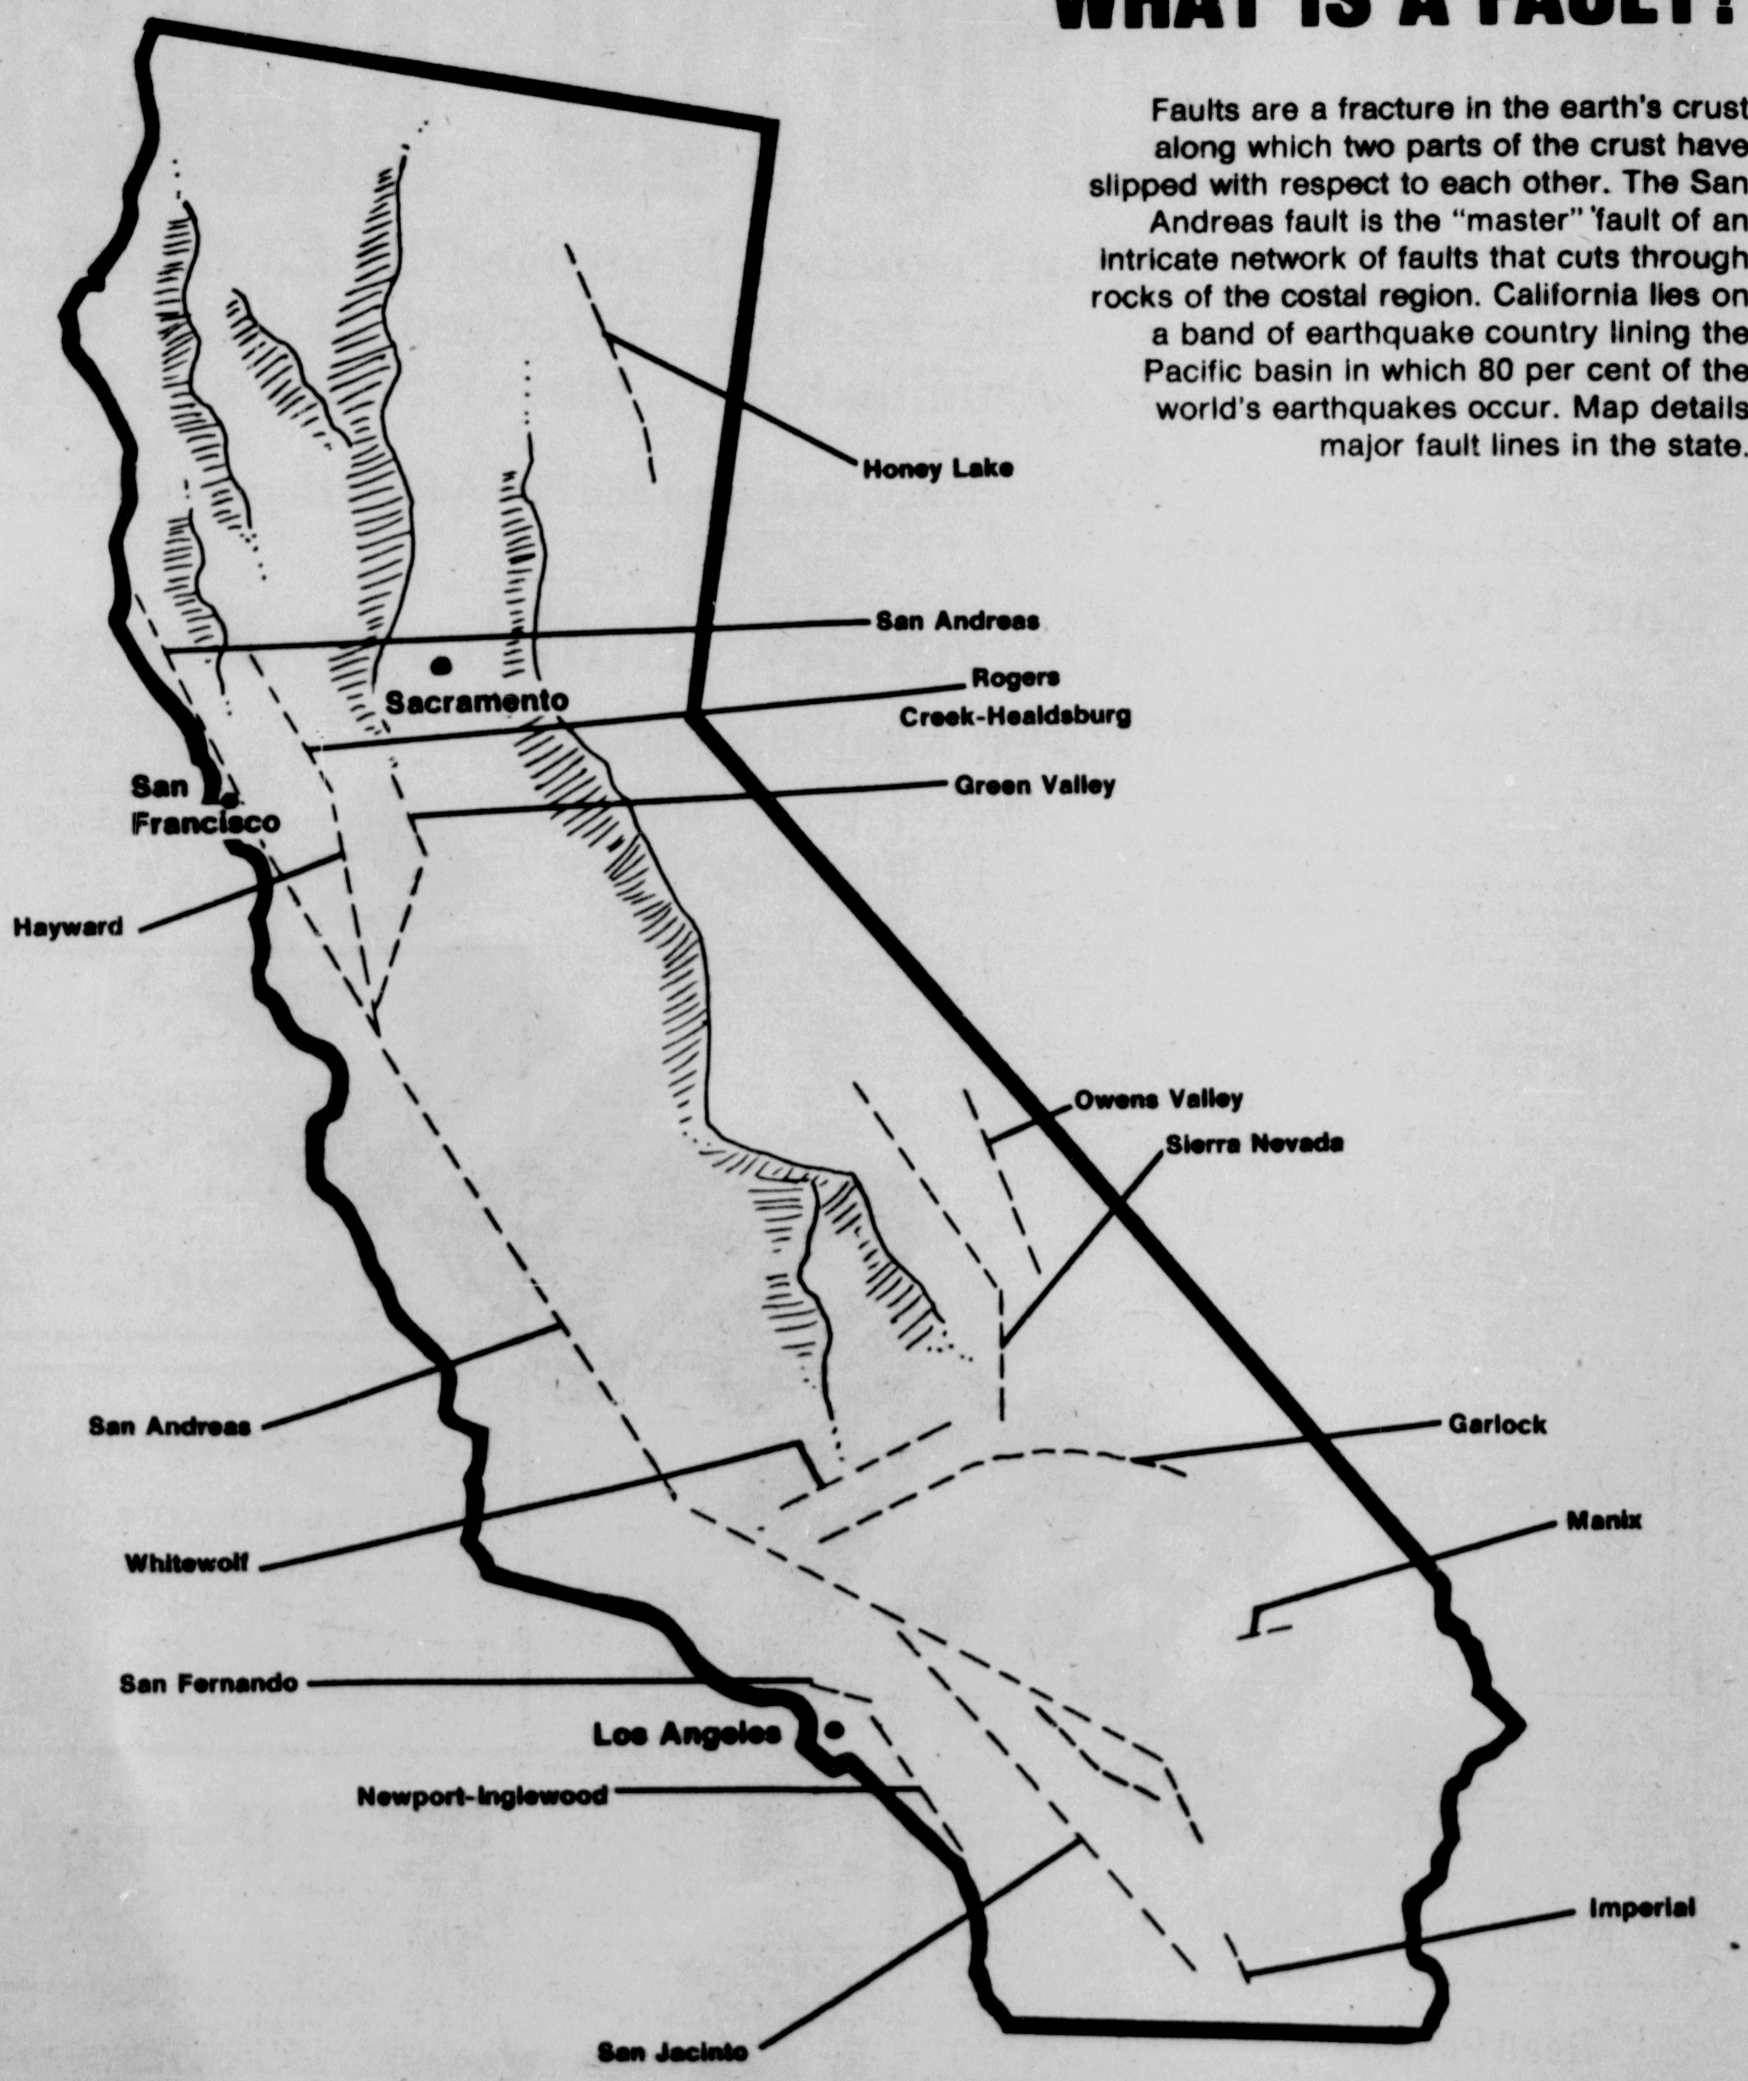
California's Major Earthquake Faults



WHAT IS A FAULT?

Faults are a fracture in the earth's crust along which two parts of the crust have slipped with respect to each other. The San Andreas fault is the "master" fault of an intricate network of faults that cuts through rocks of the costal region. California lies on a band of earthquake country lining the Pacific basin in which 80 per cent of the world's earthquakes occur. Map details major fault lines in the state.

Temblors stir awareness of human 'vulnerability'

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

There is no other feeling quite like it.

In the few seconds it lasts the memory is etched for a lifetime — senses overwhelmed with the sudden awareness of human frailty.

When it is over it will be talked about for months, even years, because no other natural event unleashes the power of an earthquake with such devastating speed.

Anyone in Southern California at the time can recall exactly where he was on the morning of Feb. 9, 1971 when the last major earthquake struck this region, causing deaths and millions of dollars in damages in the San Fernando Valley.

Scientists all agree such quakes will continue to happen occassionally. That quake, though destructive, was only of moderate strength when compared to "great" earthquakes, however.

Great earthquakes, measuring 8-0 or higher on the Richter Scale, must also be expected periodically in California every 50 or 100 years. Many think we are now overdue.

When the next great quake strikes, experts say it will probably be associated with the great San Andreas Fault which runs almost the length of the state from San Francisco, through the San Joaquin Valley, north of the San Gabriel Mountains, through San Bernardino and on south to Mexico.

A major secondary fault branching off the San Andreas runs just north of the valley. It is called the Sierra Madre Fault and extends along the length of the San Gabriel Mountains.

To the south of the valley, towards Corona, lies another major secondary fault called the Whittier Fault, stretching generally from Corona through the Chino Hills westward through the foothills into the east Los Angeles area.

Within the valley itself there are several fault zones, similar to hundreds that lace Southern California.

One is the Indian Hill Fault, running east-west along the base of the valley foothills. Another is the San Jose Fault which runs diagonally across Pomona from Claremont toward the Walnut area. The third is the Chino Fault which follows the foothills from Corona, through Los Serranos into Pomona.

In the 1971 San Fernando Valley Quake for instance, ground along the San Gabriel Fault slipped in some points by 30 inches.

Damage caused by an actual rupture in the earth accounts for only a minor, almost insignificant portion of all damages in an earthquake, however.

Far more severe and widespread in destructiveness is the shaking of the ground, which can vary from place to place without regard to proximity to local fault zones.

Scientists say subterranean features such as the composition of soil and rock will have a bearing on how violent the shaking motion will be at a specific point, but there are still many unknown factors involved.

To help answer some of the mysteries, scientists from the California Institure of Technology's seismological laboratory in Pasadena have devised an extensive chain of "listening" stations in the earth along the San Andreas and other fault zones.

They also hope that the extremely sensitive data, which can measure slippage the width of a human hair, can one day be used to predict earthquakes.

FAULT LINE — Reactivated by the earthquake of 1971 centered in San Fernando, this fault line in Kagel Canyon opened a fissure across a road and into the mountainside. Movement was so violent that it threw many persons out of their beds.

Tips for safety, survival

Earthquake 'dangers' listed by Red Cross

The American National Red Cross is constantly assisting in disasters of all types — flood, fire, famine, hurricanes and earthquakes.

Local chapters of the Red Cross are constantly training first aiders and disaster and shelter teams to be immediately on call in case of a disaster in the valley.

Claremont, Pomona and Ontario chapters have recently assisted in fires in the national forest, in apartment complexes and in individual homes.

To better alert the public in the case of earthquakes, the Pomona Red Cross has a Safety and Survival in an Earthquake brochure available free of charge at its office, 420 N. Reservoir St., Pomona.

The Dangers

The actual movement of the ground in an earthquake is seldom the direct cause of death or injury. Most casualties result from falling objects and debris because the shocks can shake, damage, or demolish buildings and other structures. Earthquakes may also trigger landslides and generage huge ocean waves (seismic sea waves), each of which can cause great damage.

Injuries are commonly caused by:

—Flying glass from broken windows.

What Can You Do?

BEFORE AN EARTHQUAKE OCCURS

1. As a citizen:

—In those areas where damaging earthquakes can be expected, support local safe building codes with efficient inspection and firm enforcement.

—Support school building programs which provide for strengthening of old, weak school buildings or their replacement with earthquake-resistive structures on ground reasonably safe from failure during a strong earthquake.

—Support community efforts to replace old weak buildings and to insure that loose objects on building exteriors (e.g. cornices) are either removed or securely fastened.

—Organize and support programs to prepare for future earthquakes.

—Support research to learn more about the earthquake problem and to supply information needed to plan wisely the siting, design, and construction of man-made structures.

2. As a homeowner or tenant:

—Check your home for earthquake hazards. Bolt down or provide other strong support for water heaters and other gas appliances since fire damage can result from broken lines and appliances connections. Use flexible connections wherever possible. Place large and heavy objects on the lower shelves. Securely fasten shelves to walls. Brace or anchor high or top-heavy objects.

—In new construction and alterations follow building codes to minimize earthquake hazards. Sites for construction should be selected and engineered to reduce the hazard of damage from an earthquake.

3. As a parent or head of a family:

—Hold occasional home earthquake drills to provide your family with the knowledge to avoid injury and panic during an earthquake.

—Teach responsible members of your family how to turn off electricity, gas, and water at main switch and valves. Check with your local utilities office for insturctions.

—Provide for responsible members of your family to receive basic first aid instruction because medical facilities may be overloaded immediately after a severe earthquake. Call your local Red Cross or civil defense director for information about classes.

—Keep a flashlight and a battery-powered transistor radio in the home, ready for use at all times.

—Keep immunizations up to date for all family members.

—Conduct calm family discussions about earthquakes and other possible disasters. Do not tell frightening stories about disasters.

DURING AN EARTHQUAKE

—Remain calm. Think through the consequences of any action you take. Try to calm and reassure others.

—If indoors, watch for falling plaster, bricks, light fixtures, and other objects. Watch out for high bookcases, china cabinets, shelves, and other furniture which might slide or topple. Stay away from windows, mirrors, and chimneys. If in danger, get under a table, desk, or bed; in a corner away from windows; or in a strong doorway. Encourage others to follow your example. Usually it is best not to run outside.

—If in a high-rise office building, get under a desk. Do not dash for exits, since stairways may be broken and jammed with people. Power for elevators may fail.

—If in a crowded store, do not rush for a doorway since hundreds may have the same idea. If you must leave the building, choose your exit as carefully as possible.

—If outside, avoid high buildings, walls, power poles, and other objects which could fall. So do not run through streets. If possible, move to an open area away from all

Twisted steel and scattered concrete in temblor's wake

The disastrous earthquake of February 9, 1971 jarred much of Southern California and left many buildings and roadways in tumbled ruins. Among these ruins was a wing of San Fernando's Olive View Hospital, where a stairwell collapsed, taking a wing of the hospital with it. New building standards have since been adopted.

Survival tips—

hazards. If an automobile, stop in the safest place available, preferably an open area.

AFTER AN EARTHQUAKE

—Check for injuries in your family and neighborhood. Do not attempt to move seriously injured persons unless they are in immediate danger of further injury.

—Check for fires or fire hazards.

—Check utility lines and applicances for damage. If gas leaks exist, shut off the main gas valve. Shut off electrical power if there is damge to your house wiring. Report damage to the appropriate utility companies and follow their instructions. Do not use matches, lighters, or open flame appliances until you are sure no gas leaks exist. Do not operate electrical switches or appliances if gas leaks are suspected. This creats sparks which can ignite gas from broken lines.

—Check to see that sewage lines are intact before permitting continued flushing of toilets.

—Do not eat or drink anything from open containers near shattered glass. Liquids may be strained through a clean handkerchief or cloth if danger of glass contamination exists.

—If power is off, check your freezer and plan meals to use up foods which will spoil quickly.

—Do not use your telephone except for genuine emergency calls. Turn on your radio for damage reports and information.

—Check your chimney over its entire length for cracks and damage, particularly in the attic and at the roof line. Unnoticed damage could lead to a fire. The initial check should be made from a distance. Approach chimneys with caution.

—Do not go sightseeing immediately, particularly in beach and waterfront areas where seismic sea waves could strike. Keep the street clear for passage of emergency vehciles.

—Be prepared for additional earthquake shocks called "aftershocks." Although most of these are smaller than the main shock, some may be large enough to cause additional damage.

—Respond to requests for help from police, fire fighting, civil defense, and relief organizations, but do not go into damaged areas unless your help has been requested. Cooperate fully with public-safety officials. In some areas, you may be arrested for getting in the way of disaster operations.

Temblor strikes in Carson City

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A sharp earthquake jolted the California-Nevada border region just before 10:30 p.m. on Monday, but no injuries or damage were reported.

Residents of Carson City, Reno and the Lake Tahoe area reported feeling a sharp jolt. Bob Stewart, of the Nevada governor's office, described it as "a short, west-to-east rolling motion."

Seismologists at the Univerity of California at Berkeley said the quake registered 5 on the Richter scale and was centered on a point 60 miles southeast of Lake Tahoe.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 5 can cause considerable damage. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage; 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage.

Says local physicist, educator

Earthquakes cannot be predicted or prevented

Earthquakes cannot be predicted nor prevented, but people can prepare for them, according to a professor emeritus at Harvey Mudd College in Claremont.

Alfred B. Focke, a physicist and educator who has had seismology as a hobby for over 50 years, warns that people who live in California must realize that "it's earthquake country."

Focke was called upon frequently in the past few months to dispel stories that the Southland was faced with imminent disaster resulting from an earthquake just before Christmas.

The seismometer and other equipment at Harvey Mudd College keeps a continuous record of all earth movements around the world and can pinpoint the time, location and itensity of any activity.

"There are continuous earthquakes along the western border of South America," Focke says. "It would be safe to predict one in that area almost every day if you didn't take into consideration the intensity."

"Five years ago, the Russians announced that they MIGHT have something which MIGHT predict earthquakes," Focke says. "A geological survey station in Menlo Park followed the Russian research and did predict an earthquake which occurred near Hollister. Of course, there are almost daily minor earthquakes in California, too."

Focke says that China is a leader in the field of earthquake prediction. The study of earthquakes has been given high priority in China because of the tremendous loss of life from them over the years.

"Chinese geologists observed three to four-inch bulge over an area of some 100 square miles and studied its effect on earthquakes. They have been looking at what happens to the earth before the quake hits and during the eruption."

The professor says that Chinese scientists did foresee one major quake and were able to warn the people to evacuate buildings, thus probably saving many lives.

"But I wonder how many heads rolled when the Chinese scientists missed the recent major quake southeast of Peking," says Focke. "So much for predictions."

The prediction of a Cal Tech professor that a major earthquake would occur in the area between Fillmore and Mt. Baldy and the coast and San Andreas fault before April of 1977 has been highly publicized.

"Now Cal Tech is saying that the continuing data is confusing, but the possibility still exists," says Focke.

He, too, feels that there should be a sizeable quake soon, based upon the past history of earthquakes in the Southland.

There have been 14 major earthquakes in the area between Santa Barbara and San Diego since records started being kept in 1899. These include a 1901 quake which leveled the Alberhill Brick Co. south of Corona, the 1925 quake which almost leveled Long Beach.

More recent damaging quakes have occurred in Desert Hot Springs in 1948, in Bakersfield in the early 1950s and in Sylmar in 1971.

He explains that the rising bulge in the Mojave Desert is a result of the pressure of the Southern California shelf coastline against the inner areas. Focke says that the San Andreas fault which runs through the mountain range here is actually the boundary between the North American continent to the east and the Pacific plate which includes California west of the fault and the ocean floor.

"Actually, we live on the California Island," Focke says, "and if we could wait long enough, California will separate from the rest of the country.

"But it will never fall into the ocean, as some people have said. There's no place to fall.

"But Los Angeles is gradually moving north toward San Francisco," he adds.

Focke explained that the pressure caused by the shifting of the Pacific plate against the Mojave area

'Conodonts' shed light

Minute 'mini-fossils' hold keys to earth's history

They look like cones with ribs, oval-shaped without noticeable head or tail. A thin line down their backs gives them the semblance of a spine. They're so small, 60 of them can fit on a 1-by-3 inch microscope slide and still have plenty of room to breathe.

It's hard to believe that something that tiny, that primitive-looking can hold one of the keys to understanding the history of the earth. But these mini-fossils called conodonts are providing essential clues in the geologic search for the beginnings of life.

Earth Sciences Professor Michael Murphy of the University of California, Riverside, hopes that conodonts will shed light on events that happened nearly 440 million years ago, a period about which little is known. It's a transition period, a hazy area between the Siluarian and Ordovician eras of geologic time.

"Fossils are used to date rocks," he said. "In order to work out the history and structure of rocks, one of the most essential tools is to be able to date them. This tells you the movement on faults, distribution of marine sediments, whatever was happening in that region."

The region Murphy is most concerned about is in central Nevada, about 50 miles north of the town of Eureka. The rocks there are well exposed, and most of all, conodont fossils are relatively plentiful, particularly for that hazy target era of time.

The National Science Foundation has awarded Murphy $35,000 so that in the next two years he can find answers that might fill the information gap.

"This will aid in the historical interpretation of the area," he said, "and in economic exploitation if there is potential. Oil companies are extremely interested in studies like this."

Murphy said that this particular area of Nevada probably doesn't possess petroleum potential within its stratified layers, but the data that fossils like conodonts yield could increase the efficiency of petroleum searches elsewhere.

"Any drilling operation is an estimation," he said. "They expect to hit a target (of oil) at a particular depth. They study the rocks from which it comes and, in drilling additional wells, use fossil information to identify targets.

The professor and his assistants will measure the thickness of sedimentary layers there, plot the types of rocks encountered, then gather 10 or 15 pounds of rock samples from each layer for laboratory analysis.

The rocks are placed in acid baths, and the bone-like substance of the conodont, being insoluable in weak acid, forms a sandy residue with other insoluables at the bottom. This residue is further bathed, and the heavier conodonts are separated and are picked out individually under a microscope. Finally they are analyzed, based on the rock layer in which they were found.

A group of microscopic fossils of unknown affinity, conodonts are suspected of belonging to the chordates and thus may be distantly related to vertebrate animals. Murphy said that though they lived on earth for nearly 360 million years, their value in fossil dating has only been exploited since the 1950s. Their appearance in Nevada wasn't discovered until 1964.

Murphy has been visiting the Roberts Mountain area of Nevada nearly every summer since 1950. Its geologic formations have been studied and mapped by teachers and students from several institutions, including UCR, for several years.

One of the things that intrigues Murphy about the current conodont project is that "you never know what you'll find. Little has been done in exploring what occurred during this time period, so anything we find will probably be new and different."

Like a couple of years ago, when he and graduate student Tom Morgan were doing some standard surveying and sampling when they came across bone fragments imbedded in rock. They took them home, etched them out in the lab and found them to be parts of a prehistoric fish-like creature called a placoderm.

These placoderms were flat, resembling halibut, but with peculiar paddle-like fins attached with ball-and-socket joints. The head and thorax were armored for protection, and some of them grew to 9 or 10 feet long.

"This may eventually be a link in the knowledge about evolution of vertebrates," said Murphy, who turned the discovery over to paleontology professor Joseph Gregory of Berkeley. Today the site is being quarried and studied intensively for further fossils.

Again two years ago, John Durham, another graduate student of Murphy's accidentally came across one of the earliest occurrences of radiolarians, a microscopic single-celled organism. Their silicious fossil skeleton structure is tinier than the conodonts and much harder to analyze — only three other sites of this approximate age containing radiolaria have been discovered.

"The surface rock can be compressed just so much, then it will break and this is an earthquake," explains the professor.

"History shows that earthquakes come in swarms and there have been a number of quakes recently, all over the globe," he adds.

The seismometer at Harvey Mudd College showed clearly the location and magnitude of both the South American and Turkey quakes plus the strength of recent ones throughout California. Much of the computations is based upon the time lag between the compression wave and the shear wave. The directions of the movements of the seismometer also indicates the location.

While Focke says he cannot tell the public when a quake will occur, he can offer some suggestions for survival.

First, don't put heavy objects on high shelves where they will become weapons flying through the air.

Second, stay away from windows which may shatter. Instead, stand in an inside doorway so you can jump or crawl either way.

Third, if you are outside, stay there, but don't run outside and risk being struck with falling roof tiles or chimneys.

Wooden houses are the safest, Focke said, and most structures constructed since the earthquake safety legislation was passed are quite safe.

He also recommends that families keep an adequate amount of water and other supplies stored in case of an emergency.

"But," adds Focke, "we still live in a civilized community and don't need massive stores of food.

"As long as the public realistically understands the problems inherent in living in an earthquake-prone area and acts sensibly; there's no cause for mass panic."

So-called 'Palmdale bulge'

Folded, faulted mountains formed by growing fault

Southern California's transverse ranges, composed of the San Gabriel and San Bernardino mountains, are a large folded, faulted, and uplifted section of the earth's crust that is probably caused by a growing bend in the San Andreas Fault.

The so-called "Palmdale Bulge," a 10-inch rise that extends over 100 miles, may be a continuation of the same mountain-building process that lifted the two ranges up to 10,000 feet, reports seismologist David Hadley of the California Institute of Technology.

Normally mountain ranges like the Sierra Nevada have deep granite "roots" supporting their weight. The Sierra roots go down some 30 miles. But neither gravity nor seismic data anlyzed by graduate student Hadley and Dr. Hiroo Kanamori, Caltech professor of geophysics, showed evidence of roots for the San Gabriels or San Bernardinos.

Hadley explained that lack of roots is evidence that the ranges may be the result of an upward folding of the crust. There is additional evidence that the upper mantle beneath most of the transverse ranges has an unusually high seismic velocity — the speed that sound waves travel through rock.

The great bend of the San Andreas Fault begins northeast of San Fernando and ends south of Bakersfield. Those two cities are the scenes of California's most damaging earthquakes in the past quarter century.

Hadley pointed out that the Hadley-Kanamori concept of the area's tectonics predicts an uplift north of the San Bernardino Mountains. The Palmdale bulge may be part of this uplift, he said.

"The bulge has been isolated for study, rather than being considered as part of the overall geologic activity in the area. It's important to understand the uplift that's occurred over all the transverse ranges in recent geologic time."

Seismic data from a network of 130 seismological stations in Southern California, operated by Caltech and the U.S. Geological Survey, indicate that the fault's bend is caused by something pushing the Southern California portion of the earth's crust in a southwesterly direction. This "push" possibly originates in Nevada and Utah, a region that has experienced major crustal extension in recent times.

The fault should be a straight line through California," Hadley said. He added that the bend probably will straighten out in time. When it does, he predicted, the fault line probably will be several miles northeast of the present line in the bend area.

"The San Andreas Fault is a comparatively young feature, geologically speaking, being only about five million years old," the seismologist said. "Perhaps in the next two to three million years the bend will become very tight, and the active trace of the fault will move farther inland. That would bring the fault close to the southern end of the Sierras. The establishment of a new San Andreas will probably be a slow transition."

The San Andreas, which now extends southwesterly in California from the Mendocino coast to the Imperial Valley and thence into the Gulf of California, is the boundary between two great tectonic plates: The Pacific Plate is moving northwesterly with respect to the North American Plate. California's earthquakes are caused by the two plates grinding against each other during this movement.

Twenty million years ago, Hadley pointed out, the plate boundary was off the coast of what is now California. More recently, a section of the North American Plate was "welded" onto the Pacific Plate and the plate boundary moved inland.

"If what we're proposing is right, the bend will get tighter and it will jump inland again. This tends to straighten out the fault."

Many geologists believe the San Gabriel Fault, which runs along the south side of the San Gabriel Mountains (while the San Andreas marks the northern boundary of that range), is probably a strand of the San Andreas that has been abandoned in its migration inland, Hadley noted.

The seismic data used by Hadley and Kanamori suggests to them the boundary between the two plates in Southern California is the same for both the 20-mile-thick crust and the mantle in the region of the Imperial Valley. But as one moves northwesterly along the fault, the crustal segment of the fault may be offset to the west of the mantle segments of the San Andreas are many miles apart. At one time the two parts of the fault probably were lined up.

Seismometers and gravimeters provided Kanamori and Hadley with the data for their paper. The two kinds of instruments corroborated each other in indicating that the two mountain ranges are rootless, and that it is likely the San Andreas Fault is offset between crust and upper mantle. The seismometers recorded seismic waves passing through the area from distant quakes and quarry dynamite blasts. Wave velocities were measured because they reflect regional changes in velocities of underground rocks.

QUAKE DAMAGE — At least 65 persons died in the 1971 San Fernando earthquake, many of them in this, the crumbled remains of the Veterans Hospital.

Earthquake 'sleuth' tracks old temblors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With dusty, yellowed newsclips and a knack for picking the memories of old-timers, earthquake sleuth Diana Dale is shaking up the nation's earthquake history.

In the last 2½ years, Ms. Dale has wiped from the books inaccurate records of three major quakes and unearthed six improperly located quakes.

Tracking down old earthquakes can be tricky detective work because until relatively recently seismographic equipment wasn't standardized and seismographic stations were not widespread, the 30-year-old Bechtel Corp. geologist says.

"If somebody made a goof in 1870, and he was a well-known geologist, that opinion gets passed down until somebody like me goes out in the field and investigates it," she said.

She digs up the quake history of areas planning nuclear power plants or other major construction for Bechtel. Sometimes her findings challenge the "Earthquake History of the United States," a catalogue published every 10 years by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

"The public should be aware of the facts, of the geological reality of an area to set regional safety standards for all building," Ms. Dale said. "The key is to go and get it officially cleared off the record."

Her latest project is relocating the Dec. 14, 1872 earthquake once placed in Puget Sound, where a nuclear plant is now being planned. She says the quake, the first reported in the region, actually took place about 100 miles southeast in the Wenatchee-Lake Chelan area of central Washington.

On another caper, an active fault sighted through aerial photographs between Folsom and Roseville, Calif. turned out to be just the traces of an old Gold Rush railroad bed, she said.

Ms. Dale attributes her success to "the way I put together the clues." In addition to collecting traditional geological and meteorological information, she draws upon old newspapers and old local residents.

A newsclip from a 1905 edition of the Gasden Times News revealed that a jolt recorded as an "earthquake" in that small Alabama town was really a dynamite blasting for a tunnel at nearby Tumlin Gap.

And she said all evidence points to a tornado rather than an earthquake on Jan. 8, 1891 in Rusk, Texas, where buildings shook.

"The U.S. government records first picked up the earthquake report from a story in the London Times, which got it from a Dallas paper. Once in the record, the error was perpetuated," she said.

Experiment may lead to prediction tools

Michigan geologist waiting for big Southland quake

A University of Michigan geologist is setting up equipment in the Palmdale Uplift area of Southern California. Once everything is in place, he thinks it might be hit by a good-sized earthquake.

And there's a strong chance that it will.

Bruce R. Clark, professor of geology and mineralogy, has been working with the U.S. Geological Survey to see if pressure buildups in rocks can be used to predict earthquakes.

The site of his study is the mountainous area northeast of Los Angeles where highly publicized predictions of earthquakes have been made recently. Clark is installing stress-measuring instruments in two prime fault areas, the Santa Susana-Sierra Madre fault systems along the south edge of the San Gabriel range, and the San Andreas fault between Ft. Tejon and Cajon Pass.

This part of the San Andreas fault has had no major quakes since the 1857 Fort Tejon quake. The famous 1906 San Francisco quake occurred 300 miles north on the San Andreas fault.

"Since 90 per cent of all earthquakes occur along the fault lines of previous quakes, this area is likely to see more large quakes," said Clark. "Furthermore, in the past 15 years the Palmdale area has risen almost 10 inches. This kind of uplift has been correlated with subsequent earthquake events in Japan, and it is certainly worth watching closely in California."

Although a widely accepted prediction for a Palmdale quake within the year was recently rescinded, Clark remains concerned that one will take place in the near future.

"Having data on dynamic changes in horizontal stress levels both before and during a quake might provide the key to solid predictions," he says. "Although we're much closer now than we were five years ago, I think it will be another five to 10 years before we'll be able to make reliable predictions as a matter of routine."

Clark says the ideal would be to make short-term predictions, accurate within a day or two prior to the event.

"The problem is that precursors of earthquakes are not easy to study," he explains. "We can't create a large quake in the laboratory, or have the instruments in the right place for one whenever and wherever it happens."

Furthermore, he notes, since major quakes occur less frequently than moderate ones, they are the hardest to study.

"Right now the science of earthquake prediction is in its infancy, not much better than a hit-or-miss matter," he says. "Although successful predictions have been made by reputable scientists, some 'quacks' have done just as well."

For example, he reports that the Chinese have made sound technological innovations that have brought us closer to reliable predictions. In 1975 they correctly predicted a quake, evacuated the area six hours before it hit, and saved thousands of lives.

"But since then," he notes, " they missed predicting the enormously destructive quake last summer, the largest in the world since the 1964 Alaska quake."

Clark's approach to earthquake prediction is something new. So far, predictions have concentrated on seismic waves which show how shock effects travel from the site of a disturbance.

"What we're doing is monitoring real stress changes directly to establish long-term patterns," Clark says. "Just as the velocity of seismic waves tends to decrease right before a quake, we expect to find that anomalies in the stress pattern, such as a sudden drop or increase in pressure, also precede a quake."

Clark's work is an application of the new field of rock mechanics, the study of how stresses build up in rocks. It was originally developed to solve problems with underground tunnels and mines by estimating the strength and breaking points of the rocks.

"There's good evidence that building dams, filling reservoirs, and pumping liquid wastes into the earth have set off small quakes," notes Clark. "As a resutl, areas are now being studied by 'rock mechanic' geologists and engineers before such projects are undertaken."

For the earthquake studies, Clark is installing stress-measuring instruments in boreholes 20 and 70 feet deep in rocks. "The assumption is that what goes on near the surface indicates activities at much greater depths, where the earthquakes originate," he explains.

The information gathered at the test sites will be telemetered to computers at UC Berkeley, then sent on to Clark for analysis. "We expect to be getting results by late spring," he says.

Landscape transformed

Quake has forever 'changed' Guatemala

CHIMALTENANGO, Guatemala (AP) —The landscape has changed forever here in the highlands of western Guatemala where the earthquake of Feb. 4, 1976, toppled whole villages nestled between the smoldering volcanos.

Gone are the orange tile roofs and whitewashed adobe houses, the ancient churches. In their place are galvanized sheet roofinl, clapboard walls and the first permanent, wooden construction.

The quake struck at 3:02 a.m., killing more than 23,000 persons, injuring 75,000 others and leaving a million homeless a sixth of the population.

Some 13,000 persons were killed here in the State of Chimaltenango, a rugged mountain region where most of the people are Cakchiquel Indians.

Whole villages were destroyed, their adobe and mud brick houses collapsing as the earth shifted along a 150-mile section of the Motagua Fault, which stretches from Puerto Puerto Barrios on the east coast, passing about 15 miles north of Guatemala City, to the Western highlands.

The damage was staggering. The Guatemalan government has estimated total physical loss at $1 billion more than 60 per cent in housing. The government said $200 million worth of schools, hospitals, water systems and government buildings were destroyed and another $200 million worth of highways, bridges, telecommunications equipment and seaports.

Immediately after the quake, President Kjell Eugenio Laugarud promised a roof over everyone's head and adopted the reconstruction slogan, "Guatemala On Its Feet."

Emergency legislation increased the national budget for 1976 from $555 million to a record high of $744 million. This year's budget was boosted to $698 million.

The government invested heavily in public housing projects in Guatemala City and in rebuilding seaports and opening major highways which were knocked out by destroyed bridges and landslides. It also made long-term loans and subsidized housing materials available to the homeless.

By the end of the year, international development agencies and other governments had committed some $240 billion in donations and loans for reconstruction. The government expects to get another $100 million in loans from these sources over the next four or five years.

The thrust of government and foreign reconstruction has been to help the victims help themselves and to avoid making them dependent on charity. No money is being handed out, but self-help programs have sprung up all over the country.

Several foreign governments have assisted in rebuilding entire villages. Canada spent $4.4 million on an initial project which accounted for 2,000 wooden homes in San Andres Itzapa and more than 600 in San Jose Poaquil — both in Chimaltenango state.

The U.S. Congress authorized $25 million for the emergency, which as been used for temporary shelter materials, assistance to voluntary agencies and reconstruction of highways, including the key route to the main Atlantic ocean port of Puerto Barrios. The United States also donated prefabricated naval buildings to serve as temporary schools in time for the opening of classes this month.

The construction has accelerated the economy, with the government predicting national economic growth of 6 per cent when the final figures for 1976 are in, foreign reserves of $500 million, a low foreign debt repayment schedule and record earnings from coffee and cotton exports.

But the growth has been accompanied by rising prices and wages and a 13 per cent increase in the consumer price index in 1976.

Recordings may help identify new faults

Hope that seismograph recordings may serve to identify active faults and to locate some of the deep fractures is but partly justified. Small shocks, when their foci are reasonably well known, are positive evidence that something is occurring at depth; but in general they present no easily comprehended picture.

In more than forty years of seismograph recording in Southern California, maps of epicenters of small shocks display a general and irregular sprinkling of spots over the entire area with few evident alignments that might indicate larger active faults. There is one conspicuous exception: small earthquakes, and some larger one, have occurred with relative frequency along the entire course of the San Jacinto fault from the point where it branches from the San Andreas fault west of Wrightwood, southeastward through mountains and valleys into Imperial County. Also, within Los Angeles County small earthquakes confirm the continuing activity of the Inglewood and Norwalk faults.

FISSURE OPENED — Just before sunrise Feb. 9, 1971, the earth shuddered and heaved. A small thing in nature, but a massive upheaval for man as the earthquake smashed buildings, crumbled roadways and opened deep fissures, such as this one located in a trailer park in Lopez Canyon. It left at least 65 persons dead in its wake.

Shocks precede 'most' quakes

Most of the notable earthquakes in Southern California's history were preceded by smaller shocks from nearly the same source; the succeeding intervals were on the order of minutes, days or weeks. Exceptionally, there was no such foreshock preceding the San Fernando earthquake. Foreshocks offer no hope of advance warning since there is nothing to distinguish them from the common small earth quakes of the region until after the main event.

Aftershocks are to be expected and, after an earthquake of the magnitude of the San Fernando earthquake, they are numerous and long continued. Occasionally, damaging earthquakes occur in pairs of nearly equal magnitude. There were two such earthquakes at Helena, Montana: on October 18 and October 31, 1935. Such pairs of earthquakes have occurred repeatedly in the region of Imperial Valley and the Colorado River delta. However, they have been uncommon in Los Angeles County and its surrounding area.

Aftershocks, smaller than the main earthquake but large enough to cause damage, often occur after many months. Such a shock occurred at Santa Barbara one year, to the day, after the destructive earthquake of 1925. The major Kern County earthquake of July, 1952, (magnitude 7.6) had a large aftershock in January, 1954 (magnitude 5.9). The Borrego Mountain earthquake (Magnitude 6.4) on April 4, 1968, was followed by a strong shock (Magnitude 5.9) on April 30, 1969. For the Long Beach earthquake of March 10, 1933, the corresponding time interval was shorter: the last large aftershock occurred on October 2, 1933.

QUAKE MEASURED — The fault that delivered the devastating earthquake in the San Fernando Valley in February, 1971, passed through this measuring instrument placed by the U.S. Geological Survey Team. The San Fernando quake caused at least 65 deaths and millions of dollars in damage to building and roadways throughout the Southland. Los Angeles County was declared a disaster area and the eyes of the scientific community focused on California.

The San Fernando earthquake provided new and convincing evidence that the risk of damage from strong shaking and from faulting is not confined to the action of faults readily recognizable as active. Previously published information had indicated the existence of most of the faults along which displacements occurred, but no special attention was directed to the earthquake risk.

Faults, active or not, in mountains and in other areas of rock exposure are identifiable by experienced geologists, but it is much more difficult to trace their courses under the deep alluvium of the valleys. Data on groundwater levels, determined from well-water exploration and production records or by geophysical techniques, give some information, but interpretation is not always accurate. Where there has been deep sub-surface exploration for petroleum deposits further valuable details may be available; however, such information often is difficult to collect and correlate.

The major fracturing in the San Fernando earthquake occurred far below the surface, beginning at a depth of about eight miles below a point east of Newhall, called the epicenter of the main shock. It then extended out under the San Fernando Valley to the vicinity of Chatsworth, across the general trend of the mountain structures and of such other features as the San Gabriel fault.

10 million residents awakened by 'sudden' shock

Shortly after six o'clock on the morning of February 9, 1971, between five and ten million residents of Southern California were awakened by the sudden and frightening shock of an earthquake. In ten seconds extensive damage was done to structures, mainly in the northern San Fernando Valley. Some of these structures collapsed, causing deaths and injuries, others were damaged to the verge of collapse, and many suffered costly, though non-hazardous, damage.

The earthquake centered near Pacoima Dam just northeast of the San Fernando Veterans Administration Hospital. In the northern San Fernando Valley the shaking was very intense; in central Los Angeles the shaking was strong, attenuating to rather weak shaking in Long Beach. It was fortunate that the earthquake was not of greater magnitude, for in that case a much greater area would have experienced very strong ground shaking and there would have been a much greater loss in life and property damage.

The earthquake had a Richter magnitude of 6.6, and the area deformed by the fault slip was about twelve to fifteen miles on a side. The effect was that an area of approximately 200 square miles in the San Gabriel Mountains moved southward and rose permanently several feet. In doing so it caused very strong ground shaking over this area and propagated ground-shaking waves, whose intensity decreased with distance, over a substantially larger area.

Fortunately, the San Fernando earthquake was not a great shock in geological terms. It released only one hundredth as much energy as the 1964 Alaska earthquake. In fact, shocks of energy-release comparable to the San Fernando earthquake occur about once every five years in Southern California, but they are seldom close to developed areas. The San Fernando earthquake caused a greater financial loss than the much larger Alaska earthquake because it occurred on the edge of a large metropolitan area instead of in a sparsely populated area.

Still, it was mainly good fortune that the fatalities were relatively few. Had the earthquake centered twenty miles farther south, close to the center of population in metropolitan Los Angeles, it would have done much more damage and caused the collapse of many more old buildings. Had it occurred three hours later in the day there would have been many more occupants in the buildings that did collapse. Had the freeways been crowded, the bridges that collapsed would have caused many more deaths and injuries, and other casualties would have resulted from automobile accidents caused by the sudden disruption of the thoroughfare. Had the earthquake occurred when more people were on downtown streets there would have been many more casualties from falling debris. Finally, the lower San Fernando Dam had only four feet of freeboard after its partial failure; had it then failed completely — or even after emptying was well along — an area inhabited by 80,000 people would have been inundated.

There is reasonable expectation that before the end of the century an earthquake of much greater magnitude will occur in Southern California. It can be expected to produce very strong shaking over the entire Los Angeles metropolitan area. This ground shaking probably will not exceed the intensity experienced in northern San Fernando Valley, but it may be almost as strong.

Most modern construction withstood strong ground shaking satisfactorily during the San Fernando earthquake, which shows that the metropolitan area can be made to survive a truly great earthquake if certain necessary improvements are made.

The earthquake did reveal certain weaknesses in engineering and construction practices, and in institutional and organizational arrangements. These weaknesses can be corrected by appropriate improvements in safety regulations, in building codes and in preparations for an emergency. Even though the earthquake brought tragedy to some, if it leads to the correction of these weaknesses it will have brought a long-term benefit to all Southern Californians.

Director lists research goals

Charles Manfred, Director, Office of Emergency Services, recently announced state support and participation in a research project conducted by the University of Colorado to assess the Socioeconomic and Political Implications of Earthquake Prediction.

The principal focus of this research effort is on securing empirically based data on how different types of organizations are likely to respond to the first credible earthquake forecasts.

Emphasis is also placed on how the anticipated policy changes of one organization will link to other organizations. Some organizations and a sample of citizens will be selected from several communities in California which seismologists indicate are "likely candidates" for the early scientifically based earthquake forecasts.

—Develop and interpret a comprehensive set of findings regarding the probable response of organizations and individual citizens to early credible earthquake forecasts.

—Develop and apply an effective means of informing organizations and the public of the findings and their implications.

—Test the impact of the findings on organizations participating actively in the research process; and
